

BOMBS WERE EXPLODED

BOLD ATTEMPTS

Were Made to Wreck Buildings in New York

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—The explosion of a Black Hand bomb loaded with dynamite and gun cotton in front of an Italian fruiterer's at Lexington avenue and 51st street early today rattled the windows of residences and apartment houses for a mile along fashionable Fifth avenue and awakened hundreds of guests in the hotel Plaza, the St. Regis and other fashionable hostilities.

The infernal machine, which the police say was hurled by a Black Hand agent from a flying taxi, was one of the most powerful ever exploded in New York. It tore a great hole in the pavement and completely demolished the lower portion of the fruiterer's building. A police sergeant stood at a corner a block above, watching the speeding taxi-cab as it sped down the asphalted street and then was suddenly thrown off his feet when the crash came. He hopes to be able to identify the taxi-cab, which he said was jet black in color and somewhat unusual in shape.

The fruiterer, Charles Romo, who is reputed wealthy, told the police that he had received many letters demanding money and threatened all sorts of dire punishment if the cash was not forthcoming. Romo's loss from the damage to his stock and building will probably reach $5,000.

An hour after the Lexington avenue explosion the police of the adjoining precinct reported a similar explosion on East 29th street in front of the headquarters of Anthony Caputo, proprietor of the Manhattan Macaroni Manufacturing Co. The crash smashed plate glass windows in four buildings but did little other damage.

NO ONE INJURED

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 30.—A dynamite bomb, believed to have been placed in position by persons who had been refused money, was exploded in front of a house in the southern section of this city, causing considerable damage. Fortunately no person was hurt. The front of the dwelling, as well as that of the adjoining one was wrecked and windows in houses within a radius of a block were smashed.

On April 3 last a similar explosion occurred in front of the house occupied by Peter Mancuso, a merchant. He had received a letter demanding money which was signed "Black Hand." He turned the letter over to the police who were unable to locate those responsible for the explosion.

HUSTLING FIRM

CALMAN AND GUTHRIE DOING A GREAT BUSINESS

A hustling grocery firm the growth of which has been very rapid is that of Calman and Guthrie, with stores in Gorham and Merrimack streets. In spite of the fact that the firm is as yet practically in its infancy its success has been so consistent that the amount of business transacted has been far ahead of the most sanguine expectations of its owners, the Messrs. Martin Calman and James Guthrie. These two gentlemen are very popular with the purchasing public of this city owing to their previous business relations with local and Boston wholesale houses.

The semi-weekly sales, which the firm conducts on table goods, have proved so popular that it is hard to find a housewife who has not at some time or another taken advantage of the savings which can be made by buying during these sales. The advertisement of this paper today and should be consulted by every housewife who wishes to practice economy in buying her wants.

"S. & I." green trading stamps are given by the firm and several "stamp specials" with which extra stamps are given appear in the advertisement.

BODY OF MAN

WAS WASHED ASHORE AT NEWPORT TODAY

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 30.—The body of Simon Coffin of Marblehead, Mass., was washed ashore near the naval training station today. Coffin, who was a mess attendant on the steam yacht Machigonne, owned by W. L. Douglas of Brockton, Mass., returned to the yacht on the night of Aug. 23, after an evening ashore here. The next morning he could not be found but his hat and coat were on the deck. It is supposed that he went to sleep there and rolled overboard.

INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL

Teachers Were Chosen by the School Board Last Night

At a meeting of the school committee held last night teachers were elected to the new industrial school. A. K. Whitcomb was re-elected superintendent of schools; several resignations were received and accepted and requests for extension of leave of absence were granted. It was voted to use the Old Moody school for instruction in textiles, a portion of the Bartlett school for machine work, and a part of the Morrill school for the instruction of girls. Principal William H. Dooley stated in his report on equipment that machinery to the value of $10,000 had been contributed, and in accordance with his recommendation the sum of $3000 was voted for supplies for the new school, the money to be spent under the direction of the committee on books and supplies.

Mr. Dooley's report was read by Supt. Whitcomb, and the following candidates elected by the committee were nominated by Mr. Dooley and recommended by Mr. Whitcomb:

Charles F. Chase, machine department, salary $1200; Fred F. Wiggins, carpentry and building construction, salary $800; Clarence B. Lesaut, electrical and steam engineering, salary $800; Miss Alice L. Gookin, academic branches, salary $800; Miss Roberta E. Bramhall, housekeeping department, salary $500.

John Rourke was elected janitor.

Mr. Dooley's Report

To the School Committee of the City of Lowell:
Gentlemen:
I respectfully submit the following report after investigating the need for industrial education in the city of Lowell.

The knowledge of the industrial needs along educational lines was obtained by visits to a representative number of typical establishments in the various industries of the city and conferences with groups of operators, social workers, priests, ministers and teachers.

Lowell is a very large manufacturing community with a population of over one hundred thousand. In addition to the large number of textile industries it has also extensive establishments in metal and wood working industries. It is distinctly an industrial city and depends for its very existence on its industries. The industries are of various kinds but may be roughly divided into the following groups:

The textile industries.
The machine shop trades.
The wood working and furnishing trades.

The building trades.
The clothing trades, including dressmaking and millinery, power machine work.

The leather trades.
The textile industry as a whole is the most important industry in the city and its importance in relation to industrial conditions cannot be too highly appreciated. The prosperity of the city depends to a great extent upon good industrial conditions in the mills and any system of education that will advance the skill of the operative will add materially to the wealth of the city.

There is a universal feeling among the people visited that the industrial growth of the city demands recognition in our educational system. It is recognized that children may be either "book-minded" or "motor-minded." The "book-minded" children take advantage of the present opportunities, continue in one type or another of the splendid schools of the city, and finally enter professional or commercial life.

The "motor-minded" girl or boy is one who learns more by seeing, handling and doing things than he or she does from books. This type of child has interests and abilities for the more active and industrial pursuits.

The motor-minded boys and girls who are leaving school to go to work invariably find employment in the juvenile occupations in the mills of the city. Very few of them have com-mill agents and operatives that there is a place and a need of a simpler textile instruction and related information which shall be more directly connected with the everyday needs of the operatives, and some response to this call seems to be a duty.

There is also a need of part time courses for children working in the mills who have left the grammar schools at the early age of fourteen.

Evening Courses for Mill Operatives

Picker and card room practice.
Killing spinning.
Ring spinning.
Twisting, spooling and warp preparation.

Cotton weaving and loom fixing.
Cotton weaving (Greek class).
Cotton weaving and loom fixing (French class).

In addition a part time class for boys working in the mills between the ages of 14 and 17, on Saturday afternoons. The subjects will be:

Mill arithmetic.
Mill practice.
Mill science, civics and business English.

Later it may be advisable to continue this part time course more than one afternoon a week.

Machine Shop Trades

It is well recognized in large cities that there is a need of additional training not yet provided by the public schools which will meet the demands of the "motor-minded" boys who are not forced by economical conditions to go to work as soon as the law permits.

These children are not wanted in the metal and wood working industries till they are at least 15 years of age. Our industries are organized in such a way as to offer very little if any opportunity for the training of boys. The old apprenticeship no longer exists. The result is that a great many boys are idle or drifting from one juvenile employment to another or attending school without being aroused by the pure bookish work.

In order to meet this need a three year course in wood and metal working trades should be provided. In addition evening classes in steam engineering adapted to meet the needs of firemen and engineers, machine shop, carpentry, electricity and shop mathematics should be provided.

I recommend that three year courses be provided giving preliminary training for trades of carpenter, machinist, mechanical draughtsman, electrician.

plotted the grammar school work. The metal and building trades do not care to have boys enter until they are sixteen. The dressmaking, millinery and power machine trades do not care to employ girls under sixteen.

Statistics show that this type of boy and girl do not attend evening school regularly. The result is that the great mass of our children are not receiving any educational influence after leaving the middle or upper grades of the

A GREAT PROGRAM

OPENED TODAY

Exercises Held on the South Common Playground Today

The grand windup of the playground season came today and while the weather didn't break any too clean for the success of the "big show" on the South common there was enthusiasm galore and even during the forenoon there was a big crowd and the ball games between the different teams from the different playgrounds were productive of the true baseball spirit. Girls and boys who had to pull themselves up to peep over the wire that encircled the grounds cheered themselves hoarse when members of their respective teams "swatted" a good one or turned a good trick. There were old time ball players there, too, and don't you think for a moment that they didn't enjoy it. The greatest game of all was the exhibition game between the South and North common seniors. It went eleven innings and it was red hot all the time. The South common boys own the championship series but the North common had put it all over them on the exhibition game. Fred Luke should have been there to get a line on some growing baseball timber. The woods were full of promising saplings and Jack Condon, who umpired the 11 inning game allows that the North and South commons are developing players for the big leagues. Jack is janitor at the Edison school and while he wanted to see his own boys win, he was bound to do the square thing and those on the outside declared that Jack was the fairest umpire that ever happened. The score in the great eleven inning game was 10 to 7 in favor of the North common and the rooters from that common were out in full force.

The common was policed by Sgt. Maguire and Patrolmen Keegan, Kourty and Sullivan, and take it from the scribbles who watched the performance the officers had all they could do to preserve order, especially when the decision was close. Chief Director Bruce was "Johnny on the spot," and it was plain to be seen that he and his assistant, James H. Rooney, had great command of the boys, and even during the games the real good of supervised play was made manifest. The boys got excited, of course, but the scrapping that is generally "next friends" to an occasion of this kind was conspicuous by its absence, so to speak. The line-up of the teams in the exhibition games was as follows:

North Common—Boyle, c; Bernier, p; Bernier, 1b; Tessier, ss; Keyes, 2b; Mills, 3b; McGrath, 1b; Payette, cf; Benier, lf.

South Common—Smith, c; McOster, p; E. Smith, 1b; J. Callahan, 2b; P. Cummings, 3b; McVey, ss; McGlinchey, lf; O'Loughlin, cf; McGreevey, rf.

The results of other ball games played during the forenoon were as follows:

South common cadets defeated the Union Blues of the North common by a score of 4 to 1. The boys from the Greenhalge school grounds defeated the Allen street boys, 6 to 3. The South Common Midgets were defeated by the Greenhalge by a score of 9 to 0. The South Common Midgets defeated

DOG CAUSED TROUBLE

Case Called to the Attention of the War Department

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—The old story of the civil prosecution of a soldier for an act performed in accordance with orders from his superiors, always tantalizing to the military authorities, is before the war department again in a case from New Mexico. In this instance nothing more than a town dog was the cause of it all. According to an official report to the secretary of war, Private Gilbert of the signal corps, while inspecting fences at Fort Bayard, New Mexico, fired two shots at a dog which had attacked him and followed him inside the reservation. He was prosecuted at Central, New Mexico, charged with discharging firearms in the town, found guilty and sentenced to pay the costs of the action.

The case has been appealed and Secretary of War Stimson has taken exception to the decision, asking the attorney general to detail a United States or special attorney to defend the soldier.

LABOR DAY PARADE

Report of Expenses of the Demonstration

At a meeting of the members of the Labor day committee of the city government and representatives of the Trades and Labor council held at city hall last night, John J. Mahoney of the Trades and Labor council submitted the following report on the expenses to be paid out of the appropriation made by the city government.

Five bands, $625; five drum corps $70; band concert $75; six carriages for the parade, $30; baseball game $25; tug of war, $25; decorating bandstand on the South common, $10; lodges, $14.50; marshals and staff horse hire, $12.50; incidentals, $20; total $1000. Mr. Mahoney explained that the Trades and Labor council had appropriated money for the other expenses of the day, which would total considerably over what the city had provided.

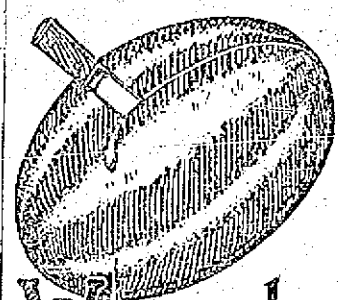

MAN WAS INJURED WHILE TRYING TO GET HORSE FROM BURNING BARN

CLAREMONT, N. H., Aug. 30.—During a terrific thunder and rain storm, which continued until yesterday morning, lightning struck the buildings owned by Levi Smith in Unity. The bolt entered the barn, killing a horse and setting fire to the structure.

The entire set of buildings, including two barns, shed and dwelling house, were burned flat, together with 40 tons of hay and 10 tons of grain. Two hogs and some hens were also missing after the fire, and it is thought were burned.

Mr. Smith, who drives the stage between North, Charlestown and Unity, had just returned last night from a vacation and had been home but a few minutes when the storm broke. His two horses were together in the barn, and he had to climb over the body of the horse killed by the bolt to liberate the other one. The crib in front of the horse was all ablaze, and Mr. Smith was kicked and severely injured while liberating the frightened animal.

THE STATE MILITIA

Alleged to Have Used Liquor

A rigid investigation is being made by Lieut. Col. Willis W. Stover of the charges that whiskey was found in quantities in the various camps of the Massachusetts militia during the recent maneuvers of the Red and Blue armies. The investigation was ordered by Adj. Gen. Pearson. Scores of witnesses may be called to give testimony.

During the maneuvers several cases of drunkenness, it is said, were discovered. One man was in such a condition, it is said, that he was sent to the alcoholic ward at the Danvers asylum. Col. Sweetser of the Eighth Infantry at once started an investigation of the cases that came to his attention.

Peddler's wagons outside the lines were examined. Later two cases of whiskey were found on a wagon inside the camp. So much gossip followed the investigation that the adjutant general ordered Lieut. Col. Stover to look into the matter. Already every officer in the regiment has been communicated with and full reports have been made. But it is said the investigation has but just begun.

LIQUOR LICENSES

NEW MEASURE PASSED BY THE CONNECTICUT ASSEMBLY

HARTFORD, Conn., Aug. 30.—The lower branch of the general assembly passed yesterday a bill under which a majority of the voters in no-license towns may petition county commissioners to grant a liquor license to a specified hotel for four months in each year, beginning with June 1. The bill is a successor to a measure which passed the senate last week giving the county commissioners power to grant a license to a hotel in a town owned by Martin F. Plant, upon petition of a majority of the voters of the town, which is no-license. Governor Baldwin is in favor of the new bill.

The governor sent in his fifth veto message yesterday, rejecting a bill for a bridge and a park in Norwalk. The senate by a vote of 22 to 8, passed the measure over the veto.

The house, by a vote of 150 to 27, passed over the governor's veto a bill giving veterans of the Civil war a pension of $30 a year in lieu of tax exemption up to $3000.

The senate accepted the report of a conference committee and passed the death damage bill, which removes the minimum limit and makes the amount recoverable from death due to negligence $10,000. The limit was formerly $5000.

NEW PARASITES

May Prove Doom of the Gypsy Moth

BOSTON, Aug. 30.—The doom of the gypsy moth in Massachusetts may be sounded by a new parasite the government has been trying to secure for the past three years from Italy. It is being experimented with at the Melrose Highlands laboratory by W. F. Fiske of the bureau of entomology of the department of agriculture.

In order to secure the parasite Mr. Fiske visited Italy. Three weeks ago a shipment of 125,000 of the insects arrived in Melrose. These little bugs have been effective in their native country.

If they are as successful here government officials say that the extermination of the gypsy moth would be a matter of a short time.

For the purpose of carrying on experiments, Mr. Fiske left Washington last night for Melrose, where the real tests will be started at once. The moths which have caused New England so much trouble in the past few years will be brought to the laboratory, where they will be turned loose to mingle with the new parasite.

The work of the imported insect will be carefully watched by the state and government officials. If they are a success, thousands will be turned loose in different parts of the country.

State Forester Rame said last night, "Mr. Fiske expects that a parasite has been found which will do the work of making rid of the gypsy moth. The experiments will begin at once under the charge of Alfred Burgess of the Melrose Highlands laboratory."

The natural enemies of the gypsy moths keep them down to reasonable numbers and prevent their doing serious damage. When they are exported to a country where their natural enemies do not exist, they spread and multiply and do immense damage. This has been the case with the gypsy and the brown tailed moths in New England.

The bureau during the past summer imported roughly about 1,000,000 of these parasites and liberated them under the most favorable natural conditions. Mr. Fiske was at work on this collection all summer in Italy and France. The presence of cholera interfered somewhat with the shipments of parasites, but he managed to send the most that were collected.

MAN DIED SUDDENLY

He Was Stricken While Driving Auto

LAWRENCE, Aug. 30.—Charles S. Mayo, member of the family of Springfield papermakers, was stricken with heart disease while driving his automobile last night and died while still at the wheel of his car.

Mr. Mayo, who was a noted horse and auto enthusiast, was driving E. E. Dunham and his nephew, E. S. Nickerson, a Boston stock broker, along the Jackson street extension toward the Merrimack Valley Country club, where they intended to spend the evening.

Mr. Mayo was chatting with his companions, smoking a cigar and laughing, when, like a flash, his companions saw him stiffen and then collapse. Before his strength left his body he threw off his clutch and though the automobile swerved into the bushes along the road, Mr. Mayo's last act prevented an accident, and the car came to a stop without mishap.

Mr. Mayo was a life member of the Lawrence lodge of Elks, an Odd Fellows member of the Home and Merrimack Valley Country clubs and other social and fraternal organizations. He kept bachelor's quarters at 487 Essex street. He was 53 years old and leaves two brothers, Amashih, Jr., and Alfred N. Mayo, and his mother,

MAN FOUND GUILTY

He Was Charged With Threatening John Kaldis

James Karmelis was arraigned before Judge Hadley in police court this morning on a complaint charging him with threatening to do bodily harm to John Kaldis. Karmelis entered a plea of not guilty, but at the conclusion of the hearing of the case the defendant was found guilty and he was ordered to furnish bonds of $100 to keep the peace for six months.

According to the testimony offered Karmelis and his sister had some difficulty and the latter left home and objected to her presence at Kaldis' house and it is alleged that after threatening her without avail he met Kaldis and threatened him stating that if his sister did not leave the house there would be a murder.

Another witness also testified to having heard the defendant state to Kaldis that if the sister did not leave the house there would be a murder. The sister of the defendant told of having had trouble with her brother and that he had tried to have her leave the Kaldis house but that she refused to do so because she was afraid of her brother.

The defendant's story was a general denial that he had any intention of doing either his sister or the complainant any harm.

Raising a Disturbance

Ethelbert Joy was charged with having raised a disturbance on an electric car on the Lawrence division of the Bay State Street Railway Co. last night. At the request of the government the case was continued until next Wednesday. It is alleged that Joy had been indulging in the "O.C. Joyful" liquid, and boarding an electric car used profane language and raised a disturbance.

Drunken Offenders

Charles Bues was charged with being drunk, but he denied the allegation. Patrolman Lennon testified that he arrested the man in Howe street about 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and that he was drunk and that it was necessary to use a wagon to take the man to the patrol box. Deputy Supt. Downey testified that the man was very drunk when brought to the police station. Bues said he had taken but two glasses of beer during the afternoon, and that would not make him drunk. He was found guilty and a fine of $3 was imposed.

Thomas S. Smith, who hails from Pittsfield, N. H., was arrested the day before yesterday for drunkenness and yesterday morning, inasmuch as it was the man's first appearance at the police station, he was released by the probation officer. Thomas evidently wanted to celebrate the occasion of his release and he immediately went out and started drinking again with the result that he was arrested yesterday afternoon by Patrolman Hamilton.

The arresting officer informed the court that the man was very drunk and was using profane language. Smith pleaded to be given a chance to leave the city promising that he would go directly home. Judge Hadley gave him the opportunity to do so. Smith was given a suspended sentence of two months in jail and given 24 hours in order to leave the city.

Michael Riley was under a suspended sentence of six months in jail, but he violated the conditions of his probation and the suspension of his sentence was revoked and he will spend the next six months in the city jail.

James McLaughlin and Frank Michael, charged with being drunk, were each ordered to pay a fine of $5. There was one first offender who was fined $2, and several simple drunks were released before the opening of court.

Program Arranged for Today Was Postponed

BOSTON, Aug. 30.—Adverse weather conditions caused the postponement of today's program of the Harvard-Boston aviation meet at the Squantum field. Today's events will be held next week Wednesday. During the forenoon there were several light showers and as there was a rather strong east wind blowing the committee decided to postpone the program.

SCURRILOUS LETTERS STRUCK BY AN AUTO

Alleged to Have Been Written by North Chelmsford Man Met With a Woman a Serious Injury

EASTON, Pa., Aug. 30.—Charged with having written hundreds of anonymous letters of a scurrilous, defamatory and indecent character and sending them through the mails to more than a score of residents of this city, including clergymen, business men and women, Miss Harriet Dewitt, daughter of one of the city's well known and respected citizens, has been arrested and is held in jail for a hearing Friday before United States Commissioner Turner.

In nearly all of the letters the anonymous writer attacks either the character of the person to whom the letter is addressed or that of some near relative or friend. In several instances there are charges of criminal conduct. For nine years these offensive, annoying letters have been received and many complaints have been sent to the postal department. Several inspectors and secret service men had been assigned to fathom the case and failed. At last Inspector Shaebarger was put to work to run down the writer and the evidence he secured during the last two months caused him to make the complaint that resulted in Miss Dewitt's arrest. She declared she is innocent and says she has also been receiving letters from the anonymous writer.

TROUBLE IN MOCTEZUMA DISTRICT

DOUGLAS, Ariz., Aug. 30.—Disorders have occurred in the Moctezuma district in Sonora as a result of a food shortage due to crop failures, according to R. L. Cosgrove, who arrived from Moctezuma today. Failure of crops planted and of many persons to plant crops because they were engaged in the revolution, Mr. Cosgrove says, has caused almost a condition of famine and great suffering among the people.

GIRL TOOK POISON

She Made Second Attempt to End Her Life

Lena Avotte, aged 17 years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Avotte of 175 Hall street, despondent over a love affair, attempted for the second time to commit suicide last night at her home, but again her efforts were fruitless. The young girl swallowed a tablet of corrosive sublimate, but she was discovered in time and removed to the Lowell hospital, where she is now confined, but is out of danger.

The young girl, it is claimed, was in love with a young man who paid some attention to her, but as he said in a friendly way only. When the young man saw that the girl was really in love with him, he told her that he had a wife and child in Europe. This was some time last July, and at that time Lena told him she was going to kill herself, and the next day she tried to do away with herself by inhaling minating gas.

A few days ago she again met the young man on the street and he apprised her of the fact that his wife and child had arrived in Lowell. This bit of news worked on the young girl's mind and the result was that she got despondent, and last night she made another attempt to take her life. She ate supper with the family and at 7:30 o'clock she retired to her room. A few minutes later she came back to the kitchen and after taking a seat told her mother she had taken poison and then she fell to the floor unconscious. The ambulance was called and Lena was removed to the Lowell hospital.

Inquiries at the hospital today disclosed the fact that the girl is resting comfortably and that she will recover.

RECALL OF JUDGES

Bitterly Opposed by Former Justice Brown of Supreme Court

BOSTON, Aug. 30.—Several speakers, prominent leaders at the bar in different states of the union, today addressed the gathering of lawyers assembled at Huntington hall in attendance at the annual meeting of the American Bar Association. After the routine business of the day had been disposed of the lawyers listened to addresses of different members of the bar, conspicuous among whom was former Justice Brown of the state supreme court.

Justice Brown addressed the assembly bitterly opposed the recall of judges. "The very idea that a judge could be compelled to descend from his bench and vindicate his right to retain his seat by an appeal to the public is the last recourse of political folly," he said. "The practice of allowing the people themselves to choose their own officers has been the origin of most of our woes. Just now the current of modern legislation is moving in two different directions. The one is to give the people a more direct and immediate voice in the election of their law-making representatives. The other is a restriction of the power of the people to choose their executive officers by popular vote."

"With regard to the popular election of senators, the fashionable political fad of these days, I can only say that while election by the legislature has undoubtedly given us some bad men it has produced a much larger number of honorable and eminent men who have contributed immensely to the prosperity of the country. It may well be doubted whether a senator chosen by a legislature may not more honestly represent a state and its people than one chosen by a political caucus or a primary and endorsed by a popular vote."

"The argument is that if the people may be entrusted to elect the head of the ticket and its legislative officers they may equally be entrusted with the choice of all the officers, but the analogy fails in this vital particular. The voter may be assumed to know the head of the ticket as well as the man who wishes to represent him in the legislative body but he cannot know the multitude of minor officers who are necessary for the conduct of a great business."

Speaking of the tendency to a restriction of executive officers Justice Brown took up the short ballot and approved of it as "the federal system which has obtained since the adoption of the constitution and has worked so satisfactorily that no serious effort has been made to change it."

"The members of the Sagamore club held their regular meeting at their camp at Bowers avenue, Willow Dale, last evening. Plans were made for their annual entertainment to be held during the winter months. During the meeting, Mr. John Loughran read an interesting letter from the Rev. James L. McGuinness of Brockton, Mr. McGuinness expressed his sincere thanks to the members for the hospitality accorded him during his short stay at their camp. He said that his vacation at the Sagamore camp will ever be recalled as the most pleasant sojourn of his career. He complimented the members for the progress they had made. At the conclusion of the reading of the letter it was unanimously voted to elect the reverend gentleman an honorary member of the organization. The secretary was instructed to notify Mr. McGuinness of the club's action."

Willard Roberts, a resident of North Chelmsford, was struck and seriously injured by an automobile in Hudson, N. H., Sunday night Monday morning. He was brought to the Lowell General hospital in this city where it was found that he was suffering from a broken nose and the bones of both jaws were broken.

Mr. Roberts, who formerly lived in Nashua, was on a visit to that city and Sunday night about 1 o'clock the family of his sister, Mrs. Charles Green of 4 Kirk st., Nashua, was awakened by a noise on the piazza. Opening the door they found him lying in a pool of blood, according to the statement made by Mrs. Green to City Marshal William W. Wheeler of Nashua.

The injured man was taken into the house and told a story to the effect that he was struck by an automobile in Hudson near the bridge. He says he walked to the house of his sister, arriving shortly after 9 o'clock, and spent nearly two hours trying to arouse the family.

A surgeon was called and after temporarily dressing his wounds, advised that the patient be at once taken to a hospital. Mr. Roberts refused to be taken to a Nashua hospital and was therefore carried to Lowell in an automobile.

The case was kept quiet Monday but as reports from the hospital yesterday were not encouraging, friends of Mr. Roberts decided that an investigation should be made to ascertain the identity of the automobile which caused the injuries. His friends doubt that he could have walked from Hudson to Kirk street, upward of two miles, in the condition he was in, at least without attracting attention, and they think that on account of the injuries to his head he has no clear recollection of the facts.

Their theory is that the occupants of the automobile picked Mr. Roberts up after a collision with him, took him aboard the car and learning the address of Mrs. Green drove to her house and quietly deposited him upon the porch.

Inquiry at the hospital today brought forth the information that Roberts' condition is improved and that he is out of danger.

ELECTION EXPENSE STATEMENT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—Primary election expense statements from Senators Martin and Swan of Virginia, the first to be filed under the new publicity law that went into effect August 15th, reached the office of Secretary Bennett of the senate today. In the absence of Secretary Baughman officials of his office declined to make them public. Following this disclosure a careful examination of the new publicity law resulted in the startling disclosure that in the act presumed to be most drastic there is no requirement for publicity of the individual statements filed by candidates for the senate or house of representatives.

A FLYING SQUADRON

Is Searching Coast For Disabled Ships

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—A flying squadron of five revenue cutters today is searching the Atlantic coast from Key West to New York for disabled ships which may have been caught in the hurricane on Monday and may be drifting north with the gulfstream. Commandant Hertholtz said he was convinced there were many small sailing ships helpless at sea unable to communicate their distress. The squadron is based at Norfolk, the Seminole at Wilmington, N. C., the Yamacraw at Charleston, the Forward at Key West and the Seneca at New York comprise the rescue fleet. The Yamacraw which did gallant work in taking off passengers from the liner Lexington has been directed to search for the schooner Eselle Whiting of New York, which had been 20 miles due east of Savannah, deserted by all her crew and with only her captain, his wife and her cook aboard. The Seminole is searching for the schooner Fortuna which also has aboard her captain, his wife and cook, the crew having been taken off.

THE PROGRAM

FOR THE PRESIDENT'S VISIT TO HARTFORD

HARTFORD, Aug. 30.—The hours that President Taft will spend in this city and at Charter Oak Park on Sept. 1, when he will attend the Connecticut State fair meeting are expected to be busy ones. According to the announced details of the visit the president will arrive on the morning of Sept. 7, will take in the fair, will be entertained at luncheon by Gov. Baldwin, whose guest he will be during his stay here, and will leave Hartford in time to be back at Beverly for dinner on the evening of that day. Governor Baldwin has invited about 100 to attend the luncheon. Senator McClean and Charles Hopkins Clark of this city have been appointed a committee to assist the governor in arranging the details of the visit.

A TIN SHOWER

A delightful tin shower was tendered Miss Marion Doherty at the home of Miss Clara Farrington, 183 Perry street last night. Thirty of Miss Doherty's friends assembled at the house and presented her with kitchen ware of every conceivable variety. An enjoyable program of vocal and instrumental selections was carried out during the course of the evening and a dainty repast was served. The dining room was artistically decorated in yellow and white. The party broke up at a late hour all wishing Miss Doherty luck and prosperity.

A BIG TURTLE

WAS CAUGHT BY A LOWELL FISHERMAN

A 35-pound turtle is now on exhibition at the store of the Lagasse Furniture Co. in Lakeview avenue, and it will possibly stay there until Monday, when the owner will give a turtle soup dinner to a number of his friends. This turtle was captured a couple of days ago at Nahant pond near Groton by Mr. Simon Lagasse, who with several others was enjoying a day of fishing. The party was composed of Mr. Lagasse, Charles G. Vian, Joseph DeLorme and his son Arthur and Pierre Brousseau and his son Charles. Fishing was extra good on that day, and it is said that Mr. Vian's automobile, which conveyed the party to the pond, was hardly large enough to carry back the immense catch.

There were hornpots, pickers, perch, eels and a number of other kinds too numerous to mention, and a good load of it, too. When the turtle got hooked Mr. Lagasse thought he had a whale or the bottom of the pond on his line, but he soon found out what it was, and it was with much difficulty that the 35-pounder was safely landed in the boat.

The turtle will see its final Monday when it will be chopped up in pieces and stewed, the festivities to be held at the camp of a member of the party.

A HIGH STANDARD THE POLICE BOARD

Of Temperance in the Voted to Revoke Two U. S. Army Minor Licenses

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—The standard of temperance in the army for both officers and men is exceptionally high and is not exceeded in the other walks of life, unless in the church and among railroad employees, said Major General Grant today in a report to the war department.

While the soldier makes a favorable showing in this connection in comparison with men in other vocations, General Grant, as commander of the department of the east during the last fiscal year, found, nevertheless, that the chief cause of court-martial trials was indulgence in alcoholic drinks.

There was a remarkable decrease, he adds, in the number of trials by military courts in the department last year as compared with the previous twelve months. This is attributed primarily to the thorough training which recruits now receive at the recruiting depots.

LINCOLN BEACHEY WINNING ALTITUDE EVENT, GOING UP TWO THOUSAND FEET IN THE AIR

QUANTUM, Aug. 30.—In a contest with the other crack airmen at the Harvard-Boston aero meet Lincoln Beachey, the young Californian who recently performed aerial miracles at Niagara Falls, added to his laurels by winning the altitude event. This was a race up into the air against time, Beachey reaching the required altitude of 2000 feet in a little less than seven minutes from the start. Beachey is taking a large bunch of the prize money at the meet.

HEART TROUBLE

CAUSED THE DEATH OF THE REV. FR. BRADLEY

LISBON, Mo., Aug. 30.—Rev. Peter E. Bradley, master of St. Anne's church of Lisbon and Holy Trinity church of Lisbon Falls, was found dead in his bed about 7 o'clock yesterday morning. Death probably was due to heart trouble, from which he had suffered.

The Rev. Fr. Bradley was born in Portland in 1859. He was educated by the public schools of that city and at the Little seminary and the Grand seminary at Montreal. He was first a curate in Lewiston, with Mgr. Wallace and his first parish was at Winn.

Then he came to Hallowell and later to Lisbon where he had been about 14 years. While here he built new churches at both Lisbon and Lisbon Falls and greatly improved the rectory. Several years ago he accompanied Bishop Walsh on his trip to Rome and at the time of his death he was a member of the diocesan council.

He is survived by a brother, Richard Bradley of Portland, and a niece, Miss Margaret Logie of Portland. The funeral will take place at Lisbon Friday morning at 11 o'clock. Burial will be at Calvary cemetery, Portland.

BILL IN EQUITY

FILED IN SUPERIOR COURT BY SAIMAN SISK

BOSTON, Aug. 30.—Salman Sisk brought a bill in the superior court yesterday against the Walnut avenue company, owner of Wonderland, at Revere, seeking to annul a contract he made with it for the purchase of the property for $50,000 and for the return of $6000 that he paid on account of the purchase price.

He intended to get the property as a site for the manufacture of artificial ice and alleges that John J. Higgins, acting for the company, represented falsely to him that the seven artesian wells yielded 500 gallons of water a minute and that that representation largely induced him to enter into the contract.

He claims that the wells threw up only 70 gallons a minute instead of 500, and that they never yielded the latter quantity. Higgins claims he never made such a representation and that he told Sisk where information could be obtained regarding the water supply.

The Mohawk is bound from Jacksonville to New York.

ARTHUR CUMMINGS

Discoverer of the Curve Ball Visiting Here

Mr. Arthur Cummings, the old time ball player and discoverer of the curve ball, is in this city and is the guest of William H. Hawes, "Old Bill," who in his day was also one of the topnotchers. Mr. Cummings is now superintendent of a prosperous factory in Athol, and is as lively as in his young days. He has baseball, that is the inside workings of baseball, at his finger tips, and he loves to sit down and talk the game over with Tim Murnane, Bill Hawes or any of the "boys" with whom he played. It is most interesting to hear him tell of the contests played in Lowell in the early days, and one of the greatest outings he enjoys during the year is when he attends the field day of the old timers at Paddock's Island each year. Mr. Cummings is still a great judge of ball players, and it is very likely that two or three youngsters of whom he speaks highly will be seen in Lowell uniforms. He attended the game at Spalding park yesterday and met Manager Gray, and it may be that the wires were worked last night in an attempt to find a pitcher, who, the veteran says, is a comer and has the goods for a team like Lowell.

FIRST CLASS BOUTS

To be Offered by Local Club

The boxing fans were delighted to learn through The Sun of yesterday that the Lowell Social and Athletic club will reopen on Thursday evening with such a strong bill as that offered, with Jimmie Moriarty and Billy Glover of Boston as the principal attraction. The Lowell Social and Athletic club has engaged permanent quarters in the Mathews building and thus meets with the requirements of the law relative to meeting places. The meetings will be for members only and non-members will not be admitted under any circumstances, also a requirement of the law. The directors believe that by affording first class programs that the membership of the club will assume substantial proportions, as there are many lovers of the manly art who go to Boston weekly to see bouts who would remain at home if good bouts are to be had in Lowell. For an opening program the directors certainly have something that looks good on paper. Jimmie Moriarty always a popular favorite has improved greatly as a boxer of late through constant training with clever boxers. His rugged style impresses lovers of the game and with his added cleverness with the mitts he seems due to get up with the topnotchers of his weight. His opponent, Billy Glover, has long been noted for his skill. He has met such men as Young McDonough of Manchester, Tommy Quill of Brockton who fought Jimmie Gardner, Young Erna, Harry Lewis and other boxers of national reputation. Along with being scientific he is a good mixer in the ring, and just suited to Moriarty's style of work. The preliminaries also will be interesting. Young Stone of Lowell will go six rounds with Sammy Smith of Lawrence and Young Walsh of Lowell will meet Harry Stone of Lawrence.

JOE JEANNETTE

PROVED TO BE TOO MUCH FOR "PORKY" FLYNN

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Joe Jeannette, the Hoboken light heavyweight, outpointed "Porky" Flynn of Boston in a ten-round bout at the Fairmount Athletic club of the Bronx in the first fight held under the new Fawley law last night. Taken all in all, the contest was below the standard. At times Flynn's left leads to the head had the negro worried, but in the last round he was willing to hold on and stall.

Flynn appeared to be in for a short stay in the early rounds of the battle. The negro tore in and hooked hard punches with both hands to the body, while his left hand found the face and jaw. Flynn was cautious, but shot home a left to the face at intervals, while his right thudded to the body. A heavy left jolt brought the blood from Flynn's nose in the third round.

The tide changed in the fifth and sixth rounds, when Flynn boxed cleverly and stood off his rival's bull-like rushes with short right and left hooks to the face. The crowd, all Flynn sympathizers, stood up and cheered the rally. Their joy was short-lived. Jeannette boxed fiercely in the seventh and eighth rounds and Porky sustained a deep gash in his cheek from a hard right.

In the tenth Jeannette went in to score a knockout, but although Flynn was weak and tired, he managed to stay on his feet.

VARE'S CANDIDACY FOR MAYORALTY TO SHED LIGHT ON POLITICAL METHODS

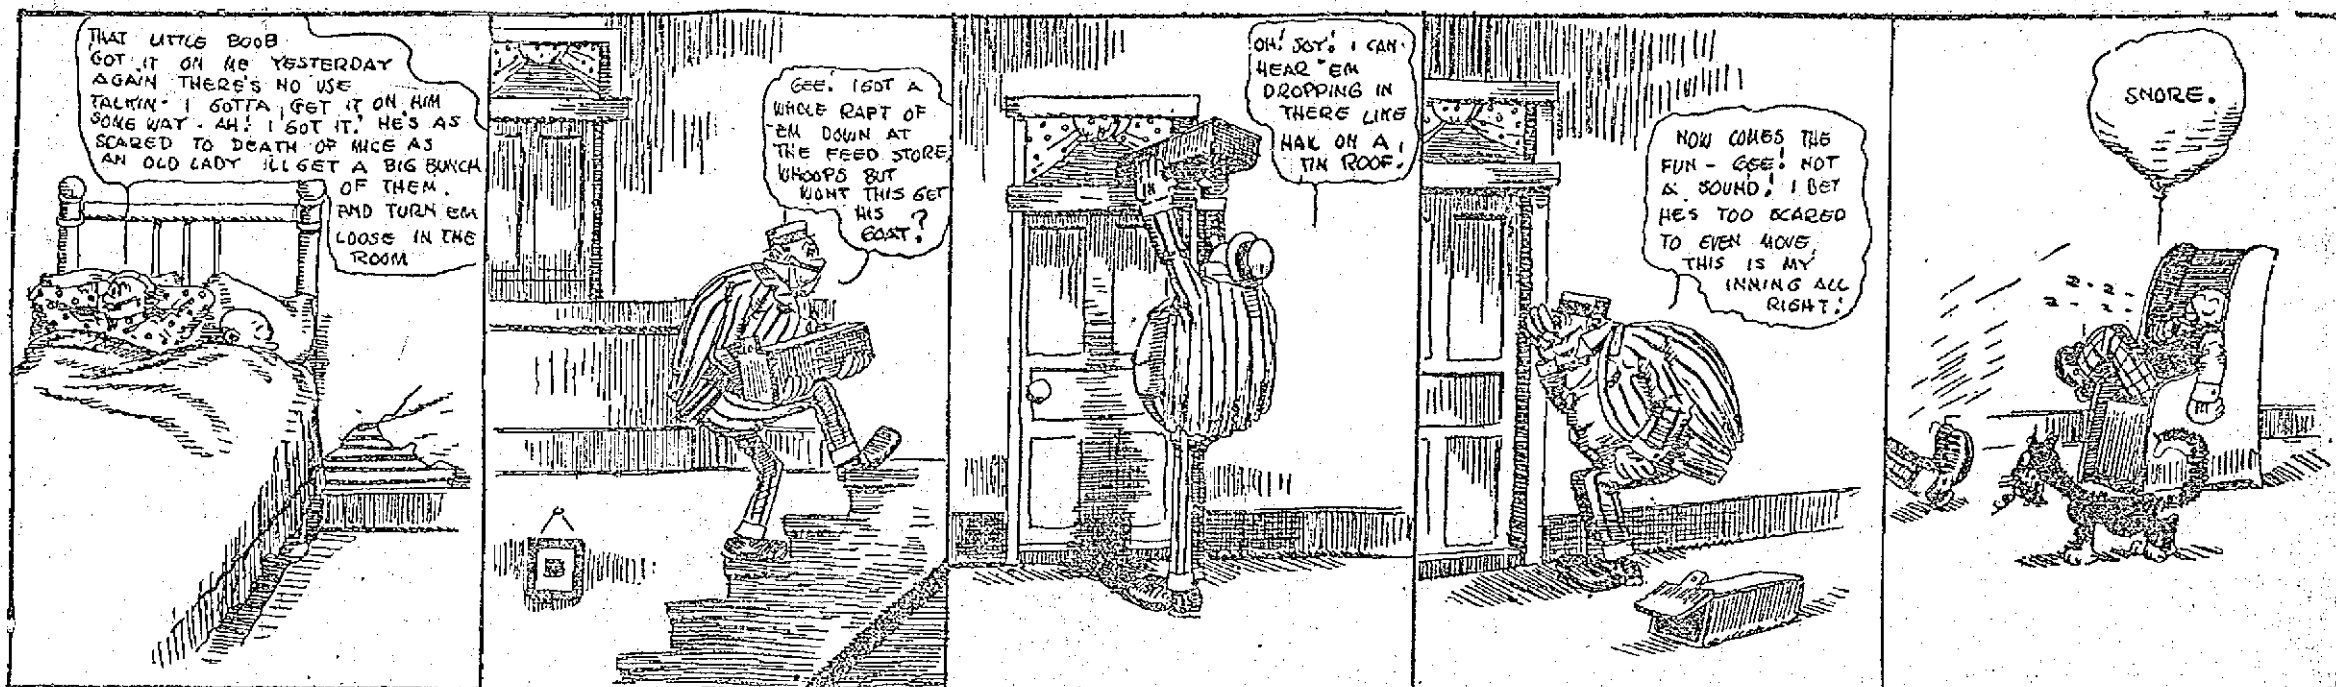

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 30.—Of national interest is the fight now on in this city for the republican mayoralty nomination at the primary to be held Sept. 30. When William S. Vare announced his candidacy "the republican machine" immediately assumed the aspect of an automobile stranded ten miles from a garage. In other words, Mr. Vare split things wide open. The noted financier George H. Earle, Vare's opponent, is supported by United States Senator Boies Penrose, while Mayor Reyburn is for Vare. Penrose is fighting for his own political life. It is expected that as the campaign proceeds more light will be thrown into the dark corners of Philadelphia machine politics than has been shed by any other political struggle in the history of the city. A factor in the fight is Edwin H. Vare, millionaire brother of the candidate. Edwin is a contractor and has the job of cleaning the streets. William S. Vare declares that he has nothing to do with his brother's business, and the latter has announced that in the event of the election of "Brother Bill" he will immediately give up his street cleaning contract. Jim McNichol, so called "boss," is another factor to be reckoned with. Mr. Earle has challenged Mr. Vare to a speech-making duel in each of the city wards.

CONNIE MACK MAY QUIT AS MANAGER AT END OF YEAR

CLEVELAND, Aug. 30.—This season will probably be the last one for Connie Mack as manager of the Athletics, according to those in the know here. If the Athletics win the American league pennant and the team is in good shape for next season Mack's retirement is almost certain. Connie is a stockholder in the Athletic club, and when he retires will become an officer in the club, probably president, in which capacity he would direct the club the same as Chapley Coniskey directs the White Sox. Mack is forty-nine, and at times his health is not good. He has remained at home several times this season where the Athletics made short trips on the road. Another thing, Connie was married last fall, and naturally prefers to be at home to traveling over the country with his team. Mack recently said his career as manager would not continue much longer.

WELL I GUESS THE TREAT'S ON YOU BEN!

Great Mound Work in Yesterday's Double-Header

The inclemency of the weather effected the attendance at the double header between Lowell and Lynn at Spalding park. There were 75 men and one woman present when Umpire Duffy called the first game shortly after two o'clock, but as the weather cleared the enthusiasts boarded the electric cars and made their way to the grounds and

HARRY HUSTON,
Who Made a Phenomenal Catch Yesterday

Before the game had progressed very far there was a fair sized attendance. Among those present were Arthur Cummings, inventor of the curve ball, and "Bill" Hawes, the old time ball player.

Yount was on the mound for the home team and Huston was on the receiving end of the battery. Reiger and Daum were in the points for the visitors.

When the game was called the batting order of the teams was as follows:

Lowell	Lynn
Moulton, 2b	W. Coultter
Barrows, cf	ss, Cargo
Cooney, ss	1b, McGovern
Magee, lf	c, Daum
Fluharty, rf	3b, Strands
Wright, 1b	2b, Logan
Boutles, 3b	cf, Wallace
Huston, c	rf, Hammond
Yount, p	p, Reiger

First Inning
Coultter was the first man up in the first inning and he knocked out a fly which Magee gathered in. Cargo hit to Yount and was out at first. McGovern hit along the third base line and when Umpire Duffy said "foul ball" there was a big kick. "Mac" who is better known as "Terry" then fled to Barrows.

In the latter half of the inning Moulton singled to right field and then stole second. Barrows fanned the gentle zephyrs. Cooney got a free pass and Magee fled to Hammond. Fluharty hit to Logan and was out at first.

Second Inning
Daum hit to Boutles and was out at first. Strands struck out and Logan was third out on a fly to Moulton. Reiger got wild in the second inning and as a result the home team scored two runs. Wright and Boutles drew bases on balls given by Yount during the game. Daum hit to Boutles and the latter threw Cargo out at second.

Cooney got a Texas leaguer to left field. Magee hit to Logan and was out at first. Cooney going to second. Fluharty after hitting about "20" fouts fled out to Logan. Wright fled out to Wallace.

Ninth Inning
Daum started off in the ninth inning with a single to centre field. Strands got a base on balls. Logan fled to Magee. Wallace hit down the first base line and was out. Wright. Hammond hit to Cooney who threw to first. But Wright dropped the ball and Daum scored. Reiger fled to Barrows.

Reiger fled to Fluharty and Coultter was third out on a fly to Magee.

In Lowell's half Cargo fled to Hammond. Magee struck out and Fluharty hit to Logan and died at first.

Fourth Inning
Lowell scored another run in the fourth inning, while the visitors failed to send a man over the plate.

Cargo hit to Boutles and was out at first. McGovern fled to Barrows and Daum hit to Cooney and was out at first.

In the latter half of the inning Wright hit over Hammond's head for three bases and scored on a sacrifice fly by Boutles, which Hammond gathered in. Huston and Yount sent grounders to Cooney and were out at first.

Fifth Inning
In the fifth inning Strands struck out for the second time. Logan followed with a single to centre field. Wallace hit to Moulton and died at first. Strands going to second on the play. Hammond was hit by a pitched ball and walked to first, but he died there for Reiger fanned the breezes.

The home team went out in one, two, three order in the latter half of the inning. Moulton struck out. Barrows foud fled to Strands and Boutles hit to Reiger and was out at first.

Sixth Inning
Coultter and Cargo went out on flies to Magee. McGovern singled by Cooney and Daum singled to centre field, but when McGovern tried to steal third he was thrown out.

Magee started off in the latter half of the sixth with a base on balls. Fluharty fled to Daum. Magee then stole second and went to third on a bad throw by Daum. Wright drew a base on balls. Boutles hit to Cargo, who threw to Logan at second, getting Wright and the ball was sent to first for a double play.

Seventh Inning
Nothing but flies during the first part of the seventh. Strands fled to Boutles. Logan fled to Magee and Wallace fled to Fluharty.

Eighth Inning
Hammond hit to Yount and was out at first. Reiger fled to Fluharty. Coultter hit one too hot for Boutles to handle and the runner was safe at first. Cargo drew a base on balls, the first base on balls given by Yount during the game. Daum hit to Boutles and the latter threw Cargo out at second.

Cooney got a Texas leaguer to left field. Magee hit to Logan and was out at first. Cooney going to second. Fluharty after hitting about "20" fouts fled out to Logan. Wright fled out to Wallace.

Ninth Inning
Daum started off in the ninth inning with a single to centre field. Strands got a base on balls. Logan fled to Magee. Wallace hit down the first base line and was out. Wright. Hammond hit to Cooney who threw to first. But Wright dropped the ball and Daum scored. Reiger fled to Barrows.

Second Game

with honors about even and would have been one of the most enjoyable of the season but for the dampness and intense cold. At one time it looked as if the game wouldn't go the necessary five innings but the seven agreed upon were played and there wasn't any great kick when Umpire Duffy declared the game off at the end of the seventh. Both teams gave their pitcher excellent support. The score:

BARROWS WILL GO

Lowell Captain Will Play in Chicago

Captain Roland Barrows has reluctantly decided to go to Chicago at the close of the New England league season, although personally he would prefer to remain in Lowell even for less money than he will get in the big league in order to be near home. But baseball demands his services in the big league and his refusal to go would debar him from playing here or elsewhere. In Barrows the big league is getting a good man and the league authorities realize and admit that they made a mistake when they allowed him to go. He is a fine batter and fielder a superior base runner and a conscientious player who is doing his best at all times. He has made many friends and admirers in Lowell and along the N. E. league circuit who will follow his career closely.

CAPT. ROLAND BARROWS,
Who Goes to Chicago

DIAMOND NOTES

Catchers may come and catchers may go but good old Gus Daum goes on forever, always at the top or near it; always uncompromisingly catching a few more games than the others, always willing to go in and play first when the first baseman is knocked out; getting his bumps from foul tips and umpires with a smile and no kick coming, and thus it has ever been since the good old days when he and Gene Gokey owned the little town of Nashua. Just north of us when they were the star battery of Dr. Collins' team and had their pictures on everybody's parlor mantel in the up-river city. Yesterday Gus had a centennial anniversary, catching his 100th game of the season in the first game of the double-header. Three times foul tips hit his mask in the same place and after the game Gus discovered that he had received a cut over the left temple. "Going to catch the next game?"

queried the writer, of Gus after the first game.

"What another? Not likely. If any catcher in this league has caught more than Young Daum this season, I'd like to shake his hand and sympathize with him," replied Gus as he mopped his bruised thumb.

A few moments later Duffy's Adeline Patti Jones was heard announcing: "Batter-up for Lynn, S-S-Swanson and Daum."

"Gus picked up his mask and approaching the press box whispered: "You know what I just told you about not catching? Well, forget it. I was only joking, only I didn't know it. Daum proposes but Leonard disposes." And he went in and caught his usual fine game.

Here is Daum's record up to today's game: G, 101; ab, 310; r, 34; h, 92; tb, 115; batting av, .297; p, 0; 540; 104; e, 9; fielding av, .970; sh, 12; sb, 24. Any catcher who will go 101 games with only 9 errors out of 654 chances is some catcher and any player who rounds 100 games with a batting average of .297 is no mutt with the willow.

Both sides got after Umpire Duffy yesterday though if he made bad decisions he made them to Lowell's advantage, but the unkindest cut of all was after the first game when the Sage of Lawrence street after an animated verbal cross fire with the little umpire called him a "tramp printer." That did get Duffy's goat, and the libel laws forbid us stating what Duffy came back with.

That catch of Harry Huston's against the grand stand after running through a puddle of water was one of the classic things of the season. In order to protect himself from a crash Harry had to walk up the side of the stand as it were.

All four pitchers were there with the goods yesterday though Fred Reiger's seven bases on balls detracted from what otherwise would have been magnificent work.

Well, we slipped one over on Worcester, anyway.

In the opinion of some fans Jimmie and Lynn in Worcester Friday and

Gray is regarded by the other managers as a rank outsider and they are all out to keep the pennant away from Lowell. If this is so, we'll accept the challenge and ask to be shown.

Duggan is back from Frederickton and will play with Lowell for the remainder of the season.

If any other paper but a Worcester paper printed the following we would ignore it, but coming from the Worcester Telegram, relative to the Worcester team, its worth reading. The story runneth thus:

Catcher Milliman didn't work against the Busters yesterday. Maybe it was because the management wanted to give Perkins a chance or maybe it was because Milliman's arm is a bit lame, which his throwing Saturday might indicate.

Maybe it was for another reason. A whisper was heard after Saturday's game that maybe Milliman handed Aubrey a tip on what was coming in that 16th inning, when Aubrey laid to a curve and wallowed out the best bit of the game.

It would be rather mean to accuse a catcher of any such thing if there wasn't ground for it, and there may be no more ground for the story than there is for many a tale of the field that gets going. But some of the players were saying Aubrey and Milliman are great friends, live on the same street when at home during the winter, and maintain their friendship every where. Almost everybody was anxious to see some sort of a break in the game, which was going to such unusual length.

"It was an easy foul of Aubrey's that Milliman muffed just before the hit was made, an easy foul to miff, but then, of course, it's the easy ones that often give the greatest bother."

"All of which might make anyone hearing the rumor think maybe there was some foundation for it."

SPITBALL HASN'T AFFECTED WALSH'S ARM, AS RECENT GAME PROVES

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—There is one only man to reach first base was Clyde Engle, who got there on a pass. The has not killed professionally, and he is only other boxman to accomplish this "Big Ed" Walsh of the White Sox. He has been using the wet delivery since he broke into the big league many years ago. Season after season we have been hearing that he is due to decline, but here he is still twirling as well as, if not better than ever. On Aug. 27 Walsh didn't allow the Boston Red Sox either a run or a hit, and the Saturday. As for Lowell, bring on the Pied Pipers!

Lowell will play a double header at Lawrence Friday and Lawrence at Lowell Saturday. Special cars both ways.

Umpire Duffy chased Buzick from the coach line for tipping off signals. Then Buzick got fresh and was banished from the grounds. Buzick at the present time is a good coach-line pitcher, but not so much on the mound.

That error of Wright's in the ninth inning of the first game might have cost Lowell the game and the pennant. Happily it did not.

Coming in on the car yesterday, I overheard a fan confidentially telling his companion: "That's the d— schedule I ever heard of and that man Burkett had it fixed that way. He knew that it was going to be close at the finish and he had the sched. made up so that Lowell would have to fight a strong club like Lawrence." It's a good bet, too, that Jesse framed it up with the weather man to give us this weather, though we fooled him yesterday. Jesse is certainly the Desperate Desmond of the N. E. league.

Way back in 1904 Billy Hamilton ran the N. E. league record for run-getting up to 112, the highest number before or since. Yesterday Alie Moulton had scored 111 runs; only one behind the record of years and he has some 15 more games in which to build up a new record.

HOWELL WON BOUT

Ray Bronson Was Given a Surprise

BOSTON, Aug. 30.—Tommy Howell of Philadelphia, who had given the local sports a couple of surprises before, handed out another one, last night at the Armory A. A. by winning the decision over Ray Bronson of Indianapolis in the feature bout of 12 rounds.

The award was won by such a big margin that even the fans who had made Bronson a top-heavy favorite did not make a kick about the decision.

In view of the work that Bronson has done here, in this country and Australia and England, he was looked on as a sure winner, but there were some of the fans who "kidded" Howell's chances, after the way he boxed here against Dick Nelson and Young Donahue.

That Bronson is not the boxer he was when here before, was very evident from his work last night. He did not display the snap and cleverness that he previously showed.

Still, Howell is such an awkward boxer that he is likely to bother almost any opponent. All through the contest Howell kept his left arm well extended, and his shoulder was raised so high that it was a difficult job to land on his jaw.

Only in two rounds did Bronson have the advantage. In the second round he landed a short right on Howell's jaw, and the latter staggered, but by covering up he managed to keep Bronson from following with any more dangerous punches.

HOWELL JABS REPEATEDLY

In every round Howell jabbed Bronson repeatedly, and often when in close he would shoot a right uppercut to Bronson's jaw. In most of the exchanges Howell showed to advantage, and when they went into a clinch Bronson would plant the right on the kidneys, while Howell would send the right to the wind.

Bronson frequently tried to land a left jab on Howell, but most of the blows went over Howell's shoulder. The Hooster boxer often tried to land the right on the jaw, but only a few times did he succeed, and the ones he landed were a bit too high to count.

K. O. Howell used good judgment, in getting away from the right. A couple of times Bronson tried to land the pivot blow, but Howell blocked them off.

The Gunker city boxer took the lead from the start, and he boxed so well that Bronson never got on even terms with him. That Howell showed as well as he did was remarkable in view of what Bronson forced him to do before he would box. They agreed to weigh 140 pounds at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Bronson was at weight, but Howell was three pounds over. Bronson made him take off the three pounds, and Howell had to do some hard training to do it.

When the referee pointed to Howell as the winner everyone was satisfied.

AN EQUATIC FEAT

Performed by Howard Cove of Centralville

On Saturday afternoon, Howard Cove, a nineteen year old Centralville young man, set a stiff pace to follow. He ran his canoe into the water at West's bathhouse on the Merrimack, and paddled to Tyngsboro bridge.

Then, without pausing, he turned his canoe over to Sam Doherty and dove into the water. He swam back to the bathhouse, seven and one-half miles. The long paddle, alone, is a hard grind, but combined with the swim, makes a feat of severe endurance. He was in the water four hours and fifteen minutes, and swam against a strong, cold wind. Cove is well known among athletic circles, especially canoeists, and has the distinction of owning the classiest canoe on the river Merrimack.

We do not know what will be the attitude of socialists in regard to the new city charter, although a number of socialists have come out in favor of the new form of government. This was to be expected for the reason that the municipality as it will then be governed will be the nearest approach to the cooperative commonwealth that we know of. The voters are as stockholders and have a voice in the election of all officers. Not only this, they can oust the elected officials and nullify measures adopted by the municipal board; and this we surmise is as much as the citizens of a cooperative commonwealth could hope to do. The new form of government places absolute power in the hands of the people and nowhere else. The socialists, we surmise, want good and economic government as well as anybody else, and for that reason it will be to their own advantage to vote for the new charter.

THE ANNEXATION BOGEY

The use of the annexation bogey against reciprocity in Canada is an example of the unfair tactics being adopted by the conservatives in efforts to defeat reciprocity by any means foul or fair. They might as well talk of the annexation of Africa to the United States at the present time. The peace treaties signed between this country and England and France and likely to be ratified by the United States senate with slight amendment gives the lie to this claptrap invented to confuse the voters and arouse suspicion in the minds of the people.

THE THEATRE PANIC

There should be a law making it a criminal offense for anybody to shout "Fire" in a theatre or any other place where a large number of people are assembled in an auditorium. Twenty-six lives were lost in a panic at a little theatre at Cannonsburg, Pa., and about the same number injured as a result of a fire panic started by a boy when in reality there was no fire. Nobody waited to find out but all rushed towards the exit only to pile in a heap at the bottom of the stairs. It was a most horrible occurrence and yet such as may happen in any picture theatre where the films go wrong and somebody in the audience gets frightened at a few sparks. It should be said, however, that the Massachusetts state police insist upon extreme precautions against explosives in all picture houses in this state. It is not known whether the boy who caused the panic was killed, but a law imposing a severe penalty for such foolishness as he displayed on that occasion might prevent such occurrences in the future.

DEFENDING MURDER AND SUICIDE

A man named Edward Bennett of South Thomaston, Me., a graduate of Oxford university and apparently in full possession of his senses, decided to kill his three children and himself for the sole reason that his wife having died some time before, he wanted to join her in the life beyond and did not want to leave the children behind. He left a long letter defending his course with arguments which, although based on wrong premises, could not be framed by an unsound mind.

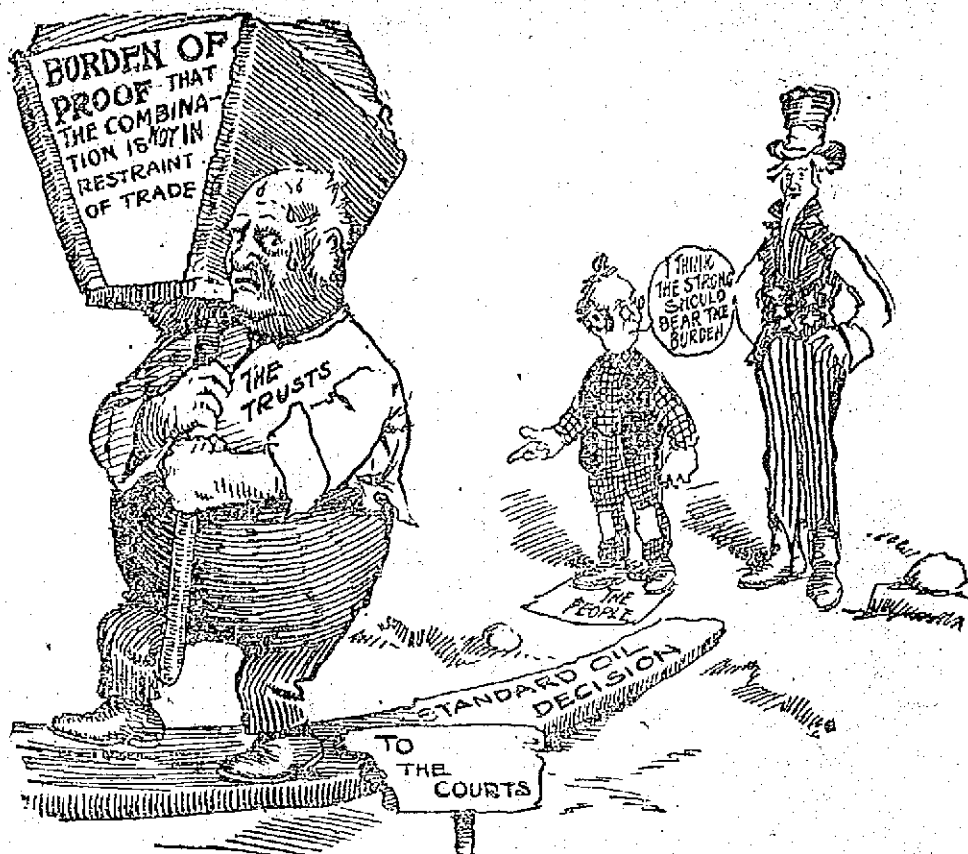

Here is another case of what we have repeatedly referred to in these columns, the total absence of any sense of moral responsibility for one's own life or that of those dependent upon him. Here was a father who had lost his wife, a most natural occurrence. Instead of taking courage and doing the best he could for his children, he whined for his lost wife and after mature deliberation decided to kill the three children and then to end his own life.

The murder was one of the most cold-blooded on record, and what makes the crime more horrifying still is, that the father appeared to assume divine approval of his acts and that he could justify his crime when face to face with God. He even belittled the crime by saying in his letter that it was not murder, and that he wished he had never committed any greater sin.

That crime and the sentiments by which this educated man tried to justify it should bear a lesson to others on the moral responsibility of parents for the lives of their children as well as for their own lives. This man repudiated the idea that he committed murder in killing his children. He claimed to be only removing them for their own good. His line of reasoning would justify murder to ease pain, to end sorrow or to avoid disgrace, all of which is a very dangerous doctrine; and yet we see it here advocated by a highly educated man.

It is to be hoped that his example will not move the weak-minded and the hair-brained to similar acts of murder and suicide. Had this man possessed a clear idea of his responsibility to the Creator for his own life and for the lives of his children, and if in addition to this he had possessed a healthy faith in the doctrine of future rewards and punishments, we do not believe he would have deliberately decided to commit such a crime while in his right mind.

Yet when we consider the motives under which many suicides and murders similar to these are committed we find many resulting from the lack of a due sense of moral responsibility. This is frequently apparent in the fact that suicides and to a less extent murderers while planning the most heinous crimes in the calendar, invoke the blessing of heaven upon their foul deeds. Where any such belief prevails the man or woman who feels disappointment or adversity is liable to commit some crime such as did this man at Thomaston, Me. The suicide germ is one that should be stamped out by every means possible. The victim escapes earthly punishment and hence the only way suicide can be prevented is by denouncing it as the resort of cowards, a crime fully as bad as murder and never justified by any circumstance or condition of life. The fact seems to be forgotten that either crime is a violation of the divine command, "Thou shalt not kill."

THE TOWN OF HAY

The town of Hay is far away. The town of Hay is far. Between its hills of green and gray Its winding meadows are. Within the quiet town of Hay Is many a quiet glen, And there by many a shaded way Are homes of quiet men: And there are many hearts always That turn with longing night and day, Back to the town of Hay.

Within the good old town of Hay There was no pride of birth, And no man there pursued his way A stranger in the earth; And none were high and none were low. Of golden hair or gray, And each would grieve at others' woes Down in the town of Hay; And many a world-scorned soul today Mid crowd and thousands far away Weeps for the town of Hay.

A road leads from the town of Hay To a world of din, And winds and wanders far away— And many walked therein; Far in the crowds of toll and stress Their restless footsteps stray— Their souls have lost the quietness Of that old town of Hay; But in some respite of the fray, In transient dreams they float away, Back to the town of Hay.

Old men are in that town of Hay, Amid its quiet trees, Who dream of strong sons far away Upon the stormy seas; Old mothers, when the twilight dew The woodbine leaves have pearled, Dream of their boys who wander through The wilderness of the world. And tears fall in the twilight gray And prayers go up at close of day In that old town of Hay.

A hillside in the town of Hay Is slanting toward the sun, And gathered 'neath its headstone gray Are sleepers, one by one; And there are tears in distant lands, And grief too deep for tears, And farwells waved from phantom hands Across the gulf of years; And when they place that headstone gray, It crushes hearts so far away From that old town of Hay. —Sam Walter Foss.

The superstition of the horseshoe. "Constant Reader," is the survival of the superstition that prevailed in olden times that a horseshoe nailed over the door would keep away witches. There was in the more superstitious days, also, a legend concerning an episode in the career of W. Dunstan which may have had some influence. Dunstan was noted for his skill in shoeing horses, and it is said that the devil one day asked to have his single customer was, did him tight to a wall and purposely put him to so much pain that the devil reared for mercy. Dunstan at last consented to release him on the terms that he was never again to enter a place where a horseshoe was displayed.

If Simon Lynch will amend his platform, agreeing not to introduce any legislation whatever, and to vote against legislation of every kind, our protection against fool legislation will be more secure. All roads will lead to Nashua on Labor Day. On Monday, Sept. 4, the Great Aviation meet at Boston will close with a cross-country flight in which all the birdmen, 20 or more in number, will start for the big cash prizes offered. With decent weather, it is a sure thing that practically all the starters will reach the first place of landing, Nashua, and most of them will start from there. This makes Nashua the best place of the four corners of the great inter-state race to see the machines.

For the nominal sum of 50 cents one can enter the gates and get a view of the birdmen at close range. Elsewhere he would be charged double the price for this alone. Reports of the starts at Atlantic, Worcester and Providence, and the finishes at each point, will be telegraphed to Nashua, and announced on the grounds, so that all within the gates may keep a personal record of the movements of the fliers, and have the final results at first hand. The airships will land at the oval, inside the race track. All except those connected with the machines will be kept outside a wire fence, which has been installed the entire distance round the track. This fence does not obstruct the view from any direction, and if the number in attendance reached 50,000, expect everyone will have a good chance to see the machines.

Special parking has been provided for automobiles, the occupants of which will have a clear view of the aviation field. After the flight, all the attractions of the State Agricultural fair will be at the elbows of those who have passed the gates. A complete horse, cattle and farm produce show, an automobile show, poultry and pet stock show, and special dog show under American Kennel club rules, are a small part of the good things in the fairgrounds.

There will be horse racing daily, a firemen's muster on Wednesday, Sept. 6, and a Marathon race Thursday, Sept. 7, the last day of the fair. Each day there will be several repetitions of high double free diving act, with performances of 150 trained animals, Japanese juggling and acrobatic work.

The mole long midway will contain countless attractions. The New Hampshire state fair at Nashua this year will be the biggest attraction of the kind offered in central New England this year. The throngs of people who attend will be enormous, and they will be well worth coming to see by themselves.

Trolley cars are to run directly to the grounds. There are to be extra trains and trolley service at reduced rates.

THE BAY STATE TEAM

Was Fourth in the Rifle Shoot

CAMP PERRY, O., Aug. 30.—The

Massachusetts rifle team did not win the national trophy in the competition which closed here yesterday, but it did beat out every other state team in the country and took fourth place, being beaten only by the U. S. marines, who took first honors, the U. S. infantry and the U. S. navy.

At that the Massachusetts team was beaten out only in the skirmish run, the three leading teams making phenomenal scores. At the close of the 500-yard shooting Massachusetts was in third place, with the infantry and marines leading, and at the finish of the 100-yard shooting Massachusetts was in second place, being only 18 points below the infantry.

The way the Massachusetts men shot at the range made the other teams take notice. When the last two men, Keough and Reid, laid down the team was only three points below the winners. But at this time the conditions changed, and all the pair could do was 73, while the last pair of the infantry rolled up 81.

The shooting of the Bay State team was most consistent throughout the match, as will be seen by the scores. Sergt. Jeffs was top man with 281, an average of 47 at each range. Sergt. Schofield came next with 272 and Sergt. Van Amburg next with 270. Few men on the field beat these scores, and in fact, Jeffs' score was reported to be the best. The winners and scores: Class A—U. S. marine corps first, 3150; U. S. infantry second, 3113; U. S. navy, third, 3113; Massachusetts fourth, 3103; Ohio fifth, 3084.

Class B—Kansas first, 3050; West Virginia second, 3027; Arizona third, 2978; Florida fourth, 2963. Class C—Tennessee first, 2851; Delaware second, 2819; Virginia third, 2797; North Dakota fourth, 2788.

Class A—Marines in the national trophy and $150, infantry $350, navy $300, Massachusetts $250.

Class B—Kansas gets Hilton trophy

MOST COMMON SKIN DISEASE

A great medical authority says that eczema is the most important, most annoying and most common of all skin troubles; that one-third of all skin diseases are eczema in some form, and that proper treatment will always relieve and cure it. Sometimes it is called salt rheum, moist tetter and various other names. The best known treatment is to first stop the itching, and then proceed to heal up the sores. That is exactly what Cadum, the new remedy does, and it acts so quickly that relief is felt as soon as it is applied. Try a 16-cent box, and if you trouble is eczema, Cadum will help you immediately. It is also good for redness, pimples, blotches, rash, scaly skin, roughness, chafings, acne, sores, ulcers, eruptions, lumps, tetter, itch, herpes, scurfs, ringworm, etc.

Class C—Tennessee takes Soldier of Marathon trophy and $300, Delaware $200, Virginia $150, Dakota $150.

Bronze medals go to each man in each class.

The Massachusetts team members are much elated over their success, especially over leading all the other state teams and the U. S. cavalry.

Adit. Gen. Pearson, who is here, said he was perfectly satisfied with the work of the team, which, he added, was most creditable.

Of the four winning teams, three did all the preliminary practice at the Wakefield range.

Connecticut, Rhode Island and Vermont fell away behind yesterday and finished far down in the list.

The Massachusetts team last night is celebrating and is being heartily congratulated on beating out such teams as Ohio, New York, Wisconsin and Minnesota. The team will leave for home today.

NOMINATION PAPERS

Were Filed by Between 7000 and 8000 Candidates

BOSTON, Aug. 30.—Between 7000 and 8000 candidates for nomination for offices to be filled at the state election had filed nomination papers with the secretary of the commonwealth when the time for filing closed at 5 p. m. yesterday. This is between 4000 and 6000 less than the number expected, which means that fully 2000 offices which might be voted for at the primaries on Sept. 28 will be without regularly named candidates.

Most of the offices for which no candidates appear are ward and town committees, which are regarded as of little importance under the new direct primary system. There are several representative and senatorial districts in which there are no contests, and according to the secretary of state there may be many more by the time the papers are all properly scrutinized.

Hundreds of papers which came in Saturday, Monday and yesterday must stand as they are, the time for correction of mistakes having expired with the expiration of the time for filing. The experience in the secretary of state's office has been that at least 5 per cent. of the papers are defective and whenever time permitted the candidates have been notified and the necessary corrections made. But in the case of the papers coming in the last rush this was impossible.

In all cases where a candidate fails to get his name on the official ballot, either because he neglected to file papers or because his papers were defective, he still has the privilege of running on stickers. This will be of little avail, of course, where there is a contest, but it affords a ready means of filling all vacancies. In any district, for instance, where the democrats have no candidate on the official primary ballot, all they will have to do will be to have a few men go to the primary and mark their ballots for the man who is wanted. That would give him the same right to a place on the election ballot as if he had gone to the trouble of getting out nomination papers.

There are 11 democratic and 10 republican candidates for the six places on the state ticket, and in all except two cases the democratic candidates have also filed papers under the designation "Democratic Progressive." The two exceptions are Frank J. Donahue, anti-machine candidate for secretary of the commonwealth, and John F. Duffy, anti-machine candidate for attorney-general.

There is quite a mix-up over the democratic progressive nominations, which Gov. Foss and the state machine desired should be made in all cases. The story was printed in a democratic newspaper that the state machine had decided not to file democratic progressive papers. This turned out to be untrue, but when the word was passed around to the candidates on the machine slate it was found that many of them had destroyed their progressive papers as a result of the newspaper story.

The machine is now sending out word that every candidate on the Foss slate who has not filed democratic progressive papers must secure the nomination by means of stickers. The idea is to prevent republican candidates from getting the progressive nomination and thus standing a chance of getting democratic votes. Later it may be decided to withdraw the democratic progressive nomination in the case of the candidate for governor, thus killing Mr. Foss' newly-created party. There are many, however, who think the head of the ticket would lose nothing by having his name printed twice on the ballot.

cian, cabinet-maker, engineer, automobile repairing and architectural draughtsman.

In order to carry out this work it will be necessary to set aside part of the old Moody school for textile instruction.

Each trade course will consist of instruction in both the shop and the classroom. Work in the shop will consist of practical work, and the work will consist in the classroom of English, civics, mathematics related study and science.

Work for the Girls

Very careful consideration has been given to the question of industrial education for girls. The two most important phases of such education are: training and care in the management of the home and definite preparation for some kind of industry.

Every girl is associated with a home and in later life may be called upon to take charge of a home. To perform her proper work in this sphere intelligently and economically, training in housekeeping is necessary. It is no longer possible for girls to obtain this in many of the homes of today, so that, if any gain it at all, they must acquire it elsewhere.

Outside of textile work girls are not employed in the various industries—millinery, dressmaking, department stores, machine operating industries till they are at least sixteen. An increasing number of girls are obliged to go to work either as soon as they reach the age of fourteen years or within a few years afterwards in order to support themselves or assist in the support of the rest of the family. To meet the needs of such girls, a definite course in housekeeping, dressmaking, millinery, power machine work and salesmanship should be provided for the girls between 14 and 17 who can afford to remain unproductive. Part time or full season courses should be provided afterwards for girls.

Evening courses in plain sewing, shirt waist work, skirt making, teaching mothers how to make children's clothes and housekeeping should be established for working girls during the winter.

This work may be carried on to advantage in the Morrill school.

About Leather Trades:

The leather industry is so highly specialized that any fair knowledge of the whole process of manufacturing a single shoe involves a knowledge of from fifty to seventy-five operations or occupations. Often a man spends the whole period of his employment in a shoe factory, working at a single one of these fifty or seventy-five processes. The matter is still further complicated by the fact that these operations vary with the different systems of machinery used and the different classes of shoe manufactured. There are about three hundred and fifty different kinds of shoe machinery in common use.

In view of the complicated character of the shoe industry I think it is not advisable to establish at the present time any classes in this work. The need of industrial education in the shoe industry is apparent and will be met later by the school in the form of evening and part time classes.

The character of the day school determines the conditions of admission. Since it is an industrial school, the pupils should be open to all boys and girls who can profit by the instruction. The courses of study are planned with the following conditions in mind: That while the school will offer a three years' course in the useful arts, it recognizes the fact that many children cannot afford to give so much time to education beyond fourteen years of age. Hence the work of the school should be planned so that the work of each year is, so far as it goes, complete in itself, that nothing is taught on the theory that it will be of value at some later period in the course. So that at whatever time the pupil leaves school he will have had, up to that time, the best preparation which the school could give.

Equipment of Machinery

The school must have its own full equipment of machinery. The principal of the school has already secured sufficient equipment such as contributions from local and foreign manufacturers to start the textile, steam engineering and automobile courses in addition to a great many smaller machines and tools for the other departments. The machinery contributed up to the present time is new and up to date and valued at upwards of $10,000.

In addition to the above it will be necessary to purchase machine and to me during the summer while conducting this investigation, also the kindness of the press and many social workers of the city who have assisted me to carry on this investigation.

Sketch of Teachers

The following brief sketch of the history and qualifications of the teachers elected to the new industrial school was read by Committeeman Shapson:

Mr. Charles F. Chase, nominated for head of the machine department, is a graduate of the New Bedford High School, served his apprenticeship in engineering in the United States navy, and is an all round machinist of 16 years standing. For two years he has been a teacher in the New Bedford industrial school, and has most effectively "made good" in this position. He is the only one of the candidates who has had actual and successful experience in a school just like our own, and it is this fact which so commended him to the committee.

Mr. Fred E. Wiggin, carpentry teacher, is a skilled mechanic and has worked for various builders in Lowell and Chelmsford for several years. In preparation for the work of teaching he attended the Massachusetts Institute of Technology last year, taking the wood and metal work course. He has not taught, but he has had both the practical experience and the training of a first class school. He resides at 710 Stevens street.

Mr. Clarence E. Lescure, 18 Midland street, nominated for teacher of power machines, graduated from the Lowell High school in 1903 and from the evening drawing school the same year. In 1903 he was in the Lowell Textile school, and for the last two years he has been in the Polytechnic Institute at Worcester. He has had much practical work as an electrician, has had steam engineering work at the pumping station, and has worked at forging, pattern making, automobile repairing, etc., in large variety of practical experience.

Miss Alice L. Gookin, nominated for the position of academic branches, has been a teacher in the Lincoln school since 1902. She is a graduate of the Lowell Normal school and of the Lowell Training school for teachers. She and the approval of Supt. Whitcomb. The teachers are all hired for two seasons a day, during the days when the other schools are in session, and for two evenings each week when other evening schools are in session.

Non Resident Boys and Girls

Supt. Whitcomb referred to the matter of tuition for non-resident boys and girls attending the industrial school and on the recommendation of Principal Dooley the annual fee was fixed at $100 for pupils attending the full day course, the fee for the evening and part time courses to be fixed proportionately. The fee must be paid by the town where the non-resident pupil resides and the state reimburses the town to the extent of one-half of the fee.

Mr. Whitcomb's Election

When the election of a superintendent of schools was taken up, Mr. Whitcomb withdrew from the room and his election followed. The chair appointed Mr. Pyno a committee of one to advise Mr. Whitcomb of his election and to escort him in. Mr. Whitcomb said he was downright glad to be elected again. He said he had been elected quite a number of times and he allowed that he was pretty nearly done of the profession in that respect. He said that each successive election made him the more thankful and he was especially pleased to be elected this year because of the industrial school work in which, he said, he is very much interested. He complimented Mr. Dooley and told the board members that they had made no mistake in their choice of a principal for the industrial school. He said that he and Mr. Dooley would get along swimmingly together.

Presented Minority Report

Mr. Goward presented a minority report for the committee on rules, recommending that all special teachers be put on tenure of office, the same as the regular teachers, instead of being elected every year. After being elected three times, the regular teachers serve until resignation or dismissal, and the proposed change of rules would put all of the evening school teachers and all of the special teachers on the same basis.

When the motion came on the ac-ferred to the committee on school-houses and hygiene, with power to act.

Supervision of Penmanship

The board had voted to proceed to the election of a supervisor of penmanship, and somebody asked who were the candidates. There was a moment's lull in proceedings and then Mr. Farrington said that he could furnish candidates if the other members were shy on timber, and he nominated John T. McLaughlin.

Dr. Lambert asked if it was not required that the superintendent make a recommendation of a candidate. Mr. Whitcomb said he had not expected to nominate at this meeting and would prefer to have more time and it was further suggested that while the state law requires that the superintendent shall nominate, the rules of the school board also require that the board of supervisors shall recommend.

The chair said the board had voted to proceed to the election, and there was nothing else to be done.

When the ballot was taken, John T. McLaughlin received four of the eight ballots cast, while the three candidates mentioned by Mr. Whitcomb as having seen him and another candidate, nominated by a democratic member of the board, received one vote each, and there was no choice.

A motion to proceed to another ballot was lost. Adjourned.

MAYOR FITZGERALD

PUTS THE BAN ON THEATRE WEDDINGS

BOSTON, Aug. 30.—Boston theatrical managers have been warned against permitting marriage ceremonies to be performed upon the stage in future, according to a statement made last night by Mayor Fitzgerald, from his summer home in Falmouth.

"It is my opinion," the mayor said, "that the marriage service should be carried on with dignity and a proper appreciation on the part of those joining in wedlock of its solemn responsibilities. Anyone who will take the pains to glance at the figures in our divorce courts must be convinced that it is time for those entrusted with power to curb the present tendency to make light of this most sacred obligation."

While the mayor does not make the positive statement, he intimates that the requirements of marriages in connection with theatrical performances in the future will be sufficient cause for revocation of the theatre's license.

The School Faculty

The faculty of the school should be thoroughly competent. The academic teacher should be experienced in teaching and familiar with industrial and trade conditions. The trade teacher should possess at least five years' practical training in a specific trade in addition to a good business education. In order to establish the school it will be necessary to employ three women for the girls' department and three men in the boys' department.

Instructor in academic branches. Instructor in housekeeping. Instructor in dressmaking and millinery.

Instructor in machine shop. Instructor in carpentry and building construction. Instructor in steam engineering and electricity.

has also attended summer schools at Hyannis, Mass., and at Columbia University, and has taken a three years' evening course at the Lowell Textile school, and a year at the college of St. Elizabeth. Her success as an academic teacher has been notable, and the effort she has made to fit herself for higher work deserves all the reward she can receive.

Miss Bramhall, nominated for head of the housekeeping department, is a graduate of the Lowell High school, class of 1904, and of the two-year normal course in domestic science at Drexel Institute, Philadelphia. She also holds a teacher's certificate in domestic science in Baltimore, Md., and Worcester, Mass. Her experience includes some outside work while at Drexel, and a year in the domestic science department of Sweet Briar college, Va., and for practical work she managed a tea house for the summer months of 1910 at Amherst, Mass.

Dressmaking and Millinery

The teacher in the department of dressmaking and millinery was not elected last night. Mr. Whitcomb stated that more than a score had applied for the position, but that some of them have not yet received their certificates from the state. He said it would be well to let the nomination go over, but advised that the selection be made before the next meeting of the full board, as the services of the teacher would be required before that time.

The selection was left by vote of the board, to the committee on teachers, with full power to act, subject to the recommendation of Principal Dooley.

acceptance of the report, the democratic members voted in the negative, and as Mr. Higley was absent, the vote was a tie, and the motion was deferred to a motion to reconsider at the next meeting.

Evening Schools

The date of opening the evening schools was fixed for Monday, October 2.

It was voted to hold the next meeting of the school board on Wednesday, September 27, the date of the regular meeting for September coming on-caucus night.

On motion, it was voted to leave the assignment of the permanent substitute teachers to the superintendent of schools.

Teachers' Resignations

Resignations were accepted and votes of thanks for faithful and efficient service passed as follows:

Miss Mary J. Alger, principal of the Worthen street school; Miss Ida M. Bennett of the Agawam street school; Miss Caroline H. McGarvey of the Bartlett school; Edwin M. Roberts, teacher of manual training in the high school.

Leave of absence for one year was granted to Miss Helen Lambert of the high school, Miss Balch of the Edson school, and Miss Gookin of the Green school.

CARVILLE ARRESTED OF INTEREST TO WOMEN IS NOT A CANDIDATE

He Will be Charged With Breaking and Entering

Edward Carville of 144 Rock street, this city, was arrested in Portland, Me., last night while trying to pawn a watch marked "Rose M. Hobbs," and said to belong to a Mrs. Chase, residing at 147 Rock street. He was taken to police headquarters and upon being searched two rings, a gold stickpin and other articles were found on his person.

Two men who were with him at the time were also arrested on suspicion of larceny but Carville said that he could not remember the names of the men.

met them on the way from Lowell and that they were going to Ardenbrook county together.

Police Capt. McDonough of Portland notified the local police and this morning Inspector Thomas McClellan left for Portland and will bring Carville back to Lowell on a warrant charging him with breaking and entering and larceny.

It is alleged that Carville broke into Mrs. Chase's house and stole considerable jewelry.

KNIVES WERE USED

Serious Trouble in Sullivan's Court Last Night

Two stabbing affrays in Sullivan's court, off Fenwick street, last night caused consternation among the residents who reside in that section and incidentally gave the police considerable trouble. It is alleged that the second assault came as the result of the first one. There are several factions who reside in the vicinity of Fenwick street and they are disposed to quarrel and but for the presence of the police last night there might have been a race riot. Two of the alleged assailants were arrested and brought before the court this morning but the third man made his escape.

The men arrested were Andrzej Stanislawski and Philip Joe. The former was charged with assaulting John Murawski and the latter with assaulting Agata Kucharska and Agata Kuczar. None of the persons stabbed were badly hurt for after having the wounds dressed at the Lowell hospital they returned to their homes and were able to appear in police court this morning.

According to the police Murawski left his house in Sullivan's court about 9:30 o'clock last night and going to a nearby saloon purchased a can of beer and was returning with the wet goods when Stanislawski and Wlodzislaw Sopal pounced upon him and one of the men stabbed him between the shoulders and the other stabbed him back of the left ear.

Murawski was so excited that he did not realize he had been stabbed until he reached home when some of the occupants of the house noticed the blood flowing from his ear. In taking off his clothes in order to dress the wound behind the ear it was found that the back of his outer shirt was stained with blood and an examination showed that there was a knife wound in the back.

His wounds were dressed but later it was decided to send him to the hospital and he was taken to the Lowell hospital where his injuries were dressed.

The matter was reported to the police and Patrolman Markham succeeded in arresting Stanislawski but Sopal made his escape.

The news of the assault was quickly circulated and it is alleged that members of the other faction sided on the war path and armed with deadly weapons laid in wait for the competitors of the alleged assailants.

Philip Joe heard of the fight and during the time which it is alleged he was lying in wait for some of the friends of the alleged assailants he visited several liquor saloons and shortly before eleven o'clock returned to his home in Sullivan's court and was BOSTON, Aug. 30.—It is probable that Boston baseball fans will witness today one of the most interesting duels in the history of baseball. Opposed to each other in one of the games of a double header between Boston and Pittsburgh will be Marty O'Toole, the youngest for whose release from St. Paul the Pirates recently paid $25,000, the highest price ever paid for a single player, and "Cy" Young, the "grand old man of baseball," veteran of more than 500 games and 500 victories. It will be O'Toole's debut with Pittsburgh, an event eagerly watched for since he joined the club.

A WOMAN LAWYER

Who is a Good Carpenter as Well

Mrs. Jeanno B. Marion of Queens, N. Y., recently shingled her own roof. Mrs. Marion was admitted to the bar several years ago and works outdoors on her house during the summer to gain health for her "shut in" office work during the winter.

"Oh, yes," she said, smiling, "I could afford to have this work done by a man, but I want to do it myself. In Denmark, where I was born, there are many women carpenters, and I am proud of the fact that I can drive a nail straight."

"What could be better diversion after hammering at the law all winter than hammering shingles on my own roof?"

The only woman in the south to occupy the position of sheriff is Miss Gertrude Hendricks of Anniston, Ala. One reason she was appointed a deputy sheriff and placed in charge of the office was that there is always about a car load of contraband whisky, beer and wine held awaiting orders from the courts in the county, which is under prohibition, and Sheriff Brooks wanted a woman who could guard this without the temptation to which his force of men have been subjected, and some of whom have time and again yielded.

Part of her duties also consists in visiting theatres and picture shows in the capacity of censor to suppress things when they get too broad.

Mrs. Hugh Knapp of Washington is making money with a machine which holds eight passengers. She conducts the parties herself and makes two trips a day, always with every seat taken. Her car is modish, has pretty, bright cushions, and the feminine touch is apparent everywhere.

"The women of Paris have practically discarded underwear. With their empire dresses—and most of their dresses are empire—they do not wear either corsets or petticoats, simply some sort of a brassiere and then tight and then their gowns," says a fashion expert recently returned from Paris.

Mme. Georgette Le Blanc, wife of Maurice Maeterlinck, has formulated ten rules for the guidance of a successful wife, as follows:

First—Never allow hirelings to tend your husband in what concerns his bodily welfare.

Second—See that his clothes are ready each day and befitting the season of the year.

Third—Assume the qualities of a barometer that you may foresee the electric disturbances which visit every menage.

Fourth—When your husband is in a bad temper don't develop similar symptoms, but when he is merry imitate him unflinchingly.

Fifth—Don't fondle him before meal-times. Kisses to a hungry man are as soap bubbles to a parched throat.

Sixth—Use your tongue only in agreement. Disapproval is best expressed with the eyes.

Seventh—If your husband has the gout don't insist on walking.

Eighth—If you wish to convince him that you are a better actress than Bernhardt and a sprightlier dancer than Pavlova show him that you are a better cook than Escoffier.

Ninth—A wife's duties are, among others, to smooth over domestic tiffs—a man never admits he is in the wrong—to attend to the household finances and to have an eye for the week after next.

Tenth—Finally, never lose sight of fact in making all these sacrifices that if man supports the family, woman is his superior in far more ways than he is hers.

The only woman wireless operator on the great lakes is Miss Emma Nant-

DISCONTENTED WIFE

Makes Life Too Easy for Herself

The discontented wife is so much of a real social factor nowadays that we are hearing about her on all sides. The main trouble with the American woman who is discontented, all agree, is that she evades the hard side of life and therefore has too much leisure and too little interests and responsibilities in life.

You rarely hear of a busy woman being unhappy. She has no time for that. The mother of six children scrubbing at a wash tub is apt to be more at peace than Mrs. Social Climber, who lives in an apartment hotel with no tradesmen to worry over and no family cares to annoy her.

Because her life is so empty the latter takes up the social craze and suffers more at it and works harder than most men.

The woman who has millions to spend can find plenty of interest—travel, expensive athletics, motoring, etc.

It is the wife of small means who is fairly well dressed, fairly well lodged and left with a great deal of time on her hands and no money to spend who spends her life in morbid dreams and imaginings. Our women should imitate the foreign women and take an interest in life.

Women on the other side of the water are continually studying to improve themselves and take an interest in the subjects of the day.

They are artistic, musical, poetic and always interested in every thing be it science or fashions. Dress and disposition do not preoccupy the prominent positions they do with our women. They understand the art of wearing an old gown and shining with new thought. They are always creating, never repining.

They would never out of respect to their complexions and power of attractiveness allow themselves to become bored.

Let the American woman who is bored choose an interest in life that will do her or some one else good; that is the secret of removing the national feminine ennui which seems to be overwhelming us.

LAMB AND TOMATO MAYONNAISE
Half a pound of tomatoes, one yolk of egg, desiccated vinegar, two tablespoonsful and a half of salad oil, slices of cold boiled lamb, watercress. Slice the tomatoes, cut each half and place in a dish. Take the yolk of one egg, place it in a basin, stir gently with a wooden spoon, adding the oil drop by drop until a thick cream is prepared. Add the vinegar until the sauce is reduced to a nice consistency. This sauce must be made in a cool place. Spread a little of this mayonnaise over each half of tomato, let it cool again and garnish the dish with fresh watercress. Cut all the slices of lamb to the same size and arrange them down the center of the dish. Mashed potatoes or a good green salad may accompany this dish.

CHOCOLATE CUSTARD
Mix three ounces of powdered chocolate smoothly with one gill of cold milk. Boil three-quarters of a pint of milk and stir in the mixed chocolate. Boil well, adding four ounces of sugar. Leave the mixture till cool, then beat in three eggs and flavor with a few drops of essence of vanilla. Pour it all into a saucepan, stand this in a second pan half full of boiling water and stir until the eggs begin to thicken, then pour into small custard glasses and when cold and garnish with whipped cream and crystallized violets.

TO KEEP YOLKS OF EGGS

When the whites of eggs have been used and the yolks are not wanted until the next day, beat them up with a little warm water and then stand in a cool place.

THE HOBBLE EVENING COAT
This lightly fitted evening coat designed to show off a stunning figure of black chiffon trimmed with heavy silver embroidery. The odd black silk bowties are held in with drapings of white silk.

Governor Foss Not in the Presidential Contest

BOSTON, Aug. 30.—Gov. Foss returned to Boston yesterday professing as much confidence as ever in the success of the democratic cause in the coming election. He expressed the belief that President Taft, Senator Lodge and the three candidates for the republican gubernatorial nomination had done a lot for him during his absence in the west, and that it would not be necessary for him to do much campaigning on his own account.

Incidentally the governor denied that he was a candidate for president or vice-president of the United States, declaring that to be governor of Massachusetts was all the honor that he craved at this time. He said he would be glad to meet the republicans on any issue, national or local, and had no fear of the result.

"I don't know that I need to hurry about my campaign," he said, "but I am sure that I shall be able to make a great opportunity when he vetoed the tariff revision bills. When he signed the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill, Mr. Taft went on record as against the woolen and cotton schedules, expressing the belief that they were excessive and needed revision."

In the extra session of congress he had bills presented to him which he did exactly what he said ought to be done, and yet he vetoed them, showing that he was not sincere.

"It is all right for the president to talk about his tariff commission. We well know that the tariff board is not a tariff commission. It is composed, it is true, of some very admirable gentlemen, some of whom we know. But its obligation is only to recommend to the president, leaving him to act as he pleases."

The governor said he was very much surprised at the talk that he had instructed the state machine to make up a slate of candidates for the primaries. "It is absolutely untrue," he said. "I know nothing about it."

Asked about candidates for the democratic nomination for president, Mr. Foss said he thought Wilson was pretty strong in the west, but he didn't feel competent to say much about it.

He regarded the outlook for democratic victory in 1912 as particularly bright everywhere he had been.

Welcomes Mr. Higgin
He said he welcomed Mr. Higgin as an opponent for the gubernatorial nomination. As to the chances of the several candidates for the republican nomination he would express no opinion. "It is all the same to me," he said, "which of them wins."

"The governor said he would give his attention at once to the selection of a dock commission and a chief justice of the supreme court. 'I have no one in mind for any place on the dock commission,' he said, 'and I have no one in mind for the chief justice, especially for the chairmanship. I intend to confer with Chief Justice Knowlton before making selection for his place.'

One of the ideas which the governor said he brought back from the west was for the erection of a $100,000 building in San Francisco for the exhibition of New England products. He would maintain this building as a permanent proposition.

THE OPERA HOUSE

E. D. Stair will present his pair of clever comedians, Ward & Vokes, for their annual visit at the Opera House on Saturday matinee and evening, September 23 in the second edition of the musical comedy success "The Trouble Makers," which title seems to fit them properly, for during the action of the farce they are in all sorts of trouble. It is said that wherever "The Trouble Makers" has been presented the theatre-going public has been unanimous in its high praise of this attraction.

An organization of fifty people supports these stars, many of whom are ladies who, in the near future, will be prima donnas.

Lucky Doty, who has been associated with Ward & Vokes in all their previous successes, will play one of the most important parts, "Babbling Goss," who is continually on the hunt for secrets and then keeps them by telling them to everyone.

Lovers of good, wholesome fun will find "The Trouble Makers" one of the funniest of all musical comedies. The play is written around a Woman's Suffrage society of which, disguised as women, both Percy and Harold are elected as president and treasurer, causing ludicrous mishaps and many trials and tribulations.

A carload of new scenery, properties and electrical effects, new and costly wardrobe and fifty of the best farceurs obtainable are all used in "The Trouble Makers."

"THE THIEF"

"The Thief," at the Opera House, Labor day, matinee and night, tells a story of how a woman stole large sums of money to buy clothes in order to make herself attractive to the eyes of her husband whom she dearly loved. The second act of this great success is claimed to be the most startling series of scenes ever presented on the stage. Seats Thursday morning—Adv.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE

No better or cleaner vaudeville entertainment has been offered for the general approval of the theatregoing public in seasons than that which is being presented at the Merrimack Square theatre this week. Not a weak point can be noted in the entire bill. Kendall Weston and his associates are scoring one of the biggest hits of the season in the presentation of E. F. Payne's favorite one-act play, "What Money Can't Buy."

Mr. Weston as John Blake, the rich American who finds and wins one of the English nobility in London, is especially pleasing, and Miss Florence Phelps and Mr. James Byrne, who assist, are entirely capable.

Little Mary Green, known as "The Aeroplane Girl," is sharing in the honor.

"The Daughter of Fate" is being offered for the approval of theatre-going public by the Augustus Perry company at the Lakeview theatre for the first three days of this week. The drama is written by Miss Perry of that company and is full of difficult and pleasing situations, which are bound to hold the interest of the audience. Comedy is also found in abundance, of a high class type that is sure to produce the laugh in the right place. Water Downing is again the hero of the drama, and is ably assisted by the full strength of the company. The stage effects are excellent and everything that goes to make a good show is found there. For the last three days of this week the subject will be changed to "The Squaw's Love," another of Miss Perry's own productions. Matinees will be given every day this week—Adv.

DINNER TO PRESIDENT
MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 30.—The dinner to be given Pres. Taft on the occasion of his visit to Minneapolis, Oct. 24, will not be a dress suit affair, according to members of the Young Men's Republican club, who will entertain the president that night. At a meeting of the members of the club which was called today it was expected that a plan to make the dinner a popular one and not an exclusive affair will be adopted and the price was fixed at $1 a plate.

RAIN AT READVILLE
READVILLE, Aug. 30.—Showery conditions still prevailed at the Readville track early today, making uncertain the starting of the week's Grand Circuit racing. With stables full of fast stoppers and many followers of the sport eager to see the exhibitions there was much disappointment over the weather prospects.

MAN WAS DROWNED

His Body Found in River at Nashua

NASHUA, N. H., Aug. 30.—The body of a man, which awaits identification, was taken from the Merrimack river last evening, making the ninth drowning in this city since April.

About 5 o'clock Joseph Latour, an employee of the Boston & Maine railroad, saw the body of a man lying face down on the river bottom near the foot of Burke street. City Marshal and Patrolman Miller to the place. They found the body in about two feet of water, six feet from shore. They towed it with a power boat a quarter of a mile to the mouth of Salmon brook, where a landing was effected. Dr. Moran said death was due to accidental drowning.

The man, who is a stranger in Nashua, had evidently been asleep on the river bank, which is steep at this point, and rolled into the water. His hat, coat and cane were on the bank. His cane is of natural wood, evidently cut by the owner; his cap light soft felt, his coat a fine mixed gray; he wore dark trousers, black shoes which were unlaced, a black shirt and cotton underwear.

There were no papers upon him to furnish a clue as to who he was or where he came from. The body, which had not been in the water long, is that of a man of 170 pounds, 5 feet 3 inches tall and 45 years of age. He wore a brown mustache.

VANDAL AT WORK

PORTRAITS OF E-MAYORS OF LYNN WERE DAMAGED

LYNN, Aug. 30.—Mayor William P. Conroy of Lynn has requested the services of the police in solving the mystery of how and why the pictures of ex-Mayor George Hood, third mayor of the city, and ex-Mayor William Shepard, known as the "handsome" mayor, were cut from their positions on the wall in the mayor's office at city hall and thrown on the floor.

The pictures were found on the floor yesterday morning when the mayor arrived and the frames were broken and scattered about the office. Jailor Joseph Combs said he had seen no one enter or leave city hall after the mayor left Monday night at 10 o'clock.

What is most puzzling the police and citizens generally is why the pictures of other mayors were left unmolested, especially when the two found on the floor were some distance apart.

To reach the wire holding the picture frames required the use of a step ladder.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT

WRIGHT SCHEDULED TO MEET
McLOUGHLIN TODAY

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 30.—Early morning showers again made tennis uncertain at the Casino today though a large crowd straggled to the arena, many from out of town, to see Beals Wright of Boston, a former champion, and Maurice E. McLoughlin of San Francisco in the finals of the All-comers tournament for the national title. While both players reached the top match in the tournament in former years, Wright, because of his long service on the courts was regarded today as the veteran and McLoughlin as one of the leaders of the younger set.

McLoughlin reached the finals two years ago but was put out by W. J. Clothier. Wright won his national title in 1905 and won the All-comers in 1908 while last year he was defeated in the finals by T. C. Bundy.

For the first time in the history of the tournament there will be a full day's rest between the finals and the challenge match, when William A. Larned will defend his title for the fifth consecutive time and the eighth time in his tennis career.

War May Break Out

THE BELGIAN GOV'T

Is Putting Strict Military Precautions Into Effect

LIEGE, Belgium, Aug. 30.—An intense sensation has been created among the Belgian people, especially near the boundaries of France and Germany, by the military precautions which are being put into effect by the Belgian government.

A military council was held yesterday at the villa of Lieut. General Heibaut, the minister of war, at which the commanders of all the frontier defenses and other military authorities were present.

The conference was called to consider measures to preserve the neutrality of the country in the event of war between France and Germany, so as to prevent the violation of Belgian territory by either combatant, or by Great Britain should that country become involved in the conflict.

Nothing so far has been disclosed regarding the decision of the council. Great military activity has been in evidence during the past two days. Large supplies of shell for the frontier forts and wide ammunition have been sent forward and additional batteries of artillery and rapid fire guns have been shipped to reinforce the posts on all roads leading to the German frontier.

Specific instructions, it is understood, have been sent to the commanders of troops concerning the blowing up of bridges and the destruction of railroads should war break out.

7TH MASS. BATTERY

Held 49th Annual Meeting at Willow Dale Today

The surviving members of the Seventh Massachusetts Battery held their 49th annual meeting today at Willow Dale, the affair consisting of a dinner followed by a business meeting during which the officers were chosen for the coming year.

On May 20, 1861, Company G of the Old Sixth regiment reorganized under the name of Old Richardson Light Infantry, and on March 17, 1892, the members of the infantry were transferred into the artillery, taking the name of Seventh Massachusetts Battery.

After the war the members of the battery held annual reunions and this has been kept up ever since. There are now about 40 members living, 12 of whom attended the meeting today. These are James W. Bean, president of the organization, of West Somerville; Henry L. Bennett, Balafoutville; Henry A. Clark, Waltham; William H. Farrier, Lowell; Dennis H. Hodge, secretary of the organization, Chelsea; Ruben G. Hoyt Belmont, N. H.; Henry L. Foster, Worcester; Charles H. Elisette, Boston; George N. Thissell, Lawrence; William H. Worcester, Lowell; Thomas Clarkson, Brockton; Otis A. Cleveland, Wilbury, Ohio. Six members of the party were accompanied by their wives.

The party reached the Dale at 12 o'clock and after an informal gathering, a dainty dinner was served at 1:30 o'clock. President James W. Bean acting as toastmaster. Speeches were made by all those present, and it is not necessary to say that old times was the topic of the day.

After the meal a business meeting was held, and at the time of going to press, this meeting was not over, but an account of it will be given in tomorrow's edition.

MARTIN M. LOMASNEY

Expected at Opening of Local Democratic Headquarters

Martin Lomasney, the well known political leader of ward 8, Boston, is expected as one of the speakers at the opening of the local democratic headquarters in the Bay State hall, Central street, on Thursday evening, September 14th.

Chairman Cronin of the democratic city committee has received word to the effect that Mr. Lomasney will endeavor to be present but in the event of being unable to attend, his brother, Senator Joseph Lomasney, will substitute for him.

The principal speaker of the evening will be Hon. David L. Walsh of Fitchburg, democratic candidate for lieutenant-governor and he will be accompanied here by J. Frank Donahue of Boston, democratic candidate for secretary of state; John P. McDonald, chairman of the democratic state committee; Rep. Thomas P. Eiler of Malintine; Rep. Thomas H. Barton of Melrose, while a formidable array of speakers will be present at the opening of the meeting is not to be a general rally, for the hall would not accommodate all who might desire to attend. The meeting will consist of a number of leading democratic workers according to Chairman Cronin's plans at which the matter of organization will be discussed.

Political Has-Beens
According to the list of republican candidates who have filed nomination papers the local republican ticket this fall will contain a choice lot of political has-beens. Are we to have a political resurrection or like Jeffries will they prove unable to come back?

A Commendable Spirit
While Reps. Barlow and Killpatrick are using every honorable method to win their fight for the republican nomination for senator they are omitting anything of a personal nature in their content and are showing a commendable spirit. Rep. Barlow is frequently seen in Rep. Killpatrick's store in North Main square among the customers, while in Rep. Killpatrick's store window, side by side with a big campaign card of the proprietor of the establishment, is an equally big campaign card of Rep. Barlow. The card of Rep. Stevens is conspicuous by its absence.

Toomey vs. O'Connell

Quite a little surprise was expressed yesterday when it became known that Rep. Eugene Toomey and Ex-Councilman O'Connell are the only candidates for the legislature to file nomination papers in the 16th district (wards four and five). Last year there were several candidates, including Jeremiah Maginnis and Michael J. Markham, both of whom have dropped out this year.

The Stevens Circular
A circular in the interest of Rep. Stevens, signed by Harry Moxley and Warren Fox, has been sent out to the voters. The circular advances as one of the reasons that he should be nominated for senator the fact that on the closing day of the legislature he was appointed by the speaker as one of the republicans named on the congressional redistricting committee. That the appointment should be used as a cause for his nomination is amusing to the friends of his opponents, inasmuch as Congressman Ames wanted some Lowell man to be appointed on the committee in the worst way, while no other republican from Lowell or vicinity wanted it, and Rep. Killpatrick, one of Rep. Stevens' opponents, suggested the appointment of the Dracont man to Speaker Walker when offered the position himself. The circular also states that Rep. Stevens should be nominated for senator because he has been

IMMENSE TRUCKS

BROUGHT CONSIGNMENT TO A. E. O'HEIR & CO.

Three big five ton Mack trucks owned by the Crawford Range company and loaded with ranges and parlor stoves consigned to A. E. O'Heir and company, Merrimack square, attracted great attention in the downtown streets today. They came over the road from Boston this morning making the distance in an even two hours. There were 32 ranges and 21 parlor stoves on the trucks, all of which were safely deposited in Mr. O'Heir's establishment during the early afternoon. Quite a crowd gathered about the store when the trucks arrived and one of their number remarked to Mr. O'Heir: "Getting in your winter's supply of stoves, Mr. O'Heir?"

"Winter supply! Winter supply!" cried Mr. O'Heir with great emphasis. "I should say not. That is one month's supply."

SOLID TIRES

ARE BEING USED ON AUTO FIRE PATROL

The heavy expense of new tires and repairing of tires for the automobile fire patrol has resulted in Chief Hodge experimenting with solid tires for the rear wheels. Owing to the weight of the machine, which is five tons, there has been considerable difficulty with the tires and since the first of the year it has been necessary to purchase five new outer casings or shoes and seven inner tubes at a cost of $12.83 to say nothing of the money expended for repairing of tires.

The new tires which are being tried out are known as Swinburn non-skid tires and are perforated. It being claimed that the perforation prevents skidding on wet pavements or in rounding corners.

Despite the fact that the tire expense has been rather large, Chief Hodge in conversation with a representative of The Sun this afternoon said that the expense was not near as large as it would be if the horse drawn apparatus was used. He contends that if the horses were in use the company could not have responded to the numerous alarms this year without wearing out at least one pair of horses.

The protective company has done exceptionally good work since the automobile supplanted the horse drawn apparatus and in many instances the prompt response of the company has resulted in the saving of many thousands of dollars worth of property.

CENTER OF POPULATION

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30. The center of population of the United States was announced by Director of Census Durand today to be in the western part of the city of Bloomington, Monroe county, Indiana. This is eight miles further west than the location announced July 17, when Dir. Durand placed it four and one-quarter miles south of Unionville in the same county.

Mrs. C. J. Cheney of this city left today for her old home in Easton, Arcostock Co., Me. for an indefinite period.

THE WRECKAGE

BEING CLEANED AWAY BY THOUSANDS OF MEN

CHARLESTON, S. C., Aug. 30.—With street cars running except on the line to the navy yard, electric power available for commercial purposes and telephone service resumed, conditions in Charleston are fast becoming normal. Thousands of men are at work cleaning away the wreckage of the hurricane. Revised estimates of the damage here indicate that more than a million dollars has been lost.

Four persons are known to have perished and it is feared that reports from the exposed sea islands will swell the death lists and the property loss.

Police are patrolling the streets with orders to summarily punish any person caught looting. Fire patrols are keeping a sharp lookout for fire.

MORE TROUBLE

CAUSED BY HIGH PRICES OF PROVISIONS IN PARIS

PARIS, Aug. 30.—The agitation against the high prices of provisions continues, and disorders of considerable proportions were reported today from 13 places in northern France. The usual procedure is for a crowd of women, of the lower class to assemble and do their marketing together, carrying large placards on which are written the prices which the women are willing to pay. If the shopkeeper assents to sell his goods at the price offered the women buy, but if he refuses they pitch all of his stock into the street.

The police ordinances are inadequate to keep pace with the movement. Fifteen hundred weavers from Isle marched into Saint Quentin today and sacked 50 stores where caubies were on sale.

RAILROAD MEN MEET

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—Members of the committee on relations among railroads of the American Railroad Association met here today and discussed the employment situation on the principal lines in different parts of the country. The session was held behind closed doors and railroad officials declined to discuss any action likely to be taken in advance of the meeting. The policy of entrenchment and economical administration adopted by a number of roads which has resulted in the laying off of thousands of employees was considered, it is said.

BASEBALL GAMES WITH WHICH SOUTH COMMON PLAYGROUND EXERCISES OPENED TODAY

Exercises Held on the South Common Playground Today

The grand windup of the playground season came today and while the weather didn't break any too clean for the success of the "big show", on the South common there was enthusiasm galore and even during the forenoon there was a big crowd and the ball games between the different teams from the different playgrounds were productive of the true baseball spirit. Girls and boys who had to pull themselves up to jump over the wire that encircled the grounds cheered themselves hoarse when members of their respective teams "swatted" a good one or turned a good trick. There were old time ball players there, too, and don't you think for a moment that they didn't enjoy it. The greatest game of all was the exhibition game between the South and North common seniors. It went eleven innings and it was red hot all the time. The South common boys own the championship series, but the North common had put it all over them on the exhibition game. Fred Lake should have been there to get a line on some growing baseball timber. The woods were full of promising saplings and Jack Condon, who umpired the 11 inning game allows that the North and South commons are developing players for the big leagues. Jack is junior at the Edison school and while he wanted to see his own boys win, he was bound to do the square thing and those on the outside declared that Jack was the squarest umpire that ever happened. The score in the great eleven inning game was 16 to 7 in favor of the North common and the routers from that common were out in full force.

"The common was policed by Sergt. McGuire and Patrolmen Keegan, Kennedy and Sullivan, and take it from the seniors who watched the performance the officers had all they could do to preserve order, especially when the decision was close. Chief Director Bruce was "Johnnie on the spot," and it was plain to be seen that he and his assistant, James H. Rooney, had great command of the boys, and even during the games the real good of supervised play was made manifest. The boys not excited, of course, but the scrapping that is generally "next friend" on an occasion of this kind was conspicuous by its absence, so to speak. The line-up of the teams in the exhibition game was as follows:

North Common—Boyle, c; Bernier, p; Bernier, 1b; Tessier, ss; Keyes, 2b; Mills, 3b; McGrath, lg; Fayette, cf; Bernier, rf.

South Common—Smith, c; McOsker, p; E. Smith, 1b; J. Callahan, 2b; F. Cummings, 3b; McVey, ss; McElinchey, lg; O'Laughlin, cf; McGrovey, rf.

The results of other ball games played during the forenoon were as follows:

South common cadets defeated the Union Blues of the North common by a score of 4 to 1. The boys from the Greenhalge school grounds defeated the Alton street boys, 8 to 0. The South Common Middlets were defeated by the Greenhalge by a score of 9 to 0. The South Common Middlets defeated the North Common Middlets by a score of 6 to 5, four innings. South common vs. North common resulted in a score of 10 to 7 in favor of the North. The Bleachery team, South common, defeated the North common batters and twirlers by a score of 14 to 4.

Boyle of the North common won the first prize in the baseball throwing contest. His throw was 355 feet 9 inches, and a young fellow by the name of Ronnie was second best. His mark was 235 feet 6 inches. Some of the boys made remarkable throws, but went wild of the course and lost on that account.

It was the third annual joint exhibition of the Lowell playgrounds, showing organized play, athletic games, folk dancing and industrial activities.

CAUSED FIRE IN HOUSE IN CENTRAL STREET

The fire was caused by an overheated stove, but owing to the early discovery and the prompt response of the department the blaze was extinguished before much damage was done.

DOG CAUSED TROUBLE

Case Called to the Attention of the War Department

WASHINGTON, Aug. 29.—The old story of the civil prosecution of a soldier for an act performed in accordance with orders from his superiors, always tantalizing to the military authorities, is before the war department again in a case from New Mexico. In this instance nothing more than a town dog was the cause of it all. According to an official report to the secretary of war, Private Gilbert of the signal corps, while inspecting fences at Fort Bayard, New Mexico, fired two shots at a dog which had attacked him and followed him inside the reservation. He was prosecuted at Central, New Mexico, charged with discharging firearms in the town, found guilty and sentenced to pay the costs of the action.

The case has been appealed and Secretary of War Stimson has taken exception to the decision, asking the attorney general to detail a United States or special attorney to defend the soldier.

LABOR DAY PARADE

Report of Expenses of the Demonstration

At a meeting of the members of the Labor day committee of the city government and representatives of the Trades & Labor council held at city hall last night, John J. Mahoney of the Trades & Labor council submitted the following report on the expenses to be paid out of the appropriation made by the city government:

Five bands, $225; life and drum corps $70; band concert $70; six carriages for the parade, $30; baseball game $25; tug of war, $25; decorating bandstand on the South common, $10; lodges, $14.50; marshals and staff horse hire, $17.50; incidentals, $20; total $1000. Mr. Mahoney explained that the Trades and Labor council had appropriated money for the other expenses of the day, which would total considerably over what the city had provided.

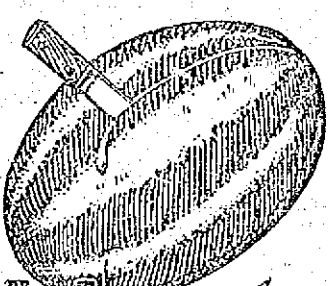

MAN WAS INJURED

WHILE TRYING TO GET HORSE FROM BURNING BARN

CLAREMONT, N. H., Aug. 30.—During a terrific thunder and rain storm, which continued until yesterday morning, lightning struck the buildings owned by Levi Smith in Unity. The bolt entered the barn, killing a horse and setting fire to the structure.

The entire set of buildings, including two barns, shed and dwelling house, were burned flat, together with 40 tons of hay and 10 tons of grain. Two hogs and some hens were also missing after the fire, and it is thought were burned.

Mr. Smith, who drives the stage between North Charlestown and Unity, had just returned last night from a vacation and had been home but a few minutes when the storm broke. His two horses were tethered in the barn, and he had to climb over the body of the horse killed by the bolt to liberate the other one. The crib in front of the horse was all ablaze, and Mr. Smith was kicked and severely injured while liberating the frightened animal. Neighbors attracted by the glare came from all directions and worked in the drenching rain, saving most of the household goods and farming utensils and cattle. The buildings stood near the end of Crescent lake, which was illuminated from its entire length. The fire lasted for more than three hours and was visible for miles.

Mr. Smith, who is about 70 years old, suffered severely from shock and his injury, and is unable to leave his bed yesterday. The loss is estimated at $3000. There is an insurance.

MAN DIED SUDDENLY

He Was Stricken While Driving Auto

LAWRENCE, Aug. 30.—Charles S. Mayo, member of the family of Springfield papermakers, was stricken with heart disease while driving his automobile last night and died while still at the wheel of his car.

Mr. Mayo, who was a noted horse and auto enthusiast, was driving D. E. Hamman and his nephew, F. S. Nickerson, a Boston stock broker, along the Jackson street extension toward the Merrimack Valley Country club, where they intended to spend the evening. Mr. Mayo was chatting with his companions, smoking a cigar and laughing, when, like a flash, his companions saw him stiffen and then collapse. Before his strength left his body he threw at his clutch and though the automobile swerved into the bushes along the road, Mr. Mayo's last act prevented an accident, and the car came to a stop without mishap.

Mr. Mayo was a life member of the Lawrence lodge of Elks, an Odd Fellow, member of the Home and Merrimack Valley Country clubs and other social and fraternal organizations. He kept bachelor's quarters at 467 Essex street. He was 53 years old and leaves two brothers, Amash, Jr., and Alfred N. Mayo, and his mother,

THE STATE MILITIA

Alleged to Have Used Liquor

A rigid investigation is being made by Lieut. Col. Willis W. Stover of the charges that whiskey was found in quantities in the various camps of the Massachusetts militia during the recent maneuvers of the Red and Blue armies. The investigation was ordered by Adj. Gen. Pearson. Scores of witnesses may be called to give testimony. During the maneuvers several cases of drunkenness, it is said, were discovered. One man was in such a condition, it is said, that he was sent to the alcoholic ward at the Danvers asylum. Col. Stover of the Eighth Infantry, at once started an investigation of the cases that came to his attention.

Peddler's wagons outside the lines were examined. Later two cases of whiskey were found on a wagon inside the camp. So much gossip followed the investigation that the adjutant general ordered Lieut. Col. Stover to look into the matter. Already every officer in the regiment has been communicated with and full reports have been made. But it is said the investigation has but just begun.

LIQUOR LICENSES

NEW MEASURE PASSED BY THE CONNECTICUT ASSEMBLY

HARTFORD, Conn., Aug. 30.—The lower branch of the general assembly passed yesterday a bill under which a majority of the voters in no-license towns may petition county commissioners to grant a liquor license to a specified hotel for four months in each year, beginning with June 1. The bill is a successor to a measure which passed the senate last week giving the county commissioners power to grant a license to a hotel in Groton owned by Morton F. Plant, upon petition of a majority of the voters of the town, which is no-license. Governor Baldwin is in favor of the new bill.

The governor sent in his fifth veto message yesterday, rejecting a bill for a bridge and a park in Norwalk. The senate by a vote of 22 to 8, passed the measure over the veto.

The house, by a vote of 150 to 27, passed over the governor's veto a bill giving veterans of the Civil war a pension of $30 a year in lieu of tax exemption up to $3000.

The senate accepted the report of a conference committee and passed the death damage bill, which removes the minimum limit and makes the amount recoverable from death due to negligence $10,000. The limit was formerly $5000.

NEW PARASITES

May Prove Doom of the Gypsy Moth

BOSTON, Aug. 30.—The doom of the gypsy moth in Massachusetts may be sounded by a new parasite the government has been trying to secure for the past three years from Italy. It is being experimented with at the McRae Highlands laboratory by Mr. J. Fiske of the bureau of entomology of the department of agriculture.

In order to secure the parasite, Mr. Fiske visited Italy. Three weeks ago a shipment of 125,000 of the insects arrived in Melrose. These little bugs have been effective in their native country.

If they are as successful here government officials say that the extermination of the gypsy moth would be a matter of a short time.

For the purpose of carrying on experiments, Mr. Fiske left Washington last night for Melrose, where the real tests will be started at once. The moths which have caused New England so much trouble in the past few years will be brought to the laboratory, where they will be turned loose, to mingle with the new parasite.

The work of the imported insect will be carefully watched by the state and government officials. If they are successful, thousands will be turned and subdued it after a two hours' struggle. There was a panic among the inmates of the various institutions when the steam siren screeched the fire alarm. The employees of the laundry who slept on the top floor of the building crowded to the windows and got out by the fire escapes clad only in night attire.

THE STATE MILITIA

Alleged to Have Used Liquor

A rigid investigation is being made by Lieut. Col. Willis W. Stover of the charges that whiskey was found in quantities in the various camps of the Massachusetts militia during the recent maneuvers of the Red and Blue armies. The investigation was ordered by Adj. Gen. Pearson. Scores of witnesses may be called to give testimony. During the maneuvers several cases of drunkenness, it is said, were discovered. One man was in such a condition, it is said, that he was sent to the alcoholic ward at the Danvers asylum. Col. Stover of the Eighth Infantry, at once started an investigation of the cases that came to his attention.

MAN FOUND GUILTY

He Was Charged With Threatening John Kaldis

James Karmaris was arraigned before Judge Hadley in police court this morning on a complaint charging him with threatening to do bodily harm to John Kaldis. Karmaris entered a plea of not guilty, but at the conclusion of the hearing of the case the defendant was found guilty and was ordered to furnish bonds of $100 to keep the peace for six months.

According to the testimony offered Karmaris and his sister had some difficulty and the latter left home on foot. Kaldis testified that after threatening her without avail he met Kaldis and threatened him stating that if his sister did not leave the house there would be a murder.

Another witness also testified to having heard the defendant, state to Kaldis that if the sister did not leave the house there would be a murder. The sister of the defendant told of having had trouble with her brother and that he had tried to have her leave the Kaldis house but that she refused to do so because she was afraid of her brother.

The defendant's story was a general denial, he stating that he had no intention of doing either his sister or the complainant any harm.

Raising a Disturbance

Ethelbert Joy was charged with having raised a disturbance on an electric car on the Lawrence division of the Bay State Street Railway Co. last night. At the request of the government the case was continued until next Wednesday. It is alleged that Joy had been indulging in the "O be Joyful" liquid, and boarding an electric car used profane language and raised a disturbance.

Drunken Offenders

Charles Bues was charged with being

drunk, but he denied the allegation. Patrolman Lennon testified that he arrested the man in Howe street about 5:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and that he was so drunk that it was necessary to use a wagon to take the man to the patrol box. Deputy Supt. Downey testified that the man was very drunk when brought to the police station. Bues said he had taken two glasses of beer during the afternoon and that would not make him drunk. He was found guilty and a fine of $3 was imposed.

Thomas S. Smith, who hails from Pittsfield, N. H., was arrested the day before yesterday for drunkenness and yesterday morning, inasmuch as it was the man's first appearance at the police station, he was released on the promise of the police officer. Smith evidently wanted to celebrate the occasion of his release and he immediately went out and started drinking again with the result that he was arrested yesterday afternoon by Patrolman Hamilton. The arresting officer informed the court that the man was very drunk and was using profane language.

Smith pleaded to be given a chance to leave the city promising that he would go directly home. Judge Hadley gave him the opportunity to do so. Smith was given a suspended sentence of two months in jail and given 24 hours in order to leave the city.

Michael Riley was under a suspended sentence of six months in jail, but he violated the conditions of his probation and the suspension of his sentence was revoked and he will spend the next six months in the city jail.

James McLaughlin and Frank McLaughlin, charged with being drunk, were each ordered to pay a fine of $5. There was one first offender who was fined $2, and several simple drunks were released before the opening of court.

SCURRILOUS LETTERS

Alleged to Have Been Written by a Woman

EASTON, Pa., Aug. 30.—Charged with having written hundreds of anonymous letters of a scurrilous, defamatory and indecent character and sending them through the mails to more than a score of residents of this city, including clergymen, business men and women, Miss Harriet Dewitt, daughter of one of the city's well known and respected citizens, has been arrested and is held in jail for a hearing Friday before United States Commissioner Turner.

In nearly all of the letters the anonymous writer attacks either the character of the person to whom the letter is addressed or that of some near relative or friend. In several instances there are charges of criminal conduct.

For nine years these offensive, annoying letters have been received by the postal department. Several inspectors and secret service men had been assigned to fathom the case and failed. At last Inspector Shumberger was put to work to run down the writer and the evidence he secured during the last two months caused him to make the complaint that resulted in Miss Dewitt's arrest. She declared she is innocent and says she has also been receiving letters from the anonymous writer.

TROUBLE IN MOCTEZUMA DISTRICT

DOUGLAS, Ariz., Aug. 30.—Disorders have occurred in the Moctezuma district in Sonora as a result of a food shortage due to crop failures, according to R. L. Cosgrove, who arrived from Moctezuma today. Failure of crops planted and of many persons to plant crops because they were engaged in the revolution, Mr. Cosgrove says, has caused almost a condition of famine and great suffering among the people.

GIRL TOOK POISON

She Made Second Attempt to End Her Life

Lena Ayotte, aged 17 years, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ayotte of 175 Hall street, despondent over a love affair, attempted for the second time to commit suicide last night at her home, but again her efforts were fruitless. The young girl swallowed a tablet of corrosive sublimate, but she was discovered in time and removed to the Lowell hospital, where she is now confined, but is out of danger.

The young girl, it is claimed, was in love with a young man who paid some attention to her, but as he said in a friendly way only. When the young girl saw that the girl was really in love with him, he told her that he had a wife and child in Europe. This was some time last July, and at that time Lena told him she was going to kill herself, and the next day she tried to do away with herself by inhaling illuminating gas.

A few days ago she again met the young man on the street and he apprised her of the fact that his wife and child had arrived in Lowell. This bit of news worked on the young girl's mind and the result was that she got despondent, and last night she made another attempt to take her life. She ate supper with the family and at 7:30 o'clock she retired to her room. A few minutes later she came back to the kitchen and after taking a seat told her mother she had taken poison and then she fell to the floor unconscious. The ambulance was called and Lena was removed to the Lowell hospital.

Inquiries at the hospital today disclosed the fact that the girl is resting comfortably and that she will recover.

RECALL OF JUDGES

Bitterly Opposed by Former Justice Brown of Supreme Court

BOSTON, Aug. 30.—Several speakers, prominent leaders at the bar in different states of the union, today addressed the gathering of lawyers assembled at Huntington hall in attendance at the annual meeting of the American Bar Association. After the routine business of the day had been disposed of the lawyers listened to addresses of different members of the bar, conspicuous among whom was former Justice Brown of the state supreme court.

In his address former Justice Brown bitterly opposed the recall of judges. "The very idea that a judge could be compelled to descend from his bench and vindicate his right to retain his seat by an appeal to the public is the last relic of political folly," he said.

"The practice of allowing the people themselves to choose their own officers has been the origin of most of our woes. Just now the current of modern legislation is moving in two different directions. The one is to give the people a more direct and immediate voice in the election of their law-making representatives. The other is a restriction of the power of the people to choose their executive officers by popular vote.

"With regard to the popular election of senators, the fashionable political fad of the day, I can only say that while election by the legislature has undoubtedly given us some bad men it has produced a much larger number of honorable and eminent men who have contributed immensely to the prosperity of the country. It may well be doubted whether a senator chosen by a legislature may not more honestly represent a state and its people than a senator chosen by a political caucus or a primary and endorsed by a popular vote.

"The argument is that if the people may be entrusted to elect the head of the ticket and its legislative offices they may equally be entrusted with the choice of all the officers, but the analogy fails in this vital particular. The voter may be assumed to know the head of the ticket as well as the man who wishes to represent him in the legislative body but he cannot know the multitude of minor officers who are necessary for the conduct of a great business."

Speaking of the tendency to a restriction of the popular vote in the election of executive officers Justice Brown took up the short ballot and approved of it as "the federal system" which has obtained since the adoption of the constitution and has worked so satisfactorily that no serious effort has been made to change it."

He also took up the plan of commission government of cities, which he said was "earning a well deserved popularity."

The widely democratic ideas which began to prevail early in the last century and finally culminated in the popular election of justices of the peace, constables, street commissioners, and other petty officers, has begun to give place to saner views, which look more to the efficiency of those chosen to the gratification of the popular whim in choosing them."

REV. J. L. MCGUINNESS

Elected Honorary Member of Sagamore Club

The members of the Sagamore club held their regular meeting at their camp at Bowers avenue, Willow Dale, last evening. Plans were made for their annual entertainment to be held during the winter months. During the meeting Mr. John Loughran read an interesting letter from the Rev. James J. McGuinness of Brockton, Fr. McGuinness expressed his sincere thanks to the members for the hospitally accorded him during his short stay at their camp. He said that his vacation at the Sagamore camp was over as recalled as the most pleasant journey of his career. He complimented the members for the progress they had made. At the conclusion of the reading of the letter it was unanimously voted to elect the reverend gentleman an honorary member of the organization. The secretary was instructed to notify Fr. McGuinness of the club's action.

The meeting was brought to a close with an excellent musical program.

STRUCK BY AN AUTO

North Chelmsford Man Met With a Serious Injury

Willard Roberts, a resident of North Chelmsford, was struck and seriously injured by an automobile in Hudson, N. H., Sunday night, Monday morning he was brought to the Lowell General hospital in this city where it was found that he was suffering from a broken nose and the bones of both jaws were broken.

Mr. Roberts, who formerly lived in Nashua, was on a visit to this city and Sunday night about 11 o'clock the family of his sister, Mrs. Charles Green of 4 Kirk st., Nashua was awakened by a noise on the piazza. Opening the door they found him lying in a pool of blood, according to the statement made by Mrs. Green to City Marshal William W. Wheeler of Nashua.

The injured man was taken into the house and told a story to the effect that he was struck by an automobile in Hudson near the bridge. He says he walked to the house of his sister, arriving shortly after 9 o'clock, and spent nearly two hours trying to arouse the family.

A surgeon was called and after temporarily dressing his wounds, advised that the patient be at once taken to a hospital. Mr. Roberts refused to be taken to a Nashua hospital and was therefore carried to Lowell in an automobile.

The case was kept quiet Monday but as reports from the hospital yesterday were not encouraging, friends of Mr. Roberts decided that an investigation should be made to ascertain the identity of the automobile which caused the injuries. His friends doubt that he could have walked from Hudson to Kirk street, upward of two miles, in the condition he was in, at least without attracting attention, and they think that on account of the injuries to his head he has no clear recollection of the facts.

The theory is that the occupants of the automobile picked Mr. Roberts up after a collision with him, took him aboard the car and learning the address of Mrs. Green drove to her house and quietly deposited him upon the porch.

Inquiry at the hospital today brought forth the information that Roberts' condition is improved and that he is out of danger.

ELECTION EXPENSE STATEMENT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—Primary election expense statements from Senators Martin and Swan of Virginia, the first to be filed under the new publicity law that went into effect August 15th, reached the office of Secretary Bennett of the senate today. In the absence of Secretary Bennett officials of his office declined to make them public. Following this declaration a careful examination of the new publicity law resulted in the startling disclosure that in the act presumed to be most drastic there is no requirement for publicity of the individual statements filed by candidates for the senate or house of representatives.

A BIG TURTLE

WAS CAUGHT BY A LOWELL FISHERMAN

A 35-pound turtle is now on exhibition at the store of the Lagasse Furniture Co. in Lakeview avenue, and it will possibly stay there until Monday, when the owner will give a turtle soup dinner to a number of his friends. This turtle was captured a couple of days ago at Babcock pond near Groton by Mr. Simon Lagasse, who with several others was enjoying a day of fishing. The party was composed of Mr. Lagasse, Charles G. Vlau, Joseph DeLorme and his son Arthur and Pierre Brousseau and his son Charles. Fishing was started about 7 o'clock, and it is said that Mr. Vlau's automobile, which conveyed the party to the pond, was heavily enough to carry back the immense catch.

There were hornpots, pickerel, perch, eels and a number of other kinds too numerous to mention and a good load of it, too. When the turtle got hooked, Mr. Lagasse thought he had a whale or the bottom of the pond on his line, but he soon found out what it was, and it was with much difficulty that the 35-pounder was safely landed in the boat.

"The turtle will see its final Monday, when it will be chopped up in pieces and stewed. The festivities to be held at the camp of a member of the party."

A FLYING SQUADRON

Is Searching Coast For Disabled Ships

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—A flying squadron of five revenue cutters today is searching the Atlantic coast from Key West to New York for disabled ships which may have been caught in the hurricane on Monday and may be drifting north with the gulfstream. Commandant Berthoff said he was convinced there were many small sailing ships helpless at sea unable to communicate their distress.

The Onondaga, at Norfolk, the Seminole at Wilmington, N. C., the Yamacraw at Charleston, the Forward at Key West and the Seneca at New York comprise the rescue fleet. The Yamacraw which did gallant work in taking off passengers from the liner Lexington has been directed to search for the schooner, the vessel being of New York, and which was deserted by all her crew and with only her captain, his wife and her cook aboard. The Seminole is searching for the schooner Fortuna which also has aboard her captain, his wife and cook, the crew having been taken off.

BOLD ATTEMPTS

Were Made to Wreck Buildings in New York

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—The explosion of a Black Hand bomb loaded with dynamite and gun cotton in front of an Italian fruiterer's at Lexington avenue and 51st street early today rattled the windows of residences and apartment houses for a mile along fashionable Fifth avenue and awakened hundreds of guests in the hotel Plaza, the St. Regis and other fashionable hostels.

The infernal machine, which the police say was hurled by a Black Hand agent from a flying taxicab, was one of the most powerful ever exploded in New York. It tore a great hole in the pavement and completely demolished the lower portion of the fruiterer's building. A police sergeant stood at a corner a block above, watched the speeding taxicab as it leaped down the asphalted street and then was suddenly thrown off his feet when the crash came. He hopes to be able to identify the taxi-cab, which he said was jet black in color and somewhat unusual in shape.

The fruiterer, Charles Romo, who is reputedly wealthy, told the police that he had received many letters demanding money and threatened all sorts of dire punishment if the cash was not forthcoming. Romo's loss from the damage to his stock and building will probably reach $5,000.

An hour after the Lexington avenue explosion the police of the adjoining precinct reported a similar explosion on East 29th street in front of the headquarters of Anthony Caputo, proprietor of the Manhattan Manufacturing Co. The crash smashed plate glass windows in four buildings but did little other damage.

NO ONE INJURED

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 30.—A dynamite bomb, believed to have been placed in position by persons who had been refused money, was exploded in front of a house in the southern section of this city, causing considerable damage. Fortunately no person was hurt. The front of the dwelling, as well as that of the adjoining one, was wrecked and windows in houses within a radius of a block were smashed.

On April 5 last a similar explosion occurred in front of the house occupied by Peter Mancuso, a merchant. He had received a letter demanding money which was signed "Black Hand." He turned the letter over to the police, who were unable to locate those responsible for the explosion.

SERIOUS DAMAGE

Caused at Naval Station by the Storm

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—The South Atlantic hurricane violently attacked Port Royal, N. C., a naval station. Not a roof was left undamaged and all buildings used as company quarters are now untenable except a part of the marine recruit depot. The quartermaster's storehouse and commissary is in a battered condition, its roof blown away and windows demolished. A serious problem is the fact that no other buildings are available for the storage of the supplies of the station. The officers' quarters were twisted out of shape by the 90 mile gale and all their furniture badly damaged. The station is in darkness at night as all the electric light wires the previous day were blown away. The power approaches to the wharf have been destroyed and cannot be used for hauling. The wind picked up the boundary fence and hurled it away. The power and pumping plants seem to be the only things that escaped damage.

A HIGH STANDARD

Of Temperance in the U. S. Army

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—The standard of temperance in the army for both officers and men is exceptionally high and is not exceeded in the other walks of life, unless in the church and among railroad employees, said Major General Grant today in a report to the war department.

While the soldier makes a favorable showing in this connection in comparison with men in other vocations, General Grant, as commander of the department of the east during the last fiscal year, found, nevertheless, that the chief cause of court-martial trials was indulgence in alcoholic drinks.

There was a remarkable decrease, he adds, in the number of trials by court-martial in the department last year as compared with the previous twelve months. This is attributed primarily to the thorough training which recruits now receive at the recruiting depots.

AN AMERICAN

SUSPECTED OF KNOWING SOMETHING ABOUT THE "MONA LISA"

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Wm. Loeb, Jr., collector of the port of New York, announced today that an American art commissioner in Europe is under surveillance by foreign agents of the United States government co-operating with the French government in the search for "Mona Lisa," Leonardo Da Vinci's masterpiece, which disappeared from the Louvre in Paris ten days ago.

Further than the knowledge that the American under watch was in Paris at the time of the "Mona Lisa's" disappearance and was an intense admirer of the painting, there is nothing to connect him with the actual disappearance, Mr. Loeb said. The collector declined to make public his name but said he was a resident of a western city.

It was expected he would reach New York yesterday on the Kaiser Wilhelm II, but he was not aboard. Mr. Loeb added that all ports of entry on both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts had been notified to be on the lookout for the painting. He thought it would be very difficult to smuggle the masterpiece into America.

TRAIN WAS WRECKED

Several Passengers Are Reported Injured

COLUMBUS, O., Aug. 30.—A passenger train on the Hoeking Valley railroad was wrecked here this morning while entering the city. It was loaded with visitors to the state fair and several were reported injured.

The train was number 30 and left Toledo at three o'clock this morning. It was due here at 7:30 but was late. Amusement and railroad men have gone to the scene of the accident. The wreck, it is reported, occurred on a switch. No one was killed. One car left the track and was overturned. It is reported that no one was seriously hurt.

ADMIRAL TOGO

SENDS MESSAGE OF THANKS TO SECRETARY WINTHROP

WASHINGTON, Aug. 30.—Acting Secretary of the Navy Wintthrop today received the following wireless message from Admiral Togo on board a vessel in the Pacific on his way to Japan:

"Permit me to express my high appreciation of the special honor you have kindly done me in giving me an escort of the squadron upon my departure from the port of Seattle."

The armored cruisers West Virginia and Colorado yesterday escorted the Japanese admiral out of the territorial waters of the United States.

STOCK MARKET

WAS IRREGULAR AT THE CLOSE THIS AFTERNOON

The Depressing Effect Was Shaken Off—There Was An Advance In The Final Hour—Recovered Selling In Spots.

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Heavy selling this morning depressed prices rapidly. A number of issues fell to the lowest point of the present extended downward movement, including International Harvester which lost 3 1/2, Lehigh Valley 1 and S. P. K. Losses of a point were sustained by Canadian Pacific and Amalgamated Copper and virtually the entire list of active issues receded under the pressure of the heavy selling.

International Harvester extended its decline to five points and several of the active stocks went to lower levels before the downward movement was checked. On the rally U. P. made up all of its loss and Reading, U. S. Steel and some other stocks recovered to about yesterday's close.

Trading in stocks was largely in the hands of professionals during the morning. A sharp bear attack at the opening upset prices for a time but the market gradually overcame the influence of the short selling and losses were recovered.

The market became heavy again but the decline was checked before prices had fallen to the low figures of the morning. Some severe declines occurred in various inactive stocks. Texas Co. lost 2 1/2 and Northwestern 1 1/2.

Isolated points of weakness cropped out in the afternoon session but the market held well until just before two o'clock when a sudden break in Lehigh Valley to 156 1/2 carried the whole active list down a fraction with it. In the outside market Standard Oil fell to 81 1/2, compared with 81 1/2 yesterday's high figures.

The market closed irregular. The market shook off the depressing effect of the break in the Lehigh Valley and advanced decidedly in the closing hour. In the final dealings there was renewed selling in spots.

INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL

Teachers Were Chosen by the School Board Last Night

At a meeting of the school committee held last night teachers were elected to the new industrial school; A. K. Whitcomb was re-elected superintendent of schools; several resignations were received and accepted and requests for extension of leave of absence were granted. It was voted to use the Old Moody school for instruction in textiles, a portion of the Bartlett school for machine work and a part of the Moody school for instruction of girls. Principal William H. Dooley stated in his report on equipment that machinery to the value of $10,000 had been contributed, and in accordance with his recommendation the sum of $3000 was voted for supplies for the year school, the money to be spent under the direction of the committee on books and supplies.

Mr. Dooley's report was read by Supt. Whitcomb, and the following candidates elected by the committee were nominated by Mr. Dooley and recommended by Mr. Whitcomb:

Charles F. Chase, machine department, salary $1200; Fred F. Wiggin, carpentry and building construction, salary $900; Clarence E. Lescure, electrical and steam engineering, salary $800; Miss Alice L. Gookin, academic branches, salary $800; Miss Roberta E. Dranhall, housekeeping department, salary $800.

John Rourke was elected janitor.

Mr. Dooley's Report

To the School Committee of the City of Lowell:

Gentlemen:

I respectfully submit the following report after investigating the need for industrial education in the city of Lowell.

The knowledge of the industrial needs along educational lines was obtained by visits to a representative number of typical establishments in the various industries of the city and conferences with groups of operators, social workers, priests, ministers and teachers.

Lowell is a very large manufacturing community with a population of over one hundred thousand. In addition to the large number of textile industries it has also extensive iron establishments and wood working industries. It is distinctly an industrial city and depends for its very existence on its industries. The industries are of various kinds but may be roughly divided into the following groups:

The textile industries.

The machine shop trades.

The wood working and furnishing trades.

The building trades.

The clothing trades, including dressmaking and millinery, power machine work.

The leather trades.

The textile industry as a whole is the most important industry in the city and its importance in relation to industrial conditions cannot be too highly appreciated. The prosperity of the city depends to a great extent upon good industrial conditions in the mills and any system of education that will advance the skill of the operative will add materially to the wealth of the city.

There is a universal feeling among the people visited that the industrial growth of the city demands recognition in our educational system.

It is recognized that children may be either "book-minded" or "motor minded." The "book minded" children take advantage of the present opportunities, continue in one type or another of the splendid schools of the city, and finally enter professional or commercial life.

The "motor minded" girl or boy is one who learns more by seeing, handling and doing things than by studying from books. This type of child has interests and abilities for the more active and industrial pursuits.

The motor minded boys and girls who are leaving school to go to work invariably find employment in the factory occupations in the mills of the city. Very few of them have completed the grammar school work. The metal and building trades do not care to have boys enter until they are sixteen. The dressmaking, millinery and power machine trades do not care to employ girls under sixteen.

Statistics show that this type of boy and girl do not attend evening school regularly. The result is that the great mass of our children are not receiving evening classes. This work is so well done that there is no call to duplicate it. It is the opinion, though, of many mill agents and operatives that there is a place and a need of a simpler textile instruction and related information which shall be more directly connected with the everyday needs of the operatives, and some response to this call seems to be a duty. There is also a need of part time courses for children working in the mills who have left the grammar schools at the early age of fourteen.

I recommend that evening classes be established for the operatives in the following subjects in the Old Moody School during the winter season:

Evening Courses for Mill Operatives

Picker and card room practice.

Ring spinning.

Mule spinning.

Twisting, spooling and warp preparation.

Cotton weaving and loom fixing.

Cotton weaving and loom fixing (French class).

In addition a part time class for boys working in the mills between the ages of 14 and 17, on Saturday afternoons. The subjects will be:

Mill arithmetic.

Great Mound Work in Yesterday's Double-Header

The inclemency of the weather effected the attendance at the double header between Lowell and Lynn at Spalding park. There were 75 men and one woman present when Umpire Duffy called the first game shortly after two o'clock, but as the weather cleared the enthusiasts boarded the electric cars and made their way to the grounds and before the game had progressed very far there was a fair sized attendance. Among those present were Arthur Cummings, inventor of the curve ball, and "Bill" Hawes, the old time ball player.

Yount was on the mound for the home team and Huston was on the receiving end of the battery. Reiger and Daum were in the points for the visitors.

When the game was called the batting order of the teams was as follows:

Lowell	Lynn
Moulton, 2b	McGovern, 1b
Barrows, cf	Cargo, ss
Cooney, ss	Strands, 3b
Magee, lf	Wright, rf
Fluharty, rf	Boultes, 1b
Wright, 1b	Huston, c
Boultes, 3b	Yount, p
Huston, c
Yount, p

First Inning
Cooney was the first man up in the first inning and he knocked out a fly which Magee gathered in. Cargo hit to Yount and was out at first. McGovern hit along the third base line and when Umpire Duffy said "four balls" there was a big kick. "Mac" who is better known as "Terry" then fled to Barrows.

In the latter half of the inning Moulton singled to right field and then stole second. Barrows fanned the gentle zephyrus, Cooney got a free pass and Magee fled to Hammond. Fluharty hit to Logan and was out at first.

Second Inning
Daum hit to Boultes and was out at first. Strands struck out and Logan was third out on a fly to Moulton.

Reiger fled to Fluharty and Coulter was third out on a fly to Moulton. In Lowell's hit Cargo fled to Hammond, Magee struck out and Fluharty hit to Logan and died at first.

Fourth Inning
Lowell scored another run in the fourth inning while the visitors failed to send a man over the plate.

Cargo hit to Boultes and was out at first. McGovern fled to Barrows and Daum hit to Cooney and was out at first.

In the latter half of the inning Wright hit over Hammond's head for three bases and scored on a sacrifice fly by Boultes, which Hammond gathered in. Huston and Yount sent grounders to Cooney and were out at first.

Fifth Inning
In the fifth inning Strands struck out for the second time. Logan followed with a single to centre field. Wallace hit to Moulton and died at first. Strands going to second on the play. Hammond was hit by a pitched ball and walked to first, but he died there for Reiger fanned the breeze.

The home team went in one, two, three order in the latter half of the inning. Moulton struck out, Barrows fled to Strands and Boultes hit to Reiger and was out at first.

Sixth Inning
Coulter and Cargo went out on flies to Magee. McGovern singled by Cooney and Daum singled to centre field, but when McGovern tried to steal third he was thrown out.

Magee started off in the latter half of the sixth with a base on balls. Fluharty flew to Daum. Magee then stole second and went to third on a bad throw by Daum. Wright drew a base on balls. Boultes hit to Cargo, who threw to Logan at second, setting Wright, and the ball was sent to first for a double play.

Seventh Inning
Nothing but flies during the first part of the seventh. Strands fled to Boultes, Logan fled to Magee and Wallace fled to Fluharty.

Eighth Inning
Hammond hit to Yount and was out at first. Reiger fled to Fluharty. Coulter hit one too hot for Boultes to handle and the runner was safe at first. Cargo drew a base on balls, the first base on balls given by Yount during the game. Daum hit to Boultes and the latter threw Cargo out at second.

Ninth Inning
Daum started off in the ninth inning with a single to centre field. Strands got a base on balls. Logan fled to Magee. Wallace hit down the first base line and was put out by Wright. Hammond hit to Cooney who threw to Daum, but Wright dropped the ball and Daum scored. Reiger fled to Barrows.

Second Game
The second game was a pitchers' battle between Wolfgang and Swanson.

with honors about even and would have been one of the most enjoyable of the season but for the dampness and intense cold. At one time it looked as if the game wouldn't go the necessary five innings but the seven agreed upon game played and there wasn't any great kick when Umpire Duffy declared the game off at the end of the seventh. Both teams gave their pitcher excellent support. The score:

Barrows will go

Lowell Captain Will Play in Chicago

Captain Roland Barrows has reluctantly decided to go to Chicago at the close of the New England league season, although personally he would prefer to remain in Lowell even for less money than he will get in the big league, in order to be near home. But organized baseball demands his services in the big league and his refusal to go would delay him from playing here or elsewhere. In Barrows the big league is getting a good man and the league authorities realize and admit that they made a mistake when they allowed him to go. He is a fine batter and fielder a superior base runner and a conscientious player who is doing his best at all times. He has made many friends and admirers in Lowell and along the N. E. league circuit who will follow his career closely.

DIAMOND NOTES

Catchers may come and catchers may go but good old Gus Daum goes on forever, always at the top or near it; always uncompromisingly catching a few more games than the others, always willing to go in and play first when the first baseman is knocked out; getting his bumps from foul tips and umpires with a smile and no kick coming, and thus it has ever been since the good old days when he and Gene Gokey owned the little town of Nashua just north of us when they were the star battery of Dr. Collins' team and had their pictures on everybody's parlor mantel in the up-river city. Yesterday Gus had a centennial anniversary, catching his 100th game of the season in the first game of the double-header. Three times foul tips hit his mask in the same place and after the game Gus discovered that he had received a cut over the left temple. "Going to catch the next game!"

queried the writer, of Gus after the first game.

"What another? Not likely. If any catcher in this league has caught more than Young Daum this season, I'd like to shake his hand and sympathize with him," replied Gus as he mopped his bruised thigh.

A few moments later Duffy's Adeline Patti tones were heard announcing: "Batter-up for Lynn, S-S-Swanson and Daum."

Gus picked up his mask and approaching the press box whispered: "You know what I just told you about not catching? Well, forget it. I was only joking, only I didn't know it. Daum proposes but Leonard disposes." And he went in and caught his usual fine game.

Here is Daum's record up to today's game: G, 151; ab, 310; r, 34; hh, 32; tb, 115; batting av, .297; p, 340; a, 104; e, 9; fielding av, .970; sh, 12; sb, 24. Any catcher who will go 101 games with only 9 errors out of 653 chances is some catcher and any player who rounds 100 games with a batting average of .297 is no nutt with the willow.

Both sides got after Umpire Duffy yesterday though if he made bad decisions he made them to Lowell's advantage, but the unkindest out of all was after the first game when the Sage of Lawrence street after an animated verbal cross fire with the little umpire called him a "tramp printer." That did get Duffy's goat, and the libel laws forbid us stating what Duffy came back with.

That catch of Harry Huston's against the grand stand after running through a puddle of water was one of the cleanest things of the season. In order to protect himself from a crash Harry had to walk up the side of the stand as it were.

All four pitchers were there with the goods yesterday though. Fred Reiger's seven bases on balls detracted from what otherwise would have been magnificent work.

Well, we slipped one over on Worcester, anyway.

In the opinion of some fans Jimmie

Gray is regarded by the other managers as a rank outsider and they are all out to keep the pennant away from Lowell. If this is so, we'll accept the challenge and ask to be shown.

Duggan is back from Frederickton and will play with Lowell for the remainder of the season.

If any other paper but a Worcester paper printed the following we would ignore it, but coming from the Worcester Telegram, relative to the Worcester team, its worth reading. The story runs thus:

Catcher Millman didn't work against the Busters yesterday. Maybe it was because the management wanted to give Perkins a chance or maybe it was because Millman's arm is a bit lame, which his throwing Saturday night indicates.

Maybe it was for another reason. A whisper was heard after Saturday's game that maybe Millman handed Aubrey a tip on what was coming in that 18th inning, when Aubrey laid to a curve and valloped out the best hit of the game.

It would be rather mean to accuse a catcher of any such thing if there wasn't ground for it, and there may be no more ground for the story than there is for many a tale of the field that gets going.

But some of the players were saying Aubrey and Millman are great friends, live on the same street when at home during the winter, and maintain their friendship everywhere. Almost everybody was anxious to see some sort of a break in the game, which was going to such unusual length.

It was an easy foul of Aubrey's that Millman snuffed just before the hit was made, an easy foul to snuff, but then, of course, it's the easy ones that often give the greatest bother.

All of which might make anyone hearing the rumor think maybe there was some foundation for it.

Capt. Barrows went six times up with nary a hit.

Worcester plays in Lynn Thursday and Lynn in Worcester Friday and Saturday. As for Lowell, bring on the Pied Pipers!

Lowell will play a double header at Lawrence Friday and Lawrence at Lowell Saturday. Special cars both ways.

Umpire Duffy chased Bazick from the coach line for tipping off signals. Then Bazick got fresh and was banished from the grounds. Bazick at the present time is a great coach-line pitcher, but not so much on the mound.

That error of Wright's in the ninth inning of the first game might have cost Lowell the game and the pennant. Happily it did neither.

Coming in on the car yesterday, I overheard a fan confidentially telling his companion: "That's the d—st schedule I ever heard of and that man Burkett had it fixed that way. He knew that it was going to be close at the finish and he had the schedule made up so that Lowell would have to fight a strong club like Lawrence." It's a good bet, too, that Jesse framed it up with the weather man to give us this weather, though we fooled him yesterday. Jesse is certainly the Desperado Desmond of the N. E. league.

Way back in 1904 Billy Hamilton ran the N. E. league record for run-getting up to 112, the highest number before or since. Yesterday Alie Moulton had scored 111 runs, only one behind the record of years and he has some 15 more games in which to build up a new record.

HOWELL WON BOUT

Ray Bronson Was Given a Surprise

BOSTON, Aug. 30.—Tommy Howell of Philadelphia, who had given the local sports a couple of surprises before, handed out another one last night at the Armory A. A. by winning the decision over Ray Bronson of Indianapolis in the feature bout of 12 rounds.

The award was won by such a big margin that even the fans who had made Bronson a topheavy favorite did not make a kick about the decision.

In view of the work that Bronson has done here, in this country and Australia and England, he was looked on as a sure winner, but there were some of the fans who "kidded" Howell's chances, after the way he boxed here against Dick Nelson and Young Donahue.

That Donahue is not the boxer he was when here before, was very evident from his work last night. He did not display the snap and cleverness that he previously showed.

Still, Howell is such an awkward boxer that he is likely to bother at most any opponent. All through the contest Howell kept his left arm well extended, and his shoulder was raised so high that it was a difficult job to land on his jaw.

Only in two rounds did Bronson have the advantage. In the second round he landed a short right on Howell's jaw, and the latter staggered, but by covering up he managed to keep Bronson from following with any more dangerous punches.

Howell Jabs Repeatedly
In every round Howell jabbed Bronson repeatedly, and often when in close he would shoot a right up Bronson's jaw. In most of the exchanges Howell showed to advantage, and when they went into a clinch Bronson would plant the right on the kidneys, while Howell would send the right to the wind.

Bronson frequently tried to land a left jab on Howell, but most of the blows went over Howell's shoulder. The Hoosier boxer often tried to land the right on the jaw, but only a few times did he succeed, and the ones he landed were a bit too high to score a K. O. Howell used good judgment in getting away from the right. A couple of times Bronson tried to land the pivot blow, but Howell blocked them off.

The Quaker city boxer took the lead from the start, and he boxed so well that Bronson never was on even terms with him. That Howell showed as well as he did was remarkable in view of what Bronson forced him to do before he would box. They agreed to weight 140 pounds at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

Bronson was at weight, but Howell was three pounds over. Bronson made him take off the three pounds, and Howell had to do some hard training to do it.

When the referee pointed to Howell as the winner everyone was satisfied.

AN EQUATIC FEAT

On Saturday afternoon, Howard Cove, a nineteen year old Centralville young man, set a stiff pace to follow. He ran his canoe into the water at West's boatshop on the Merrimack, and paddled to Tyngsboro bridge. Then, without pausing, he turned his canoe over to Sam Doherty and dove into the water. He swam back to the boatshop, seven and one-half miles. The long paddle, alone, is a hard grind, but combined with the swim, makes a feat of severe endurance. He was in the water four hours and fifteen minutes, and swam against a strong, cold wind. Cove is well known among athletic circles, especially canoeists, and has the distinction of owning the classiest canoe on the river Merrimack.

SPITBALL HASN'T AFFECTED WALSH'S ARM, AS RECENT GAME PROVES

CHICAGO, Aug. 30.—There is one only man to reach first base was Clyde Engle, who got there on a pass. The only other boxman to accomplish this Baseball Hall of Fame feat this season is Joe Wood of the Boston Americans, but his performance wasn't as impressive as that of Walsh. Although Walsh has been twirling all kinds of wonderful games since he broke into the big leagues, this is the first time that he pulled off a feat like the recent one in this city.

We do not know what will be the attitude of socialists in regard to the new city charter, although a number of socialists have come out in favor of the new form of government. This was to be expected for the reason that the municipality as it will then be governed will be the nearest approach to the cooperative commonwealth that we know of. The voters are as stockholders and have a voice in the election of all officers. Not only this, they can oust the elected officials and nullify measures adopted by the municipal board; and this we surmise is as much as the citizens of a cooperative commonwealth could hope to do. The new form of government places absolute power in the hands of the people and nowhere else. The socialists, we surmise, want good and economic government as well as anybody else, and for that reason it will be to their own advantage to vote for the new charter.

THE ANNEXATION BOGEY

The use of the annexation bogey against reciprocity in Canada is an example of the unfair tactics being adopted by the conservatives in efforts to defeat reciprocity by any means foul or fair. They might as well talk of the annexation of Africa to the United States at the present time. The peace treaties signed between this country and England and France and likely to be ratified by the United States senate with slight amendment gives the lie to this claptrap invented to confuse the voters and arouse suspicion in the minds of the people.

THE THEATRE PANIC

There should be a law making it a criminal offense for anybody to shout "Fire" in a theatre or any other place where a large number of people are assembled in an auditorium. Twenty-six lives were lost in a panic at a little theatre at Camonsburg, Pa., and about the same number injured as a result of a fire panic started by a boy when in reality there was no fire. Nobody waited to find out but all rushed towards the exit only to pile in a heap at the bottom of the stairs. It was a most horrible occurrence and yet such as may happen in any picture theatre where the films go wrong and somebody in the audience gets frightened at a few sparks. It should be said, however, that the Massachusetts state police insist upon extreme precautions against explosives in all picture houses in this state. It is not known whether the boy who caused the panic was killed, but a law imposing a severe penalty for such foolishness as he displayed on that occasion might prevent such occurrences in the future.

DEFENDING MURDER AND SUICIDE

A man named Edward Bennett of South Thomaston, Me., a graduate of Oxford university and apparently in full possession of his senses, decided to kill his three children and himself for the sole reason that his wife having died some time before, he wanted to join her in the life beyond and did not want to leave the children behind. He left a long letter defending his course with arguments which, although based on wrong premises, could not be framed by an unsound mind.

Here is another case of what we have repeatedly referred to in these columns, the total absence of any sense of moral responsibility for one's own life or that of those dependent upon him. Here was a father who had lost his wife, a most natural occurrence. Instead of taking courage and doing the best he could for his children, he whined for his lost wife and after mature deliberation decided to kill the three children and then to end his own life.

The murder was one of the most cold-blooded on record, and what makes the crime more horrifying still is, that the father appeared to assume divine approval of his acts and that he could justify his crime when face to face with God. He even belittled the crime by saying in his letter that it was not murder, and that he wished he had never committed any greater sin.

That crime and the sentiments by which this educated man tried to justify it should bear a lesson to others on the moral responsibility of parents for the lives of their children as well as for their own lives. This man repudiated the idea that he committed murder in killing his children. He claimed to be only removing them for their own good. His line of reasoning would justify murder to ease pain, to end sorrow or to avoid disgrace, all of which is a very dangerous doctrine; and yet we see it here advocated by a highly educated man.

It is to be hoped that his example will not move the weak-minded and the hair-brained to similar acts of murder and suicide. Had this man possessed a clear idea of his responsibility to the Creator for his own life and for the lives of his children, and if in addition to this he had possessed a healthy faith in the doctrine of future rewards and punishments, we do not believe he would have deliberately decided to commit such a crime while in his right mind.

Yet when we consider the motives under which many suicides and murders similar to these are committed we find many resulting from the lack of a due sense of moral responsibility. This is frequently apparent in the fact that suicides and to a less extent murderers while planning the most heinous crimes in the calendar, invoke the blessing of heaven upon their foul deeds. Where any such belief prevails the man or woman who needs disappointment or adversity is liable to commit some crime such as did this man at Thomaston, Me. The suicide germ is one that should be stamped out by every means possible. The victim escapes earthly punishment and hence the only way suicide can be prevented is by denouncing it as the resort of cowards, a crime fully as bad as murder and never justified by any circumstance or condition of life. The fact seems to be forgotten that either crime is a violation of the divine command, "Thou shalt not kill."

THE TOWN OF HAY

The town of Hay is far away,
The town of Hay is far;
Between its hills of green and gray
Its winding meadows are.
Within the quiet town of Hay
Is many a quiet gleam,
And there by many a shaded way
Afe homes of quiet men.
And there are many hearts always
That turn with longing night and day,
Back to the town of Hay.

Within the good old town of Hay
There was no pride of birth,
And no man there pursued his way
A stranger in the earth;
And none were high and none were low.
Of golden hair or gray,
And each would grieve at others' woe
Down in the town of Hay;
And many a world-scorned soul today
Mid crowded thousands far away
Weeps for the town of Hay.

A road leads from the town of Hay
To a world of din,
And winds and wanders far away—
And many walked therein;
Far in the crowds of toil and stress
Their restless footsteps stray,
Their souls have lost the quietness
Of that old town of Hay;
But in some respite of the fray,
In transient dreams they fleet away,
Back to the town of Hay.

Old men are in that town of Hay,
And it is quiet there,
Who dream of strong sons far away
Upon the stormy seas,
Old women, when the twilight dew
The woodbine leaves have pearled,
Dream of their boys who wander Through
The wilderness of the world,
And tears fall in the twilight gray
And prayers go up at close of day
In that old town of Hay.

A hillside in the town of Hay
Is slanting toward the sun,
And gathered 'neath its headstone gray
Are sleepers, one by one;
And there are tears in distant lands,
And grief too deep for tears,
And furewells waved from phantom hands
Across the gulf of years;
And when they place that headstone gray,
It craves hearts so far away
From that old town of Hay.

The superstition of the horseshoe, "Constant Reader," is the survival of the superstition that prevailed in olden times that a horseshoe nailed over the door would keep away witches. There was in the more superstitious days, also, a legend concerning an episode in the career of W. Dunstan which may have had some influence. Dunstan was noted for his skill in shoeing horses, and it is said that the devil one day asked to have his single hoof shod. Dunstan, knowing his his customer was, tied him tight to a wall and purposely put him to so much pain that the devil dared not return. Dunstan at last consented to release him on the terms that he was never again to enter a place where a horseshoe was displayed.

Mason and Dixon's line was the name given to the boundary line between Pennsylvania and Maryland, surveyed in 1763-67, by Charles Mason and Jeremiah Dixon, two English engineers, for the purpose of settling the long-standing border disputes between the two colonies. It ran due west in north latitude, 39 degrees 43 minutes 26.3 seconds, for 245 miles, and for the first 122 miles was marked with stone posts, at intervals of one mile. The phrase, "Mason and Dixon's Line," was probably established in the language of the people from the fact that John Randolph of Roanoke made frequent use of it during the exciting debates in congress on the question of excluding slavery from Missouri, and referred to it as the boundary line between slavery and freedom.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

New Bedford Mercury: Simon Lynch, a candidate for nomination as a representative to the general assembly, publishes a platform in the course of which he says that if elected he will refuse to introduce any bill without knowing its contents, "thereby," he says, "protecting myself and you from fool legislation." If Simon Lynch will amend his platform, agreeing not to introduce any legislation whatever, and to vote against legislation of every kind, our protection against fool legislation will be more secure. We are almost persuaded to offer our support to any candidate who will make this vow.

equo. He desires to have the histories used in the schools of his State contain this passage: "That infamous scoundrel Sherman and his army burned Columbia." Somebody ought to tell him the war is over. What a lovely bunch of histories we're going to have in this country some day! Every few weeks somebody somewhere rises up and wants to have cut out from schools anything that in any way seems to reflect on some nationality, or some person, or some religious tenet or some happening; and other people want to have something inserted in school histories that will hammer smashingly somebody or some nation that the would-be-history-changer doesn't like. It seems as though we might safely trust the historians to put enough prejudice and enough mistakes into their work without adding to it the passions and prejudices of the general public.

QUEBEC MAY DECIDE ISSUE. Newport News: The Province of Quebec, in which the population is largely French-Canadian, is regarded as the pivotal ground in the fight for the approaching Parliamentary elections, in which the contest for the reciprocity agreement with the United States will be decided. Throughout that province the campaign is being waged with great vigor and much party feeling. Bourassa, the Nationalist leader, denouncing Premier Laurier as too Imperialistic and Laurier replying that Bourassa is a "wildfire." It is evident that the Canadians know how to conduct a lively campaign.

THE ANNEXATION BOGEY Worcester Post: Three of the promoters of the Canadian provinces, British Columbia, Ontario and New Brunswick are on the stump fighting reciprocity, as the battle daily wages hotter in Canada and its result more doubtful. Not only is the regulation argument of protectionism, that the Yankees can undersell the Canadians a tariff wall is removed, being worked for all it is worth but the "annexation scare" is apparently curiously effective. As a campaign song puts it: "Would you make the stolen British flag a dirty spangled cotton rag?" Humbug seems to be inseparable from the doctrine everywhere.

GREAT BARGAIN

AEROPLANE FLIGHT AND STATE FAIR AT NASHUA

All roads will lead to Nashua on Labor Day. On Monday, Sept. 4, the Great Aviation meet at Boston will close with a cross-country flight in which all the birdmen, 20 or more in number, will start for the big cash prizes offered. With decent weather, it is a sure thing that practically all the starters will reach the first place of landing, Nashua, and most of them will restart from there. This makes Nashua the best place of the four corners of the great inter-state race to see the machines. For the nominal sum of 50 cents one can enter the gates and get a view of the birdmen at close range. Elsewhere he would be charged double the price for this alone. Reports of the starts at Atlanta, Worcester and Providence, telegraphed to Nashua, and announced on the grounds, so that all within the gates may keep a personal record of the movements of the fliers, and have the final results at first hand. The airships will land at the oval, inside the race track. All except those connected with the machines will be kept outside a wire fence, which has been installed the entire distance round the grounds. This fence does not obstruct the view from any direction, and if the number in attendance reached 50,000, which the State Fair management expects, everyone will have a good chance to see the machines.

Special parking has been provided for automobiles, the occupants of which will have a clear view of the aviation field. After the flight, all the attractions of the State Agricultural fair will be at the elbows of those who have passed the gates. A complete horse, cattle and farm produce show, an automobile show, poultry and pet stock show, and special dog show under American Kennel club rules, are a small part of the good things in the fairgrounds.

There will be horse racing daily, a firemen's muster on Wednesday, Sept. 6, and a Marathon race Thursday, Sept. 7, the last day of the fair. Each day there will be several repetitions of high double fire diving act, with performances of 150 trained animals, Japanese juggling and acrobatic work. The mile long midway will contain countless attractions. The New Hampshire state fair at Nashua this year will be the biggest attraction of the kind offered in central New England this year. The throngs of people who attend will be enormous, and they will be well worth coming to see by themselves.

Trolley cars are to run directly to the grounds. There are to be extra trains and trolley service at reduced rates.

THE BAY STATE TEAM

Was Fourth in the Rifle Shoot

CAMP PERRY, O., Aug. 30.—The Massachusetts rifle team did not win the national trophy in the competition which closed here yesterday, but it did beat out every other state team in the country and took fourth place, being beaten only by the U. S. marines, who took first honors, the U. S. infantry and the U. S. navy.

At that the Massachusetts team was beaten out only in the skirmish run, the three leading teams making phenomenal scores. At the close of the 600-yard shooting Massachusetts was in third place, with the infantry and marines leading, and at the finish of the 100-yard shooting Massachusetts was in second place, being only 18 points below the infantry.

The way the Massachusetts men shot at the range made the other teams take notice. When the last two men, Keough and Reid, laid down the team was only three points below the winners. But at this time the conditions were changed, and all the pairs could do was changed, and the last pair of the infantry rolled up 81.

The shooting of the Bay State team was most consistent throughout the match, as will be seen by the scores. Sergt. Jettis was top man with 251, an average of 47 at each range. Sergt. Schofield came next with 273 and Sergt. Van Amburg next with 270. For men on the field beat these scores, and, in fact, Jettis' score was reported to be the best. The winners and scores:

Class A—U. S. marine corps first, 3180; U. S. infantry second, 3118; U. S. navy, third, 3113; Massachusetts fourth, 3103; Ohio fifth, 3080. Class B—Kansas first, 3050; West Virginia second, 3027; Arizona third, 2978; Florida fourth, 2962. Class C—Tennessee first, 2857; Delaware second, 2819; Virginia third, 2797; North Dakota fourth, 2788. Class A—Marines take national trophy and $450, infantry $350, navy $300, Massachusetts $250. Class B—Kansas gets Hilton trophy

A great medical authority says that eczema is the most important, most annoying and the most common of all skin troubles; that one-third of all skin diseases are eczema in some form, and that proper treatment will always relieve and cure it. Sometimes it is called salt rheum, moist tetter and various other names. The best known treatment is to first stop the itching, and then proceed to treat the sores. That is exactly what Cadum, the new remedy does, and it acts so quickly that relief is felt as soon as it is applied. Try a 10-cent box, and if your trouble is eczema, Cadum will help you immediately. It is also good for redness, pimples, blotches, rash, scaly skin, roughness, chafings, acne, sores, ulcers, eruptions, bites, tetter, itch, herpes, psoriasis, ringworm, etc.

and $350, West Virginia $250, Arizona $225, Florida $200. Class C—Tennessee takes Soldier of Marathon trophy and $300, Delaware $200, Virginia $150, Dakota $150. Bronze medals go to each man in each class.

The Massachusetts team members are much elated over their success, especially over leading all the other state teams and the U. S. cavalry.

Adj. Gen. Pearson, who is here, said he was perfectly satisfied with the work of the team, which, he added, was most creditable.

Of the four winning teams, three did all the preliminary practice at the Wakefield range. Connecticut, Rhode Island and Vermont fell away behind yesterday and finished far down in the list.

The Massachusetts team last night is celebrating and is being heartily congratulated on beating out such teams as Ohio, New York, Wisconsin and Minnesota. The team will leave for home today.

NOMINATION PAPERS

Were Filed by Between 7000 and 8000 Candidates

BOSTON, Aug. 30.—Between 7000 and 8000 candidates for nomination for offices to be filed at the state election had filed nomination papers with the secretary of the commonwealth when the time for filing closed at 5 p. m. yesterday. This is between 4000 and 6000 less than the number expected, which means that fully 2000 offices which might be voted for at the primaries on Sept. 26 will be without regularly named candidates.

Most of the offices for which no candidates appear are ward and town committees, which are regarded as of little importance under the new direct primary system. There are several representative and senatorial districts in which there are no contests, and according to the secretary of state there may be many more by the time the papers are all properly serialized.

Hundreds of papers which came in Saturday, Monday and yesterday, must stand as they are, the time for correction of mistakes having expired with the expiration of the time for filing. The experience in the secretary of state's office has been that at least 5 per cent. of the papers are defective, and wherever time permitted the candidate has been notified and the necessary corrections made. But in the case of the papers coming in the last rush this was impossible.

In all cases where a candidate fails to get his name on the official ballot, either because he neglected to file papers or because his papers were defective, he still has the privilege of running on stickers. This will be of little avail, of course, where there is a contest, but it affords a ready means of filling all vacancies. In any district, for instance, where the democrats have no candidate on the official primary ballot, all they will have to do will be to have a few men go to the primary and mark their ballots for the man who is wanted. That would give him the same right to a place on the election ballot as if he had gone to the trouble of getting out nomination papers.

There are 11 democratic and 10 republican candidates for the six places on the state ticket, and in all except two cases the democratic candidates have also filed papers under the designation "Democratic Progressive." The two exceptions are Frank J. Donohue, anti-machine candidate for secretary of the commonwealth, and John F. Duffy, anti-machine candidate for attorney-general.

There is quite a mix-up over the democratic progressive nominations.

CARVILLE ARRESTED OF INTEREST TO WOMEN IS NOT A CANDIDATE

He Will be Charged With Breaking and Entering

Edward Carville of 144 Rock street, met them on the way from Lowell and that they were going to Aroostook county together. He was taken to police headquarters and upon being searched two rings, a gold stickpin and other articles were found on his person.

Two men who were with him at the time he was arrested on suspicion of larceny but Carville said that he broke into Mrs. Chase's house and stole considerable jewelry.

KNIVES WERE USED

Serious Trouble in Sullivan's Court Last Night

Two stabbing affrays in Sullivan's court, off Fenwick street, last night caused consternation among the foreigners who reside in that section and incidentally gave the police considerable trouble. It is alleged that the second assault came as the result of the first one. There are several factious who reside in the vicinity of Fenwick street and they are disposed to quarrel; and but for the presence of the police last night there might have been a race riot. Two of the alleged assailants were arrested and brought before the court this morning but the third man made his escape.

The men arrested were Andrew Stanislawski and Philip Joe. The former was charged with assaulting John Murawski and the latter with assaulting John Kucharska and Agata Kucharska. None of the persons stabbed were badly hurt for after having the wounds dressed at the Lowell hospital they returned to their homes and were able to appear in police court this morning.

According to the police Murawski left his house in Sullivan's court about 9:30 o'clock last night and going to a nearby saloon purchased a can of beer and was returning with the wet goods when Stanislawski and Wladislaw Sogal pounced upon him and one of the men stabbed him between the shoulders and the other stabbed him back of the left ear.

Murawski was so excited that he did not realize he had been stabbed until he reached home when some of the occupants of the house noticed the blood flowing from his ear. In taking off his clothes in order to dress the wound behind the ear it was found that the back of his outer shirt was stained with blood and an examination showed that there was a knife wound in the back.

His wounds were dressed but later it was decided to send him to the hospital and he was taken to the Lowell hospital where his injuries were dressed.

The matter was reported to the police and Patrolman Markham succeeded in arresting Stanislawski but Sogal made his escape.

The news of the assault was quickly circulated and it is alleged that members of the other faction started on the war path and armed with deadly weapons laid in wait for the combatants of the alleged assailants.

Philip Joe heard of the fight and during the time which it is alleged he was lying in wait for some of the friends of the alleged assailants he visited several liquor saloons and shortly before eleven o'clock returned to his home in Sullivan's court and was met by the police.

A WOMAN LAWYER

Who is a Good Carpenter as Well

Mrs. Jeanne B. Marion of Queens, N. Y., recently shingled her own roof.

Mrs. Marion was admitted to the bar several years ago and works outdoors on her house during the summer to gain health for her "shut in" office work during the winter.

"Oh, yes," she said, smiling, "I could afford to have this work done by a man, but I want to do it myself. In Denmark, where I was born, there are many women carpenters, and I am proud of the fact that I can drive a nail straight."

"What could be better diversion after hammering at the law all winter than hammering shingles on my own roof?"

The only woman in the south to occupy the position of sheriff is Miss Gertrude Hendricks of Analostan, Ala.

One reason she was appointed a deputy sheriff and placed in charge of the office was that there is always about a car load of contraband whisky, beer and wine held awaiting orders from the courts in the county, which is under prohibition, and Sheriff Brooks wanted a woman who could guard this without the temptation to which his force of men have been subjected, and some of whom have thus and again yielded.

Part of her duties also consists in visiting theatres and picture shows in the capacity of censor to suppress things when they get too broad.

Mrs. Hugh Knapp of Washington is making money with a machine which holds eight passengers. She conducts the parties herself and makes two trips a day, always with every seat taken. Her car is modish, has pretty, bright cushions, and the feminine touch is apparent everywhere.

"The women of Paris have practically discarded underwear. With their corsets and dresses—and most of their dresses are empire—they do not wear either corsets or petticoats, simply some sort of a brassiere and then tights and then their gowns," says a fashion expert recently returned from Paris.

Mrs. Georgette Le Blanc, wife of Maurice Macerlin, has formulated ten rules for the guidance of a successful wife, as follows:

First—Never allow hirelings to tend your husband in what concerns his bodily welfare.

Second—See that his clothes are ready each day and befitting the season of the year.

Third—Assume the qualities of a barometer that you may foresee the electric disturbances which visit every marriage.

Fourth—When your husband is in a bad temper don't develop similar symptoms, but when he is merry imitate him unflinchingly.

Fifth—Don't fondle him before mealtime. Kisses to a hungry man are as soap bubbles to a parched throat.

Sixth—Use your tongue only in agreement. Disapproval is best expressed with the eyes.

Seventh—If your husband has the gout don't insist on walking.

Eighth—If you wish to convince him that you are a better actress than Bernhardt and a sprightlier dancer than Pavlova show him that you are a better cook than Escottier.

Ninth—A wife's duties are, among others, to smooth over domestic tiffs—a man never admits he is in the wrong—to attend to the household finances and to have an eye for the week after next.

Tenth—Finally, never lose sight of fact in making all these sacrifices that if man supports the family, woman is his superior in far more ways than his is hers.

The only woman wireless operator on the great lakes is Miss Emma Ngu-

DISCONTENTED WIFE

Makes Life Too Easy for Herself

The discontented wife is so much of a real social factor nowadays that we are hearing about her on all sides.

The main trouble with the American woman who is discontented, all agree, is that she evades the hard side of life and, therefore has too much leisure and too little interests and responsibilities in life.

You rarely hear of a busy woman being unhappy. She has no time for that. The mother of six children scrubbing at a wash tub is apt to be more at peace than Mrs. Social Climber who lives in an apartment hotel with no tradesman to worry over and no family cares to annoy her.

Because her life is so empty the latter takes up the social craze and suffers more at it and works harder than most men.

The woman who has millions to spend can find plenty of interest—travel, expensive athletics, motoring, etc.

It is the wife of small means who is fairly well dressed, fairly well lodged and left with a great deal of time on her hands and no money to spend who spends her life in morbid dreams and imaginings. Our women should imitate the foreign women and take an interest in life.

Women on the other side of the water are continually studying to improve themselves and take an interest in the subjects of the day.

They are artistic, musical, poetic and always interested in every thing be it science or fashions. Dress and display do not occupy the prominent positions they do with our women. They understand the art of wearing an old gown and shining with new thought. They are always creating, never repeating.

They would never out of respect to their complexions and power of attractiveness allow themselves to become bored.

Let the American woman who is bored choose an interest in life that will do her or some else good; that is the secret of removing the national feminine ennui which seems to be overwhelming us.

CREME A LA NARCISSE
Bring one pint of milk just to a boil and then stir in half an ounce of leaf gelatin, and directly the gelatin is dissolved pour the milk on to the well beaten yolks of two eggs. Put this custard into a pan and stir over the fire till it begins to thicken. Now pour it into a shallow dish and leave for at least an hour till quite cool. When the custard begins to set which it up till it forms a sponge, then pour it into china molds previously rinsed out in cold water, and garnished with glace cherries. Leave them in a cool place till set, when you turn out and serve with whipped and flavored cream.

THE HOBBLE EVENING COAT

LAMB AND TOMATO MAYONNAISE

Half a pound of tomatoes, one yolk of egg, desiccated powder of vinegar, two tablespoonsfuls and a half of salad oil, slices of cold boiled lamb, watercress. Skin the tomatoes, cut each half and place in a dish. Take the yolk of one egg, place it in a basin, stir gently with a wooden spoon, adding the oil drop by drop until a thick cream is prepared. Add the vinegar until the sauce is reduced to a nice consistency. This sauce must be made in a cool place. Spread a little of this mayonnaise over each half of tomato, let it cool again and garnish the dish with fresh watercress. Cut all the slices of lamb to the same size and arrange them down the center of the dish. Garnish potatoes or a good green salad may accompany this dish.

CHOCOLATE CUSTARD

Mix three ounces of powdered chocolate smoothly with one gill of cold milk. Boil three-quarters of a pint of milk and stir in the mixed chocolate. Boil well, adding four ounces of sugar. Leave the mixture till cool, then beat in three eggs and flavor with a few drops of essence of vanilla. Pour it all into a saucepan, stand this in a second pan half full of boiling water and stir until the eggs begin to thicken, then pour into small custard glasses and when cold set garnish with whipped cream and crystallized violets.

TO KEEP YOLKS OF EGGS

When the whites of eggs have been used and the yolks are not wanted until the next day, beat them up with a little warm water and then stand in a cool place.

Governor Foss Not in the Presidential Contest

BOSTON, Aug. 30.—Gov. Foss returned to Boston yesterday professing much confidence as ever in the success of the democratic cause in the coming election. He expressed the belief that President Taft, Senator Lodge and the three candidates for the republican gubernatorial nomination had done a lot for him during his absence in the west, and that it would not be necessary for him to do much campaigning on his own account.

Incidentally the governor denied that he was a candidate for president or vice-president of the United States, declaring that to be governor of Massachusetts was all the honor that he craved at this time. He said he would be glad to meet the republicans on any issue, national or local, and had no fear of the result.

"I don't know that I need to hurry about my campaign," he said, "because from what I hear Messrs. White, Frothingham and Walker, with the assistance of President Taft and Senator Lodge, have been making my campaign for me."

Ready for Any Issue
"I haven't read the speeches of the president or the senior senator, but if I have been correctly informed as to what they said I have no hesitation in saying that we shall fight this campaign on national, state or any other issues they wish to select, and that I will be reelected governor by an increased majority."

In my opinion, the president missed a great opportunity when he vetoed the Payne-Aldrich tariff bill, Mr. Taft went on record as against the woolen and cotton schedules, expressing the belief that they were excessive and needed revision.

In the extra session of congress he had bills presented to him which did exactly what he said ought to be done, and yet he vetoed them, showing that he was not sincere.

"It is all right for the president to talk about his tariff commission. We well know that the tariff board is not a tariff commission. It is composed, it is true, of some very admirable gentlemen, some of whom we know. But its obligation is only to recommend to the president, leaving him to act as he pleases."

The governor said he was very much surprised at the talk that he had in the state machine to make up a slate of candidates for the primaries. "It is absolutely untrue," he said. "I know nothing about it."

Asked about candidates for the democratic nomination for president, Mr. Foss said he thought Wilson was pretty strong in the west, but he didn't feel competent to say much about it. He regarded the outlook for democratic victory in 1912 as particularly bright everywhere he had been.

Welcomes Mr. Hiscorn
He said he welcomed Mr. Hiscorn as an opponent for the gubernatorial nomination. As to the chances of the several candidates for the republican nomination he would express no opinion. "It is all the same to me," he said, "which of them wins."

The governor said he would give his attention at once to the selection of a dock commission and a chief justice of the supreme court. "I have no one in mind for any place on the dock commission," he said, "and I should be very glad of suggestions, especially for the chairmanship. I intend to confer with Chief Justice Knowlton before making selection for his place."

One of the ideas which the governor said he brought back from the west was for the erection of a $100,000 building in San Francisco for the exhibition of New England products. He would maintain this building as a permanent proposition.

THE OPERA HOUSE

E. D. Stair will present his pair of clever comedians, Ward & Vokes, for their annual visit at the Opera House on Saturday matinee and evening, September 2d in the second edition of the musical comedy success "The Trouble Makers," which title seems to fit them properly, for during the action of the farce they are in all sorts of trouble. It is said that wherever "The Trouble Makers" has been presented the theatre going public has been unanimous in its high praise of this attraction.

An organization of fifty people supports these stars, many of whom are ladies who, in the near future, will be prima donnas.

Lucy Daly, who has been associated with Ward & Vokes in all their previous successes, will play one of the most important parts, "Dabbling Bass," who is continually on the hunt for secrets and then keeps them by telling them to everyone.

Lovers of good, wholesome fun will find "The Trouble Makers" one of the funniest of all musical comedies. The play is written around a Woman's Suffrage society of which, disguised as women, both Percy and Harold are elected president and treasurer, causing ludicrous mishaps and many trials and tribulations.

A carload of new scenery, properties and electrical effects, new and costly wardrobe and fifty of the best farceurs obtainable are all used in "The Trouble Makers."

"THE THIEF"
"The Thief," at the Opera House, Labor day, matinee and night, tells a story of how a woman stole large sums of money to buy clothes in order to make herself attractive to the eyes of her husband whom she dearly loved. The second act of this great success is claimed to be the most startling series of scenes ever presented on the stage. Seats Thursday morning—Adv.

MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE
No better or cleaner vaudeville entertainment has been offered for the approval of the theatregoing public in seasons than that which is being presented at the Merrimack Square theatre this week. Not a week point can be noted in the entire bill; Kendall Weston and his associate players are scoring one of the biggest hits of the season in the presentation of E. F. Payne's favorite one-act play, "What Money Can't Buy." Mr. Weston as John Blake, the rich American who finds and wins one of the English nobility in London, is especially pleasing, and Miss Florence Phelps and Mr. James Byrne, who assist, are entirely capable.

LAKEVIEW THEATRE
"The Daughter of Fate" is being offered for the approval of theatre-going public by the Augustus Perry company at the Lakeview theatre for the first three days of this week. The drama is written by Miss Perry of that company and is full of difficult and pleasing situations, which are bound to hold the interest of the audience. Comedy is also found in abundance, of a high class type that is sure to produce the laugh in the right place. Walter Downing is again the hero of the drama, and is ably assisted by the full strength of the company. The stage effects are excellent and everything that goes to make a good show is found there. For the last three days of this week the subject will be changed to "The Square Love," another of Miss Perry's own productions. Matinees will be given every day this week.—Adv.

DINNER TO PRESIDENT
MINNEAPOLIS, Aug. 30.—The dinner to be given Pres. Taft on the occasion of his visit to Minneapolis, Oct. 24, will not be a dress suit affair, according to members of the Young Men's Republican club, who will entertain the president that night. At a meeting of the members of the club which was called today it is expected that a plan to make the dinner a popular one and not an exclusive affair will be adopted and the price was fixed at $1 a plate.

RAIN AT READVILLE
READVILLE, Aug. 30.—Showery conditions still prevailed at the Readville track early today, making uncertain the starting of the week's Grand Circuit racing. With stables full of fast stagers and many followers of the sport eager to see the exhibitions there was much disappointment over the weather prospects.

THE PROSECUTION ENDS

The Evidence Against Beattie is All In

CHESTERFIELD COURTHOUSE, Va., Aug. 30.—Hasty preparations were made overnight by the commonwealth to combat today the testimony given by 15-year-old Alexander Robertson yesterday that he had seen on the Midlothian turnpike bloodspots other than the pool of blood where Mrs. Henry C. Beattie, Jr., is alleged to have been killed by her husband.

The significance of the lad's declaration is that if it should be proved that there were many bloodspots on the road it would support the contention of the defense that the first pool of blood dripped from the machine from the bleeding woman, who was alleged by Beattie to have been shot while in the front seat. On the other hand, the prosecution wished to show that there was but one blood spot, that no blood could have oozed from the machine, and that the large pool resulted from the shooting of Mrs. Beattie while she was standing either on the running board or in the road.

Detective Scherer, who has been active in working up the case for the prosecution, was expected to tell how he, in company with many others, looked for bloodspots at daybreak after the murder, and how, after a continuous long search, only the one bloodspot was found.

Explaining the alleged finding by the boy on the second morning after the murder of spots which apparently had escaped the scrutiny of a large detective force, the prosecution had planned to show that what the boy really did was to read the day after the murder a story in an afternoon paper on which his older brother is employed, telling of the discovery of many bloodspots and that the next day Robertson went and located the alleged bloodspots referred to in the paper. In support of this the prosecution had summoned the detective who in good faith gave to the newspaper the story in question to tell how he later found that he had been mistaken and that the additional bloodspots which he thought he saw were spots caused by exasperation.

After these witnesses the prosecution intended to rest its case today. The line of defense was expected to be revealed today from the testimony of its first few witnesses. It was expected that an effort would be made to discredit the story of Paul P. Beattie, but the most important attack on the prisoner is expected when he himself takes the stand, the day or hour for which has not been fixed.

Since there were no witnesses present when Henry is alleged to have told Paul, "I wish I had not done it," the defense will make every effort to have the word of the prisoner set aside that of his cousin Paul.

Rain-soaked roads gave the principal figures in the trial much difficulty in reaching the courthouse. When the scheduled hour for the opening of court arrived a long string of automobiles splashed through an almost continuous stream of water which hid the road in many spots. Several machines were stuck in the road. Hacks and other sea-going vehicles were popular.

The convening of court was delayed by the non-arrival of Prosecutor Wendenburg.

When court convened Harry M. Smith, counsel for the defense, suggested that during the wait for Mr. Wendenburg a canvass be made of the several witnesses for the defense present so that absentees might be brought to the courthouse. Many witnesses for the defense were excused by Mr. Smith, as he said:

"Certain phases of the case anticipated had not been touched upon by the prosecution."

The prosecuting attorney finally reached the courthouse after an uncomfortable experience with the muddy roads.

Miss Louise Reams appeared as the prosecution's first witness of the day. She came to the courtroom with her father.

"Did you know Mrs. Beattie?" asked Prosecutor Wendenburg.

"Yes."

"Maid of honor at her wedding, were you not?"

"Yes."

The hairpin alleged to have been worn by Mrs. Beattie on the night of the murder, was produced.

"Did Mrs. Beattie wear that kind of hairpin?"

The witness was excused after a brief cross examination in which she admitted that the hairpin was of a kind worn by hundreds of women.

Detective Jarrel, who has worked on the case for the prosecution since its inception, was summoned.

"Did you look for any blood between the Owen house and the scene of the crime?"

"Yes."

"When?"

"On the night of the murder and all day following, which was Wednesday."

"Tell the jury whether there was any other bloodspot?"

"There was none. If there had been I would have been bound to see it. I walked up and down that road, I reckon, more than any other man; I couldn't find but the one spot."

"It is in the testimony that an elliptical bloodspot was in front of Mr. Rice's house on Midlothian turnpike. Was such a spot there on Wednesday?"

"No."

"Did you examine the road there on Thursday, too?"

"Yes."

"Was it there?"

"No."

On cross examination, Mr. Carter, for the defense, asked the witness why he repeated his search for bloodspots. He said he heard of a story and a diagram in a Richmond paper concerning the discovery of other bloodspots.

Detective Scherer testified that he had made several examinations of the road on Wednesday and also on certain portions on Friday morning and found no bloodspots.

Major James Patton corroborated Scherer's testimony, having accompanied the detective in his search.

Ben Powen, another uncle of the murdered woman, also assisted in the search for bloodspots. He testified.

He said he made a careful examination of the scene of the crime and saw no blood except the first blot.

Thomas Wren, another detective, gave more corroborative testimony of the absence of additional bloodspots.

When court reconvened Judge Watson announced to the jury that a motion had been introduced by the defense to remove from evidence all facts and testimony relating to the hairpin, and the court had sustained the motion. Judge Watson added that a motion of the defense had likewise been sustained to eliminate all evidence concerning the action of the bloodhounds at the scene of the crime.

Paul D. Beattie was recalled to the stand by the defense as the first witness.

"Did you have a single-barreled shotgun in your possession while a watchman?" asked Mr. Smith of the defense.

"No."

Here G. W. Booth was called by the defense to the stand while Paul was testifying. Mr. Smith said to Paul Beattie, pointing to Mr. Booth:

"Did you have a conversation with this man concerning the murder?"

"Yes."

"Did you tell this man that you didn't think your cousin Henry killed his wife because he loved her too well?"

"No."

"When you testified before you said you had no conversation with Mr. Booth?"

"I didn't know the man by name but by sight."

Paul was excused and Mr. Smith examined Mr. Booth.

"Did you have any conversation with Paul Beattie on the Wednesday following the homicide?"

"Yes."

"What did he say?"

"He said: 'Well, what do you think of Henry?' I said I didn't know what he meant. 'Well,' he said, 'I don't think Henry killed his wife. He always spoke well of her to me. That was all that was said.'"

"Did Paul Beattie begin the conversation concerning this?"

"Yes."

"Who was present during your conversation?" asked Prosecutor Wendenburg in cross examination.

"No one. Two men came up later."

He was excused.

Beachey is taking a large bunch of the prize money at the meet.

CAUSED THE DEATH OF THE REV. FR. BRADLEY

LISBON, Mo., Aug. 30.—Rev. Peter E. Bradley, pastor of St. Anne's church of Lisbon and Holy Trinity church of Lisbon Falls, was found dead in his bed about 7 o'clock yesterday morning. Death probably was due to heart trouble, from which he had suffered.

The Rev. Fr. Bradley was born in Portland in 1857. He was educated in the public schools of that city and at the Little seminary and the Grand seminary at Montreal. He was first a curate in Lewiston, with Mgr. Wallace and his first parish was at Winn.

Then he came to Hallowell and later to Lisbon where he had been about 14 years. While here he built new churches at both Lisbon and Lisbon Falls and greatly improved the rectory. Several years ago he accompanied Bishop Walsh on his trip to Rome and at the time of his death he was a member of the diocesan council.

He is survived by a brother, Richard Bradley of Portland, and a niece, Miss Margaret Logue of Portland. The funeral will take place at Lisbon Friday morning at 11 o'clock. Burial will be at Calvary cemetery, Portland.

FIRST CLASS BOUTS

To be Offered by Local Club

The boxing fans were delighted to learn through The Sun of yesterday that the Lowell Social and Athletic club will reopen on Thursday evening with such a strong bill as that offered, with Jimmie Moriarty and Billy Glover of Boston as the principal attraction. The Lowell Social and Athletic club has engaged permanent quarters in the Mathews building and thus meets with the requirements of the law relative to meeting places. The meetings will be for members only and non-members will not be admitted under any circumstances, also a requirement of the law. The directors believe that by affording first class programs that the membership of the club will assume substantial proportions, as there are many lovers of the manly art who go to Boston weekly to see bouts who would remain at home if good bouts are to be had in Lowell. For an opening program the directors certainly have something that looks good on paper. Jimmie Moriarty always a popular favorite has improved greatly as a boxer of late through constant training with clever boxers. His rugged style impresses lovers of the game and with his added cleverness with the fists he seems due to get up with the top-notchers of his weight. His opponent, Billy Glover, has long been noted for his skill. He has met such men as Young McDonough of Manchester, Tommy Quill of Brockton who fought Jimmie Gardner, Young Frazz, Harry Lewis and other boxers of national reputation. Along with being scientific he is a good mixer in the ring, and just suited to Moriarty's style of work. The preliminaries also will be interesting. Young Stone of Lowell will go six rounds with Sammy Smith of Lawrence and Young Walsh of Lowell will meet Harry Stone of Lawrence.

JOE JEANNETTE

PROVED TO BE TOO MUCH FOR "PORKY" FLYNN

NEW YORK, Aug. 30.—Joe Jeannette, the Hoboken light heavyweight, outpointed "Porky" Flynn of Boston in a ten-round bout at the Fairmount Athletic club of the Bronx in the first fight held under the new Frawley law last night. Taken all in all, the contest was below the standard. At times Flynn's left leads to the head had the negro worried, but in the last round he was willing to hold on and stall.

Flynn appeared to be in for a short stay in the early rounds of the battle. The negro tore in and hooked hard punches with both hands to the body, while his left hand found the face and jaw. Flynn was cautious, but shot home a left to the face at intervals, while his right thudded to the body. A heavy left jolt brought the blood from Flynn's nose in the third round.

The tide changed in the fifth and sixth rounds, when Flynn boxed cleverly and stood off his rival's bull-like rushes with short right and left hooks to the face. The crowd, all Flynn sympathizers, stood up and cheered the rally. Their joy was short-lived. Jeannette boxed fiercely in the seventh and eighth rounds and Porky sustained a deep gash in his cheek from a hard right.

In the tenth Jeannette went in to score a knockout, but although Flynn was weak and tired, he managed to stay on his feet.

RUBE WADDELL'S STRENUOUS TRIP

Topsy Hartsel Recalls Pleasant Evening With Erratic Pitcher.

"It was my fortune once," says Topsy Hartsel of the world's champion Athletics, "to spend a pleasant and tumultuous evening with Mr. G. Edward Waddell, more generally known to the public as Rube, and at that time at the zenith of his big league fame. Just once, and only once. I never cared for any more of the same, thank you."

"The Athletics were just swinging into the championship of 1905, thanks in great measure to the glorious pitching of the Rube, and he was one of the most popular citizens of Philadelphia. This particular evening he approached me and explained that we could have the time of our young lives if we felt so inclined. First of all, said he, we would go to supper. We did, but the supper was interrupted to some extent because Mr. Waddell, happening to meet a man in the dining room whom he did not like, smote him over the head with a whitefish—a proceeding which seemed to me to be somewhat outside the limits of the menu."

"After supper Mr. Waddell said he would take me back of the scenes at a certain theater where melodrama is the rage. I had never been behind the curtain and was delighted, more so when the stage hands, all recognizing Rube, treated us with great honor and courtesy. The play was a wild western thing, chock full of shooting. As we came into the dim recesses behind the stage one of the few quiet minutes in the show was taking place—the hero was just looking into the eyes of the heroine and telling her how much he loved her. Not a sound broke the tense silence—and just then the Rube, picking up a gun that was standing ready for the villain, pulled the trigger."

"It crashed the love scene, and the stage hands threw Mr. Waddell out. And I went with him."

"They are not gentlemen in there," said Mr. Waddell. "Let's go to the theater, where Howard Hall is playing. He's my pal."

"So we went to another house, and again we got behind the scenes. Rube was popular—honest he was. If you remember Howard Hall's old play, 'The Man Who Dared,' you will remember that a den of lions furnish the thrills. The lion cage was standing back in the wings, and Mr. Waddell, in his merry way, proceeded to insult one of the lions. Just as Rube grabbed the lion by the tail the beast swung around and struck, and they picked up the Rube with his sleeve ripped off and a big red gash in his arm. And again we were thrown out into the alley."

"Topsy," said the Rube, tying up the wound in his arm, "don't forget now. We had a row with a couple of guys that said Conino Mack was a no good son of a hyena and one of them slashed me with a knife when I defended Conino's reputation. You've got a black eye—that'll make the play a good deal stronger. Maybe we can touch him for $20 each if we tell it good."

"I never went out for a social evening with Mr. Waddell any more. His ideas of diversion are too strenuous for a little man like me."

SOME TEAMS ARE STUMBLING BLOCKS TO PITCHERS.

Every pitcher has some certain team that he cannot work effectively against, and the Phillies seem to be the stumbling block of Christy Mathewson. Charley Dugan's men walloped the daylights out of the New York star during the recent series and beat him on another occasion earlier in the season. In fact, their present position must be attributed to their remarkable success against Mathewson, conceded to be the greatest pitcher in the game today. Walter Johnson scored one of his few victories over Boston recently. He always pitched good ball against the Red team, but has been unfortunate in being beaten by it. So it is with batters. There is always some pitcher whom they cannot hit, though, on the whole, the twirler may be of very ordinary caliber.

ABSENCE OF WAGNER MAY COST PITTSBURG PENNANT

In Brooklyn recently Wagner injured his ankle. His physician says it may keep him out of the game for the rest of the season.

It will be unfortunate if the injury to Wagner in Brooklyn recently imperils the chances of the Pittsburgh team for the pennant, for the race is at its most interesting stage just now, and it would be better if all the clubs that are in the running could have equally good fortune from now to the close of the season.

The "Flying Dutchman" is a tremendous tower of strength to the Pittsburgh club, not only for his great playing, but also for the inspiration and confidence which his presence inspires in the rest of the players.

He has been lucky in his long years of service in being seldom hurt and in being able to play most of the championship games indulged in by his club, which many times would have been pretty nearly helpless without him. Like all first class athletes, the Dutchman never figures on getting hurt, but goes through with every play at his top speed and takes the chances as they come.

The player who is always ducking and shifting out of danger and excusing himself by saying in a hurt tone, "I wasn't going to take a chance of getting put out of business on that play," isn't the fellow whose name graces the headlines, nor does he draw the fat salary.

Wagner has always been thoughtful of himself when there was a play to be pulled off, and that is one of the many reasons why he is a great ball player. It is to be hoped that he will not be out of the game for long. Yet if Wagner should not play another game this season Pittsburgh would not have much of a yelp to put up, for two of the principal contenders, Chicago and Philadelphia, have suffered untold ill luck all through the season.

No team was ever any worse shot to pieces than the Cubs have been this season, with only one of their regular infielders in line and their playing manager on the bench for the entire season. As bad has been the experience of the Phillies, they might have continued to make a hot fight for the flag and probably would have done so but for the great amount of misfortune which has overtaken them. These two clubs have suffered the acme of ill luck this year.

Of the contending clubs the Giants is the only club which has been reasonably free from accidents and injuries to its star players. McGraw's men have been extremely fortunate in this important respect, and they have an excellent chance to win out if their luck holds good for the next few weeks.

HOW BOXERS BEAT THE SCALES

Abe Attell Tells of Schemes of Fighters to Fool Adversaries.

"As long as there are weights agreed upon for boxing contests just so long there will be ways and devices to fool the scales," says Abe Attell, the featherweight champion. "I don't know just when the first trick was worked upon the weights, but I'll just bet a little money it was within a month after old time boxers began to make matches at any stated number of rounds."

"The tricks and dodges by which men try to fool their adversaries on the weight question are almost innumerable, and some of them are really classy in their style and execution. Oldest of all and one that is still tried, but seldom worked successfully, is the trick of putting a wad of gum on the underside of the one hundred pound weight. That used to fool many green-horns and sleepers, but nowadays no boxer goes to the scale without first grabbing the weight and inspecting the under side."

"When this dodge began to fail they filled the holes in the bottom of the weight with soapmaker's black wax, trusting to the stuff to harden and look enough like the lead or iron to pass inspection. That went for a time, but now a boxer will dig into the holes with his finger nails, and there is a swell row if he finds any wax therein."

"One manager I knew long ago had a special one hundred pound weight made for him, with every detail correct, but so filled with lead that it was eight pounds to the bad. If a man weighing 140 pounds was weighed with that disc of iron his poundage registered just 132. See the idea? This manager had it soft for a long time."

"One night at the old American club in Chicago he had Paddy Sheehan, a tough welter, matched with Kid Roberson, a dangerous negro. Weight, 145 pounds, ringside. Paddy weighed 160 and hadn't time to train down. Mr. Manager went to the club early in the day, and, to his horror, found that the weights were locked up and under guard of a uniformed attendant. 'Did it stop this boy?' Not him. He asked the thimbley to get the weights and test the scales. 'It was done, and as they walked back from the scale room Mr. Manager remarked: 'This floor would be great for quilts. See?' And so speaking he took the weight from the attendant and skinned it across the floor. Of course, he ran after it, and when he brought it back it wasn't the same weight—not by a jugful."

"That night, after the men weighed in, Roberson came into the ring with his black face ashy colored."

"What's the matter?" queried a man in the front row.

"Mattah, while man?" Roberson replied. "Whv, Ah's sick. Ah've got galloping consumption—Dis'mawvln' Ah weighed 139 pounds, and right now, when Ah weighs in, Ah weighs only 131."

"Out on the coast they have a clever trick. If your man is overweight, leave the scale alone. Take him right up there. There will always be a jam around the scale, everybody looking at the weights and the beam to see you don't monkey with them. Let your man hook a finger into the coat pocket of a friend standing by. It will throw all the weight upon the friend and the scale beam will not budge. In ninety-nine cases out of a hundred nobody will get wise—every one will be rubbing at the beam or weights."

"Kid Farmer, a good western fighter, was overweight one night. He stripped in the scale room and stood a handsome cane by the chair adjoining his clothes. Then he ran over to the cane. 'I'll take no chance of some lobster copping my cane,' said he. Then he mounted the platform and calmly leaned on the cane, throwing his weight upon the cane and the floor, and got away with it."

"Yes, weighing in is great business, and as crooked a part of the boxing game as over was invented."

GOTCH-HACKENSCHMIDT BOUT NOW BIG NOISE IN THE SPORTING WORLD

By TOMMY CLARK.

THE eyes of the sporting world are now centered on the coming 'bout' between Frank Gotch and George Hackenschmidt for the world's wrestling championship to be held in Chicago, Sept. 4.

This great mat match, in which the two giants will battle for the glory and the coin that goes with it, is attracting more attention than any sporting event in recent years, with the possible exception of the Jack Johnson-James J. Jeffries fight at Reno, Nev., a little more than a year ago. Just why it is attracting attention isn't hard to understand when it is taken into consideration that it is an international struggle; that it will be a battle in which bitterness will not be lacking and one in which no greater exponents of the art of wrestling ever were brought face to face.

It is only natural that there should be intense interest in what these giants of the mat game are doing in preparation in this event of the century.

For the past month they have been preparing for the mill and are in fine shape for a hard contest. Gotch will weigh about 265 pounds when he enters the ring, while Hackenschmidt will tip the scales at about 220.

This will be the second meeting of the pair. The men met in Chicago, April 8, 1904, and after wrestling for one hour and forty-five minutes Hackenschmidt quit.

There was much discussion after the match, it being alleged that Gotch won by unfair methods, being greased before coming to the mat and jabbing his finger nails into Hackenschmidt's eyes during the bout until the "Russian Lion" was nearly blinded. Hack also claimed he was not in the best of shape for the mill.

This time he will be in the finest of shape—at least he says so—and that should give him a better chance. But to throw Gotch will be no easy matter. No man is better versed in the wrestling art than the Hunbaldt farmer, and, while not a giant in figure, he is remarkably strong and agile, which count for much. In everything that pertains to the science of wrestling Gotch is Hackenschmidt's master. What the Russian's strength may be expected to play their story of the first match sufficiently tells.

Gotch has won his way over all his opponents with his extreme speed of thought and action. He is a master of feint as well as attack, and never a man has got into the ring with him in the last five years but who thought not on what move he himself would next make, but on Gotch's next effort. The champion's mentality puts all opposition on defense regardless of the physical endowments of his foe.

On the other hand, it may be safely stated that Hack is but half educated in the catch-as-catch-can game, relying mostly on Greco-Roman holds and his iron endurance to win his matches.

Hack and Gotch Compared. A prominent wrestling expert gives a comparative estimate of Hackenschmidt and Gotch which will prove interesting to the followers of wrestling. He sizes up the men as follows:

"In view of the underlying principles of the development of grapplers it is useless to take a table of measurements such as we might rely on to a certain degree in comparing the merits of fighters. In other words, when we are dealing with the subject of pugilists we generally find a given course of training will develop different muscles along almost identically the same lines.

"In the perfection of wrestling material the muscles are developed on an entirely different plan. This is noted in a comparison of Gotch and Hackenschmidt, because the two men are differently constructed."

"When Hack steps out on the mat in a ring and discards his bath robe one of the first things the fans will notice is the almost abnormal development around the big fellow's neck and shoulders. There are great pads of muscle extending along the back and sides of Hackenschmidt's neck that tend to give his shoulders a sloping appearance. This development is distributed throughout his back and is supplemented by an almost freakish development under his arms. The girth measurement of Hackenschmidt is a great deal more than appearances would indicate, but the contrast with his mammoth shoulders gives him that tapering build that makes him a veritable human wedge. Hackenschmidt walks with a springy step, and in his work he pivots first on one foot and then on the other.

Gotch Has Rounded Muscles.

"The expanse and depth of his chest give him that quality commonly known as 'wind,' making his endurance phenomenal. Hackenschmidt's muscles are developed more after the fashion of broad, flat tapes. This has been due not so much to his innumerable matches as to his methods of training."

"It will be noted that Gotch is developed along distinctly different lines. The champion has round muscles, and his hips and thighs are a great deal stockier than those of Hack. Gotch is a remarkably hard breather and on the mat does not show the same signs of endurance that are noted in the forecigner. Nevertheless the champion has demonstrated that his breathing is not due to exhaustion, but that his organs of respiration are a great deal different from those of the Russian Lion."

"Hackenschmidt depends more largely on quick moves and sudden jerks, taking spurts, with the object of catching his man off his balance and upsetting him. On the other hand, Gotch invariably bulls his man around the ring, keeping him out of balance and steadily wearing him down."

"Hackenschmidt has wrestled as many catch-as-catch-can matches as Gotch. The mere fact that he has staged a great many of his operations in London by no means indicates that he is Greco-Roman in style. The truth of the matter is the English audiences demand catch-as-catch-can almost as much as do the American fans."

Training Methods Differ.

"Gotch's training embodies wrestling, handball and road work, almost to the exclusion of everything else. Hackenschmidt does practically no running, but he believes in walking, taking a four mile clip and holding it for several hours. He contends that this helps the wind a great deal more than running, because he indulges in this walking exercise every day in the year, while in the ordinary road work the wrestler will perhaps stick to the daily run for two or three weeks and then pass them up for as many months. Hack also does a great deal of work with weights and other gymnasium apparatus."

"He will take a turn at the rings, at the horizontal bars, at the horse and practically everything else that constitutes the modern equipment. One of Hack's favorite forms of exercise is to place two chairs back to back about a foot apart. He will then walk across the room rapidly, pausing before the chairs and taking a standing jump over them. The height is about forty inches and the length of the jump about five feet. He will do this thirty or forty times in succession."

"In his daily workouts he usually takes on three or four good tough men and puts in half an hour to an hour on the mat."

BASEBALL RECORDS HOLD YEARS

Cincinnati Made Mark For Hitting in Single Game, Getting Thirty-four Bingles.

HEAVY hitting of the early baseball season caused no end of comment, and old records were looked up and published, but few of those printed to date appear to be correct. In looking over the files back from 1880 the subjoined figures appear to be interesting at this time.

The record for runs scored is held by the Chicago National League club, which beat Louisville, 38 to 7, on June 10, 1897. Fred Clarke, manager of the Pittsburgh club; Hums Wagner, Tommy Leach and Deacon Phillips were members of the Colonels at that time, while Cap Anson led the Cubs. The Phillies were beaten by Providence on Aug. 21, 1883, by the score of 28 to 0, which is probably the worst beating a club ever received. The famous Charles Radbourne twirled for Providence for the tenth consecutive day.

The world's total base batting record is held by Cincinnatti and was made on Sept. 12, 1888. The Reds batted Pitcher Tibbey of Pittsburgh for twenty-seven runs and thirty-four hits for a total of fifty-four bases.

The Phillies hold the world's record for number of hits in one game. Pitcher Wadsworth of Louisville was the victim, and the Phillies made thirty-six hits off his delivery. The game was played in 1894, and Ed Delahanty, Billy Hamilton and Sam Thompson led in the slaughter of the twirlers.

MANAGER CLARKE AN INVENTOR.

Fred Clarke of Pittsburgh has invented a rubber device to be placed in front of the regulation pitching slab. The object is to prevent twirlers from digging deep holes. He has patents on several other baseball utensils, including a canvas jacket for the diamond.

SOME TWIRLERS OF TODAY

Many of Them Possess the Speed of Amos Rusie, Says Duke Farrell of New York Americans.

DUKE FARRELL, the old catcher, who coaches the Yankees pitchers, says Walter Johnson and Christy Mathewson have as much speed as Amos Rusie had, and there are three or four pitchers in the American league as speedy as Rusie was. Farrell was Rusie's catcher.

"Rusie didn't depend on his speed," said Farrell, "he had wonderful control and a good curve ball. Any pitcher who has speed and control with it should win most of his games. Rusie won by mixing his great curve with his speed. He could put the ball where he wanted it."

"Rusie used a slow ball once in awhile too. A pitcher with a world of speed ought to have a good slow ball. Batters step up quick against a pitcher who has lots of speed, and if he uses a slow ball once in awhile he can catch the batters completely off their balance."

"Walter Johnson would be a much better pitcher if he had better control. I don't mean that Johnson is a wild man, but his control is nothing out of the ordinary."

"Mathewson looks like a perfect pitcher. He has speed, control, a slow ball and the fadeaway. Along with all that he has a fine head."

FORTUNE SPENT FOR BALL PLAYERS.

Nearly $200,000 was spent last fall and up to the present time in material to build up sixteen teams of the big leagues. For this entire sum it is doubtful if a team of seven regulars, three catchers and four pitchers—the makings of a big league club—could be picked from the men it bought, such as could make a first division nine in either league.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

CLEOPATRA'S DEATH

AUGUST 30.—Cleopatra, queen of Egypt, also queen of the coquettes. She captivated the world's conqueror, Julius Caesar, made Mark Anthony chase her like a stone down the Nile, and just to keep her hand in beguiled Octavius Caesar till he looked like a cube who had just been gold bricked. When she wanted to make Anthony forget home and mother she went sailing down the river Cydnus in a barge so sumptuously furnished that Col. John Jacob Astor's son going to Spain would look like a sand sucker by comparison. With Cleopatra dressed like a salmon dinner, poor Mark couldn't see any of the rest of the bait. Octavius didn't like the way Mark was forgetting his wife, for the new ally, and proceeded to wipe Mark's army off the map. Mark blamed his misfortune on Cleopatra. One cut hair and gave some fake news agency the story that she was dead. When Mark heard the news he fell on his sword. This resurrected the lady instantly and Octavius decided to carry her back to Rome as one of the spoils of war. Cleo fooled him, she ordered his guards to march with her to the side. The two didn't fall in love with her for a minute. Instead he bit her and Cleopatra was found dead by her servants August 30, 30 B. C. She was 38 years of age at the time of her death.

MAN WAS DROWNED

His Body Found in River at Nashua

NASHUA, N. H., Aug. 30.—The body of a man, which awaits identification, was taken from the Merrimack river just evening, making the ninth drowning in this city since April.

About 5 o'clock Joseph Latour, an employee of the Boston & Maine railroad, saw the body of a man lying face down on the river bottom near the foot of Burke street. City Marshal Wheeler sent Inspector Field and Johnau Jelley to the place. They found the body in about two feet of water, six feet from shore. They towed it with a power boat a quarter of a mile to the mouth of Salmon brook, where a landing was effected. Dr. Moran said death was due to accidental drowning.

The man, who is a stranger in Nashua, had evidently been asleep on the river bank. He was lying on his back, and rolled into the water. His hat, coat and cane were on the bank. His cane is of natural wood, evidently cut by the owner; his cap light soft felt, his coat a fine mixed gray; he wore dark trousers, black shoes which were unlaced, a black shirt and cotton undershirt.

There were no papers upon him to furnish a clue as to who he was or where he came from. The body, which had not been in the water long, is that of a man of 170 pounds, 5 feet 8 inches tall and 45 years of age. He wore a brown mustache.

PORTRAITS OF E-MAYORS OF LYNN WERE DAMAGED

LYNN, Aug. 30.—Mayor William P. Connerly of Lynn has requested the services of the police in solving the mystery of how and why the pictures of ex-Mayors George Hood, third mayor of the city, and ex-Mayor William Shepard, known as the "handsome mayor," were cut from their positions on the wall in the mayor's office at city hall and thrown on the floor.

The pictures were found on the floor yesterday morning when the mayor arrived and the frames were broken and scattered about the office. Janitor Joseph Connerly said he had seen no one enter or leave city hall after the mayor left Monday night at 10 o'clock.

What is most puzzling the police and citizens generally is why the pictures of other mayors were left unmolested especially when the two found on the floor were some distance apart.

To reach the wire holding the picture frames required the use of a step ladder.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT

WRIGHT SCHEDULED TO MEET McLOUGHLIN TODAY

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 30.—Early morning showers again made tennis uncertain at the Casino today although a large crowd strolled up Bellevue avenue, many from out of town, to see the match between Wright, a former champion, and McLaughlin, the champion of the All-England tournament for the national title. While both players have reached the top match in the tournament in former years, Wright, because of his long service on the courts was regarded today as the veteran and McLaughlin as one of the leaders of the younger set.

McLaughlin reached the finals two years ago but was put out by W. J. Clothier. Wright won his national title in 1905 and won the All-England in 1905 while last year he was defeated in the finals by T. C. Bundy.

For the first time in the history of the tournament there will be a full day's rest between the two matches, the challenge match, when William A. Larned will defend his title for the fifth consecutive time and the eighth time in his tennis career.

BETHELEHEM, N. H., Aug. 30.—Sneezers, for whom sneezing is a common interest, gathered here today to attend the annual two days' meeting of the United States Hayfever Association, which derives its name from the fact that all its members sneeze in June, July and August and as much longer as they are afflicted with hayfever. Veteran sneezers and physicians informed their associate sufferers what is new in the line of remedies. Rev. Clayton Delamater of West Bridgewater, Mass., presided.
